

Four Groups Hit State Committee

The state government's Chesterman committee, which recently cited the College for unnecessary construction, has received criticism from at least four state departments.

Gov. John S. Fine, who appointed the committee, also recently stated that the group was no longer concerned about the College's building program.

AIM Review Board Meets With Simes

The recently formed Judicial Board of Review, the Association of Independent Men's law enforcement body, met with Dean of Men Frank J. Simes last night and discussed its functions and limits.

The judicial board, which was officially approved in December but has not yet begun to function, is to be the official watchdog of discipline among independent men. The group is chaired by Edward Thieme, president of Town Council, and has two members from each of the four independent men's governing councils.

Thieme defined the board's scope of activity as including disturbances caused by independents or complaints lodged against them either on campus or downtown. Any independent man or dormitory counselor as well as college and borough authorities may file complaints with the board, and the Dean of Men's office may refer cases to it, he said.

Punishments, he said, would be in the form of fines or probation or both, and the board is also empowered to recommend suspension or expulsion of the student to the Dean of Men's office. Punishments would be approved and backed by Dean Simes, he added.

Dean Simes told the group he hoped their actions would set an example and impress the offenders and the student body that any misdemeanor is injurious to the College and its reputation.

Fee Approved By Ed Council

Education Student Council last night unanimously approved the proposed 20 cent assessment for each student for the campus radio station.

The motion, approved once by All-College Cabinet at its last meeting, will be voted on again Thursday. The All-College Constitution requires motions concerning finances to be approved at two consecutive cabinet meetings before being sent to the Board of Trustees.

Harry Shank, acting president, announced that nominations can still be made for the Outstanding Senior in Education award in 105 Burrowes. Ralph Egolf won the award last year.

Discussion concerning problems of housing and visiting for women student teachers was continued. It was agreed that more investigation be conducted with discussion and specific recommendations to follow at the council meeting Feb. 10.

Students with pertinent information are asked by Harry Shank to attend next week's meeting.

Art Work Display In Pattee Library

A student exchange fine art exhibit, consisting of 25 prints, etchings, lithographs, and wood blocks, may be viewed in the main lobby of the Pattee Library during the next two weeks.

Prof. Sybil D. Emerson, instructor in art education, described the paintings as ranging from realistic to abstract. The exhibit is the work of fine arts students of Oregon State College, where work of Professor Emerson's Art Ed. 404 class is on exhibit.

Glee Club Tryouts

Mid-year tryouts for the Penn State Glee Club will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 200 Carnegie Hall for first and second tenors only.

Orient Bound

VELMA KAISER, fourth semester arts and letters major, has been chosen to play the Wife in "Lute Song," a Chinese fantasy set to music by Raymond Scott. Players will present the musical in Schwab Auditorium March 12, 13, and 14.

Cast Named For Players 'Lute Song'

Velma Kaiser, fourth semester arts and letters major, will play the lead in Players' production of "Lute Song" to be presented on March 12, 13, and 14 in Schwab Auditorium.

As the Chinese wife, Miss Kaiser will be required to sing several songs in the fantasy.

The part of the Princess will be played by Betty Rice. Sylvia Brown and Bill Coleman will be seen in the roles of the aged mother and father. Prince Nieou will be played by Kaye Vinson, and the manager will be enacted by Ray Wasilewski.

Others in the large cast are Ed Randig, man servant; Albert Kalson, steward; Jean Risler, marriage broker; Lyle Pelton, food commissioner; Thomas Bellin, Genie; John Kaiser, ape; Herb Rebhun, tiger; Richard Haynes, bonze; Chuck Caricato, first clerk and second priest.

Myron Cole, chamberlan and secretary; Ralph Sirota, second applicant and juggler; Cameron Iserman, high priest; Elaine Giltman and Nancy Levit, handmaidens; John Yeatman, first priest; Charles Berryhill, John Aniston, Ken Gordon, and John Kiffin, guards.

Robert Hertz, Kate Stark, Tom Bellin, Ann Wylie, Antoinette Denisof, Regnian Resneck, and Cliff Crosbie will be seen as dancers and extras.

Robert D. Reifsnider, associate professor of dramatics, will direct the play, which was adapted by Sidney Howard and Will Irwin from an ancient classic of the Chinese theater. Original musical score is by Raymond Scott.

Crew managers for the Schwab production are Ruth McSparran, advertising; George Jason, lights; Frank Baxter, sound; Bill Nudorf, construction; Jack Lieberman, properties; Pat Jenkins, costumes; and Prim Diefenderfer, makeup.

506 Fall Graduates Receive Degrees

Five hundred six students received degrees from the College at fall semester graduation exercises held Tuesday in Recreation Hall.

President Milton S. Eisenhower presided over the commencement exercises in which 390 received bachelor degrees and 116 advanced degrees. Doctorates were presented to 34.

Hilbert Awarded Degree
The first doctorate degree in aeronautical engineering to be conferred by the College was given to Charles E. Duke, an instructor in the curriculum since 1946. His doctor's dissertation was "Analysis of Damping in Elastic Solids."

Conrad R. Hilbert, a design engineer with the Twin Disc Clutch Co., Rockford, Ill., was awarded the technical degree of mechanical engineer.

Thirty graduates had completed Reserve Officers Training Corps studies and were presented reserve or regular commissions in the Army, Air Force, Navy, or Marine Corps.

Those With Honors
Thirty students graduated with honors, qualifying with an All-College average of 2.40 or better.

They are Edward Andrysick, James Cerutti, John Fridick, Forrest Fryer, Marvin Weidner, Ralph Gomes, Francis Pramuk, Marcia Garbrick, Richard Holdren, John Risser, Louise Tyson, John Scaffer, Frank Coladonato, Andrew Vicker, Doris Golub, Stewart Scheetz, Joanne Williams, Joanne Luyben, Marlene Heyman, Ronald Cohen, Jane Betz, Milton Poulos, Stanley Sporkin, Joan Tunitsky, Marion Venzlavskas, Lawrence Myers, Virginia Opoczanski, Miriam Bleiberg, Wilbur Hallstead, and John Walsh.

Prospects Dim On Vet School Construction

Prospects for a veterinary school at the College dimmed greatly when Gov. John S. Fine did not provide for such construction in his budget message to the General Assembly last week.

He did, however, set aside $300,000 for veterinary research at the College. The estimated cost of a new veterinary school at the College was $6 to $7 million. Construction of a veterinary school was sought by the State Council of Farm Organizations last December. That group is composed of 30 state-wide farm groups.

After an investigation, the Joint State Government Commission announced that establishment of the school would be unfeasible because the needed veterinarians could be handled from the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinarian Medicine. The proposed school would graduate 75 doctors yearly.

Honorary Initiates Larson, Five Students

Dr. Russell E. Larson, new head of the Horticulture department, and five undergraduates have been initiated into Phi Alpha Xi, national floriculture honor fraternity.

Students initiated include Henry Arnold, William Aulenbach, David Laird, Lawrence Paglia, and Lawrence Renko.

College Officials Maintain Silence on Sewage Plan

College officials said they prefer to remain silent on the current joint College-borough sewage plan discussions after the Centre Daily Times yesterday called the discussions "a professional sewage brawl" in its editorial columns.

The Times' editorial attacked the difference in conclusions reached by two different engineering firms on the best way for the College and the borough to expand present sewage facilities. The firms offering opinions are Morris Knowles Inc. of Pittsburgh and Gilbert Associates of Reading.

The Knowles company proposed a joint project east of the present borough disposal plant at an estimated cost of $1.5 million. The proposal formed the basis for the College-borough negotiations. A report by Gilbert Associates, favored by the Board of Trustees, said the College could reach its objectives at about one-third the cost by expanding its present plan. Operation and maintenance cost would also be appreciably smaller, the firm said.

Two other "stumbling blocks" that the editorial named are the financing of the joint sewage plan and the handling of the plan development. Figures presented financing the plan, according to the editorial, are objectionable to both the borough and the College. Handling the development of the plan under an authority must be done by the borough, according to law, the editorial said. On this point the Times' said, "It appears that the College is reluctant to accept this situation."

The College officials, James Coogan Jr., assistant director of the department of public information; and Samuel K. Hostetter, comptroller, did say that the way for negotiation was still open despite the opinion of the Board of Trustees. In addition, Hostetter said the next move is up to the borough.

Going Once . . . Going Twice . . . Gone!

Today is the last day you can bring books to sell at the Used Book Agency in the TUB.

Don't forget, when you bring in a used book, you name your own price. This means you get MORE money for your books.

And to buy books, you couldn't find a better place. Self-service. Absolutely no waiting in line. Come in and shop at your leisure. We're open daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Pick books at prices you like. Books for ALL courses.

Come today to the UBA for used book bargains

UBA in the TUB

Open 9 - 9

Today WARNER theatres
Catharam
ALEC GUINNESS
"THE PROMOTER"
—FEATURETIME—
1:30, 3:32, 5:34, 7:36, 9:38

State
"SKY FULL OF MOON"
CARLETON CARPENTER
—FEATURETIME—
2:19, 4:11, 6:03, 7:55, 9:47

Mittany
"MONKEY BUSINESS"
CARY GRANT
—FEATURETIME—
6:15, 8:01, 9:47