

WRA, WSGA Nominee Blanks Available Today

Application blanks are available today through Wednesday for women wishing to run for offices in the Women's Student Government Association-Women's Recreation Association spring elections. Women may nominate themselves by filing the blanks before Wednesday in the Dean of Women's office, 105 Old Main, according to Sylvia Grube and Eleanor Gwynn, elections chairmen.

Seven WSGA and five WRA posts will be filled during the elections. Candidates for all positions are required to have a 1.5 all-College average and no major judicial record.

WSGA presidential candidates must be sixth semester students who have served at least one year in the Senate. The person receiving the second highest number of votes for the office will be secretary.

WRA President Requirements
Candidates for vice president must be fourth semester students at the time of the election. The runnerup will be junior senator. The office of senior senator is open to sixth semester women, and second or third semester students are eligible for treasurer and sophomore senator. No semester requirement has been set up for town senator.

WRA candidates for president must be sixth semester students who have served one year on the WRA executive board. The offices of vice-president and intramural chairman are open to fourth semester students. Second semester women may run for secretary-treasurer and assistant intramural chairman.

Primaries March 10
Nominees will be interviewed and screened by the election board of the organization in which they seek office.

Primary elections March 10 will limit the number competing for each position to two persons. Final elections will follow March 12.

Women will also vote for Quill Girl, a title conferred annually by Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism fraternity, upon the president of WSGA, WRA, or Mortar Board, senior women's honorary. Junior women will be polled by Mortar Board to obtain opinions as to which sixth semester women should be granted membership in the senior women's hat societies.

Forestry Ball Entries Due By March 2

Photographs will be accepted through March 2 for the Sweetheart of the Forestry Ball contest.

Any student or campus group may submit an entry. Photographs must be no smaller than 3 by 5 inches with the name, address, and a brief description of the candidate, plus the name of the person or organization sponsoring her.

Entries will be received either at the Student Union desk in Old Main or in the main office of the Forestry Building. The deadline for the contest is noon on March 2.

All photographs will be returned at the end of the contest. A board of judges will select three finalists from the photographs received. From these finalists, four judges will select the Sweetheart during the dance intermission.

All candidates for the Sweetheart title must be present at the Ball.

The Forestry Ball, a semi-formal dance sponsored annually by the Forestry Society, will be held March 13 in Recreation Hall. Jimmy Erb and his Penn State Blue Notes will supply the music. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to midnight.

The theme of the dance will be a national forest. The cost of the tickets is $2 per couple.

Cwens Favors 2d Hat Society Tapping Plan

Cwens, sophomore women's hat society, voted recently in favor of the compromise membership requirement for the proposed senior women's hat society.

The compromise states that no more than half the membership of the new group will have been members of Cwens or Chimes. A former proposal, still being considered, limits the membership to only women who have never been tapped by a hat society.

Cwens also voted to present two $50 scholarships to sophomore women on the basis of need and scholarship. Maude Strawn was appointed chairman of the scholarship committee. Janice Holm and Joyce Shusman will assist her.

A project to be held jointly with Alpha Phi Omega was discussed. Nani Ku and Nedaine Charnbury will represent Cwens on the planning committee.

Men Have Advantage In Midnight Movies

By DICK ANGLESTEIN

The female has the edge over the male in many things at Penn State including the almighty ratio, more tickets to the Mil Ball per person, better dormitories, and an automatic draft deferment, but the Penn State male can still cling to one bit of college life that is all his—the midnight movie.

The midnight movie, that step in maturing that comes somewhere between the Saturday afternoon serial and the national company convention, combines the better qualities of the two and provides a delightful evening of entertainment that is, if one doesn't want to see a movie.

The persons attending these movies are of various types with only one thing in mind, to let off steam. In the ticket line for one of these nocturnal adventures, which begins forming any time after 10:30 p.m., can be found every type of college student imaginable.

Most predominant is the psychology major (particularly the Freudian representative at a recent presentation) who merely goes to study the reactions of the others.

Next in line is the fraternity Joe who only wanted to step into the Corner Room for a cup of coffee after a date, but made the mistake of doing this just as the doors of the movie were opened.

Then too there is the college brain who just finished a session with the books and goes to prove to himself that he is intellectually superior to the others attending the show.

More interesting than either the people or the movie are the reactions the movie produces. A typical midnight movie is interrupted by more comments and catcalls than President Eisenhower's State of the Union address to a predominantly Republican Senate. Milton Berle would be wise to send representatives to these movies to borrow some of the witty comments that pervade the atmosphere instead of depending entirely on other comedians.

With Open Mind

fice later Sunday is explaining to Roams:

"Nothing to it, Roams. You see, I knew by that match from the gas station that someone who drove a car must be the culprit. And when you found that black cloth, I thought it must be from a uniform. Put them together and you have a chauffeur. Find the richest man in town and you have a chauffeur."

"Amazingly elementary," exclaimed Roams.

"Simple for me," Sunday said modestly.

Roams calls Sunday to him and whispers: "You know how much this guy made?"

"More than $560."

"Hmmm. You know, I was just thinking. We're only getting $40 a week. You know, if we played it right and sort of went from college to college . . ."

"But that's dishonest!"

"So?"

"So. When's U of P starting finals?"
