Mittmen Improve But Bow to Orange

Penn State's boxing team continues to improve—but so does the caliber of the opposition. Having absorbed their third straight loss at the hands of Eastern Intercollegiate champ Syracuse Saturday, the Lion mittmen have the unpleasant prospect of meeting NCAA champion Wisconsin this weekend.

Despite the 5-3 loss to the Orange in Syracuse, State performed well against the swarming, bull-rushing, stay-on-top tactics of the eleven-time EIBA champions.

Sam Marino, Adam Kois, and Bill Andresevic pounded out convincing victories, but Syracuse had too much over-all balance and depth to be headed off.

Marino Looks 'Good'

Any possibility of a Nittany tie was upset by the surprise scholastic ineligibility of Tony Flore, unbeaten 139 pounder. State thus forfeited this division to Syracuse, who could have won anyhow since they had EIBA champ John Granger primed for action.

Coach Eddie Sulkowski reported that Marino "looked good" en route to whipping Tom Coulter, 30-26. It was the Nittany captain's first win of the season. Kois, rugged 176 pounder, continued unbeaten with a no-contest, 30-24 victory over Bruce Yancey. It was his second win against one draw.

Too Many Champs

Andresevic confirmed the suspicion that if he could get past the first round without his eye, or an opponent's, being cut he would win. The Nittany heavyweight stopped Joe Perry, 30-28, to win his first. He has been first-round drawn twice.

EIBA champions proved too much for Nittanies Joe Reynolds and Steve Melmeck. Reynolds lost his second of the year when his bout with 132 pound champ Art Nelson was halted by the ref. Melmeck, making his initial start of the season, lost via a first round technical knockout to 156 pounder Bill Miller, EIBA champ in 1951.

State's two other boxers, Stan Engle and Dick Cameron, were unsuccessful for the third straight week. Engle lost on a technical knockout to Larry O'Sullivan in the third round of the 147 bout. Cameron went down 30-24 before the fists of Syracuse's rugged 165 pounder, Vince Rigolosi.

tany cagers controlled the backboards and consequently the scoring. Again, the tight zone defense proved too much for the visiting team. Much the same as last night's contest (?), the Bucknellians managed only 14 points in the first half.

'SHOES AND SHIPS AND SEALING WAX':

No feet will ever fit the shoes of Danny DeMarino, recently resigned assistant Dean of Men. According to legend, DeMarino, a star tackler for Nittany grid teams between 1937-38-39, wore a size 16 shoe. In fact, he is believed to be the only athlete ever to have his brogans sent one-in-a-box! . . .

This one gets bandied around the Rec Hall scoring table at wrestling meets which aren't too exciting: Once upon a time Bill Hoffman, former Registrar of the College, was acting as official timer of a wrestling match—just as he still does today. During a tense moment of a match Bill had his legs tenaciously wrapped around the wooden chair he was sitting on. He was having just as tough a bout as the guy actually competing. Suddenly the Nittany grappler straightened out his legs. Hoffman followed suit—except his "opponent's" legs broke and Hoffman and chair sprawled. It could only be scored as a default . . .

Penn's basketball star Ernie Beck, who twice in the last two years was greatly instrumental in defeating Penn State court teams, threatens to become the second player in Ivy League basketball history to win the individual scoring title three years in a row . . . Boston University continues to treat their Golden Greek Harry Agganis as if he were one of the original set of Mount Olympus dieties. Football quarterback Agganis, who two falls ago turned in one of the most brilliant performances ever seen on Beaver Field, has just had a scholarship named after him to the tune of $10,000. In addition, he has been named one of the first three members of the BU Hall of Fame. Say, a guy held in such esteem should't have any trouble this spring when he makes his bid for that rare leap—campus to big league baseball. Agganis snubbed all kinds of pro football greenbacks to sign with the Boston Red Sox . . .

If it works, it will be the greatest boon to baseball since Babe Ruth introduced the home run in the real Homeric sense. A rubber company has developed shoe cleats that can't lacerate and won't break off. The "spikes" are molded an integral part of the sole. Considerably lighter than the old steel, the latest invention is supposed to give greater speed and maintain good "dig-in". (advertisement). The safety factor should be great, if only the commercial end holds up . . .

Prediction: the NCAA will junk its new one-and-one foul rule next year. Statistics show that fouls have not been appreciably reduced by the new rule and that the point average per game has risen roughly 10 points. The rule seems only to have drawn out the length of the game in addition to making for laxity and mediocrity at the foul line . . . West Virginia will get its answers to the "new" one-platoon football earlier than most. The Mountaineers start spring drills March 17 so the 20 days grid practice allowed by the NCAA can be gotten in before the spring sports start. With only All-Some-thing end Paul Bischoff graduated, watch out for the team that won seven, including a 16-0 win over Pitt, and lost only two. Thirty-eight lettermen returning! . . .

The NAAU indoor track championships produced the closest thing to a triple dead-heat since horse racing's famous three-way tie several years ago. At the finish of the 600-yard run State's Ollie Sax, Mal Whitfield, and Reggie Pearman could hardly be separated by a knife blade. Whitfield nipped Sax by two inches, and Sax edged Pearman by two inches. Yet poor Reggie, the master of the thrilling stretch finish, didn't even get a vote for third. Two judges picked Whitfield the winner and one named Sax. Two judges called Ollie second and one gave the nod to Whitfield. And the two third place judges were split—one voting for Whitfield and one for Sax.
