

Panhel Status Granted To 'Aye Sees' Group

Military Ball Tickets to Go On Sale Today

Tickets for the Military Ball to be held in Recreation Hall Feb. 27 will go on sale to Army, Navy, and Air Force ROTC students today in the Army ROTC office in Carnegie Hall, the Air Force office in the Armory, and the Navy Ward Room on the second floor of Engineering E.

Members of the four military honoraries, Scabbard and Blade, Pershing Rifles, Quarterdeck Society, and Arnold Air Society will be in charge of the tickets, which may be purchased at $4 per couple today, tomorrow and Friday. There is no limit to the number of tickets that any one cadet or midshipman may obtain.

Music for the dance, which will be held from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., will be provided by Billy May and his orchestra. The Encores will be featured with the band.

Pa. Meat Packers Offer Scholarships

Three scholarships available to seniors and graduates of the School of Agriculture have been established by the Pennsylvania Independent Meat Packers Association.

Two $250 grants may be awarded to seniors or graduate students. The third scholarship awards $500 for a graduate student or $560 to a quarter-time graduate assistant.

Leadership, scholarship, financial need, and interest in the commercial meat business will be considered by the Department of Animal Husbandry in selecting and recommending students for the awards.

O'Brien to Take Leave of Absence

One instructor has taken a leave of absence, and another has been added to the staff in recent faculty switches.

Dr. Harold J. O'Brien, instructor in speech, has been granted leave beginning Feb. 1 and ending June 30 to enable him to supervise an executive training program in speech and human relations for the West Penn Power Co. in Pittsburgh.

Bernice G. Chambers assumed her position as associate professor of clothing and textiles in the School of Home Economics Feb. 1.

Engagements

Blatchford-Bennett

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Bennett of Memphis, Tenn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Margorie, to James Blatchford, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Blatchford of Lansdowne.

Miss Bennett was graduated from the College last June and is now employed as a secretary in Philadelphia.

Mr. Blatchford, an eighth semester commerce and finance major, is president of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Senate to Discuss WSGA Elections Date

Women's Student Government Association Senate will discuss the date for spring elections at 6:30 tonight in the WSGA room in White Hall.

Also on the agenda will be discussion of the time and speaker for the annual WSGA convocation and the choosing of a delegate for Religion-in-Life Week.

Home Ec Delegate

Dr. Miriam E. Lowenberg, head of the Department of Foods and Nutrition, will represent the Pennsylvania Home Economics Association at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Health Council in Harrisburg today.

Panhellenic Council last night granted associate membership in the group to the local Aye Sees Colony of Pi Beta Phi. The council also passed an amendment to its constitution, changing the month in which new Panhel officers assume their duties.

The Aye Sees, who were required to apply for and obtain associate membership in Panhel before receiving their charter from Pi Beta Phi, will assume Panhel privileges and regulations but will not vote in meetings. Ellen Wandel, council president, explained.

The amendment passed by the group states that the term of officers will begin the first meeting in April instead of May. The revision had been read and discussed at a previous meeting.

Radio Fee Discussed
The council voted in favor of a suggestion that a tea be held in the spring for second semester women who will be eligible for sorority rushing in the fall. Jane Barkley and Ona Kay Lee were appointed co-chairmen for the tea.

After discussing the proposed 20 cent student assessment for the College radio station, members decided to vote on the matter after the proposal is brought before the individual sororities.

The group decided to continue working with the Red Cross Tuesday afternoons. Each member sorority may participate in the project by sending a representative each week to roll bandages under the supervision of a Red Cross worker.

Policy Change Announced
Miss Wandel appointed Phyllis Sukenic, parliamentarian; Joan Levinson, social chairman; and Dorothy Ferrand, Panhel representative to the Religion-in-Life Week meeting.

An announcement of the policy change for the chaperoning of sorority and fraternity social events was made by Miss Wandel. She explained that chaperones for social events must be faculty members, parents of the group members, alumni of five years standing, or fraternity counselors and advisers.

'Fashions, Fabrics' Theme to Highlight Spring Weekend

"Fashions, Fabrics, and Families" will be the theme of the annual Spring Weekend program of the School of Home Economics to be held April 17-18.

Dr. Ruth W. Ayres, professor and head of the Department of Clothing and Textiles, will direct faculty members and students in planning the program, which will feature lectures, exhibits, and demonstrations.

The program will be planned to appeal to homemakers, consumers, merchants, designers, laundrymen, and drycleaners, as well as others who use, produce, or care for clothing or textiles.

Both the Home Economics Building and Home Economics South will be utilized for the lectures, demonstrations, and exhibits. The program will be continuous from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

As a part of the program, alumni of the School of Home Economics will hold their annual spring meetings, which will include a dinner Friday night and a business meeting Saturday morning.

Author to Discuss Middle East Question

Dr. Pierre van Paassen, correspondent and author, will speak on "America's Stake in the Middle East" at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Hillel Auditorium. The public lecture is sponsored by the Sociology department and the Hillel Foundation.

Dr. van Paassen, an ordained minister of the Unitarian Fellowship, is the author of several books. He will soon publish a book on the religious situation in Russia.

Coeds Start Interclass Basketball

The winning of the semi-finals in women's basketball by Thompson-McMaster Monday night marked the beginning of a week of women's interclass basketball games, and semi-finals and finals in intramural basketball and ping-pong.

Champions of League I Thompson-McMaster beat Gamma Phi Beta, winner of League II, 46-21, to win the semi-finals. Thompson will play in the finals Saturday morning against the winner of Friday night's game, which is between Alpha Gamma Delta, champion of League III, and Kappa Kappa Gamma, winner of League IV.

In the ping-pong semi-finals which also began Monday night, Alpha Gamma Delta won the forfeit over Atherton East, and Alpha Xi Delta beat Little Lions. The ping-pong finals took place last night. Details are on page 7.

The freshmen-sophomore and junior-senior basketball game last night marked the beginning of the interclass games to be held through tomorrow. Tonight the freshmen will play the juniors, and the sophomores will play the seniors. Tomorrow night the freshmen-senior and junior-sophomore games will take place.

Class representatives are freshmen, Faith Rojahn and Kathryn Queensbury; sophomore, Nancy Pelz and Sylvia Crum; junior, Carole Kowallis and Connie Bell; and senior, Aneta Tyler and Barbara Charles.

The women's chess teams will play Feb. 13, and the winners will represent Penn State in the playday Feb. 21.

PSCA to Show Film, 'One God'

The film "One God" will be shown at a Penn State Christian Association meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 304 Old Main.

PSCA will offer two non-credit courses this semester, "The Religion of the New Testament" and "The Christian Student in the University." The first, led by Luther H. Harshbarger, executive secretary of PSCA, will meet two hours a week; the second, led by Dr. Ernest H. Freund, will meet one hour a week.

Students may register for the courses at the PSCA office and leave copies of their schedules.

Case to Lecture To Newman Club

Andrew W. Case, professor of fine arts, will begin weekly lectures at the Newman Club round table discussions at 7:30 tonight in 107 Willard.

The general topic for the discussions will be "Religious Problems." "How a Student may lose his faith in a state university" will be a typical topic. Other topics may be suggested by students attending the lectures. The group is open to all Catholics.

Ibbotson Chosen Head Of Theta Sigma Phi

Julia Ibbotson was recently elected president of Theta Sigma Phi, women's professional journalism fraternity. She succeeds Phyllis Kalson, who was graduated last week.

Helen Luyben was elected vice president, replacing Miss Ibbotson, and Elizabeth Harlor was chosen recording secretary to succeed Joanne Williams, who also was graduated.

Ex-Army Dietician Joins Coed Ranks

By MIKE FEINSILBER

Helping to plan menus for the U.S. Army combat troops in the Pacific area used to be the task of Evelyn Girard, a captain in the Women's Medical Specialist Corps, who was an Army dietician during World War II. But right now her task is getting a master's degree in institution administration.

"I'm the first Army dietician on active duty to do graduate work at Penn State," said Captain Girard, who's no newcomer to the campus. She received her bachelor's degree from the College in 1936.

"It's a definite advantage to be back on a campus, not to mention the fact that it's fun to wear civilian clothes again," the pert Captain said.

Two Years in Hawaii

A native of Masontown, Captain Girard has had a variety of assignments in military hospitals and Army headquarters. "One of the things we can always look forward to in the Army is a new assignment in a different locale," she said. "They come along every two or three years. And they help to make life interesting."

Captain Girard spent two war years in Hawaii, first as a chief dietician of a station hospital and later as nutrition consultant for the Middle Pacific area.

"Working in headquarters as a member of the staff concerned with planning an acceptable menu for combat troops was a challenge to the ingenuity of all of us," recalled the Captain turned coed. "It was one of the most stimulating experiences I ever had in quantity feeding."

Menu Planning Tough

Limitations imposed by wartime conditions made it necessary to plan the menu around the available shipping space assigned to food and the use of non-perishable food.

"Our chief problem was planning a menu that would provide the soldier with the nutritional elements he needed for combat efficiency. By the same token, we wanted it to be one which he would consume and enjoy," she said.

Captain Girard believes efforts by dietitians to improve food palatability have resulted in very satisfactory improvements in food service on the front lines in Korea.

Captain Girard expects to be assigned to a hospital after completing her work at the College. "Our work may not be the most glamorous," she said. "But it is important, and there's always the satisfaction of knowing that we are doing a service for our wonderful country."

Extension Supervisor

Paul S. Beaver, assistant professor of management in extension, has been named supervisor of management training. He has been serving as acting supervisor of management training since December 1951 and succeeds J. E. Kennedy, who resigned from the College to become manager of employee relations for the Pennsylvania Railroad.
