

Sewage Plan May Proceed

Cooperative effort toward the establishment of a joint College-borough sewage plan has not been stymied despite a report that the plan hit a snag at the Board of Trustees' meeting Jan. 24, according to James Coogan Jr., assistant director of the department of public information.

The Centre Daily Times said Jan. 27 that plans for a joint sewage plan were interrupted when the Board of Trustees approved a plan calling for the expansion of the College sewage treatment plant on its present site.

Registration Reaches 10,233 Total Saturday

A total of 10,233 students had registered for the spring semester by noon Saturday, C. O. Williams, dean of admissions, reported yesterday.

The figure, which is approximately 500 under the final figure for the spring semester of last year, is incomplete, it was explained.

The total of 10,233 students includes 7731 men and 2502 women. This includes 9283 full-time students and 950 part-time students.

More than 450 new students had enrolled by noon Saturday. The new students include 188 first semester freshman men, 93 students transferred to the campus from Penn State centers, and 66 students admitted to the College with advance standing from other colleges and universities. The remaining 103 students are former Penn State students who had withdrawn and are being re-admitted.

Two Appointed In Ag School

Dr. Howard O. Triebold has been named head of the Department of Agricultural and Biological Chemistry, and Dr. John L. West has been named associate professor of animal pathology.

Both appointments, effective Feb. 1, have been announced by President Milton S. Eisenhower, following approval by the Board of Trustees.

Triebold, professor of agricultural and biological chemistry, has been serving as department head since July 1, 1951.

West was associate professor of animal husbandry and veterinary science.

Customs Lifted for New Frosh

There will be no green dinks or ribbons worn by new freshman on campus this semester, James Schulte, co-chairman of the Customs Board, said when he announced that freshman customs were lifted for the coming semester.

Reasons given by Schulte for the lifting of customs are no freshman girls came to campus and most of the freshman men are exempt from customs because they are veterans. He explained that customs might lose their strength if enforced on only the remaining eligible freshmen.

Whether or not the new freshmen will have to go through customs during their second semester will be decided by the new customs board, Schulte explained. He added that the present board would recommend that they do not take them.

Approximately 200 freshmen have enrolled for the spring semester and took part in orientation and counselling program last week.

Trustee Head Is Re-elected For 8th Term

James Milholland, Pittsburgh attorney and former Allegheny County Orphans' Court judge, was elected to his eighth term as president of the College Board of Trustees at the board's annual meeting in Harrisburg.

Other officers selected by the trustees are George H. Deike, Pittsburgh, vice president; Samuel K. Hostetter, College controller, treasurer; President Milton S. Eisenhower, secretary; and Adrian O. Morse, College provost, assistant secretary.

Kenzie S. Bagshaw, Hollidaysburg; Howard J. Lamade, Williamsport; J. L. Mauthe, Youngstown, O.; Roger W. Rowland, New Castle; George W. Slocum, Milton; Edgar C. Weichel, Scranton; and Deike were re-elected to the executive committee.

Milholland and President Eisenhower serve as ex-officio members of the executive committee.

New Officers Elected By Poly Sci Club

Theodore Wojciehovicz has been elected president of the Political Science Club.

Other officers are Jerome Feinberg, vice president; Thomas Leyland, secretary; and John Eller, treasurer.

Richard Floum, retiring president, took the names of those eligible to join Pi Sigma Alpha, national political science honor society. Requirements for membership include ten credits in political science with a 2 average, rank in the upper third of the class, and an interest in political science.

Collegian Groups Set Meetings

Freshman and sophomore candidates for the business staff of the Daily Collegian will meet at 7 tonight in 2 Carnegie. It is not necessary that candidates be journalism majors, Bette Agnew, personnel manager, said.

Weekly classes for business candidates will be held during the semester to instruct them in the promotion, circulation, office, advertising, and classified departments of the Collegian, Miss Agnew said.

The junior and intermediate advertising staffs of the Collegian will meet at 7 tonight in 9 Carnegie. Newly appointed candidates to the intermediate staff will be included in this group.

Editorial staff candidates, particularly freshmen and sophomores, will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in 1 Carnegie.

WD Elections To Be Held Sunday Night

Elections for vacant offices in the West Dorm area will be held Sunday from 8 p.m. to midnight, Hugh Cline, elections committee chairman, announced at a meeting of the West Dorm Council last night.

Self-initiated petitions, signed by ten students in areas where there are vacancies, must be presented to the section's dormitory councillor by midnight Saturday.

The highest remaining floor officer and the councillor will be in charge of the election, Cline said.

Elections are scheduled for the first floor Hamilton vice president; A-level Hamilton vice president; Jordan Hall president; and president, first floor McKee Hall. The vice president of first floor Hamilton and president, first floor McKee, will become members of the West Dorm Council.

The council approved a request by William Griffith, Religion in Life Week chairman, that RILW discussion groups be permitted to use the main West Dorm lounge. George Donovan, director of Associated Student Activities, must also approve the request.

The West Dorm area social committee will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 127 Hamilton, George Forsyth, social committee chairman announced.

English Exemptions

The following students are exempt from English Composition I during the spring semester: Andrew Bosso, Mary Ann Dorn, George Mauler, Bernard Shaffer, and Howard Watts.

Students Buy Books And SAVE

The opening of the newly expanded Used Book Agency in the TUB for the second time has shown students what great savings are possible in buying used books. The Used Book Agency, called the UBA, handles used books for students, letting them set their own price on books they wish to sell.

For the convenience of students who buy books there, the UBA has set up a self-service system in the ball-room of the TUB, fully utilizing over 3,000 square feet of shopping space. Books are displayed on tables by courses. Students merely walk into the TUB, find the tables with books of their courses, and pick the book at the price they like. Thus, students can spend as much or as little as they like, but will save all the way.

There is absolutely no waiting in line. You shop at your own leisure, taking all the time you need. Select your books, pay, and leave. As simple as that. Positively the best system at Penn State.

For students who wish to sell books, the UBA will receive books until closing time Wednesday. Students may bring their books to the UBA and name their own price for each. At no other place can they get as much money for their used books. With the present operating system, the UBA has a tremendous turnover, giving the student a better chance to sell his books.

The UBA is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. Why not take advantage of these savings? Bring in your used books now and sell them. Buy books for the coming semester at prices that will amaze you.

Several examples are students who, had they bought new books, would have paid $36, but paid only $18; $25, but paid only $15.50; and $21, but paid only $13. Only at the UBA are such savings possible. Come in and Save. Come today.
