Coal Co., in Gallitzin Township on Oct. 26 and of stealing an adding machine from the same company on Nov. 19.

Paul Christoff, father of the dead girl, told police his son suffered a nervous breakdown in 1949, forcing him to leave school in his junior year. He was attending Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh.

The father told police that Jean often went to the woods hunting and trapping. He left home for as long as eight or nine days, and his absence at this time was not unusual. Police stressed that Jean was wanted only for questioning.

Miss Christoff had not officially withdrawn from the College. She did not register this semester, but was previously assigned to student teach in Hollidaysburg. She did not report there at the start of the semester.

She went to the home of an aunt, Mrs. Blair Kelley of Altoona, who called the College and asked that her grades be deferred.

Talent Show --

his tonette, William Rexrode, Cay Kauffman and Francis Taylor piped in on the chords by blowing on ten Pepsi Cola and three ginger ale bottles. The group also played "Sweet Violets" and "Merry Widow Waltz" and returned in blue diapers dressed as "bottle babies" to conclude their "concert" with "Daisy."

Celeste McDermott demonstrated what makes a chorine tick with a bouncing dance routine accentuated with high kicks and semi-acrobatics. Miss Crooks accompanied her on the piano.

In the final number Tony Marco, trumpet soloist, hepped it up with "Hot Canary" and "Man With a Horn." He was accompanied at the piano by Earl Ceily.

The Collegians quartet canceled their appearance when one of their members suffered an attack of laryngitis.

Winners were selected from five finalists chosen by judges from the amount of audience applause each act scored. Judges were William W. Hamilton, assistant professor of speech; Warren

COME TO CHURCH

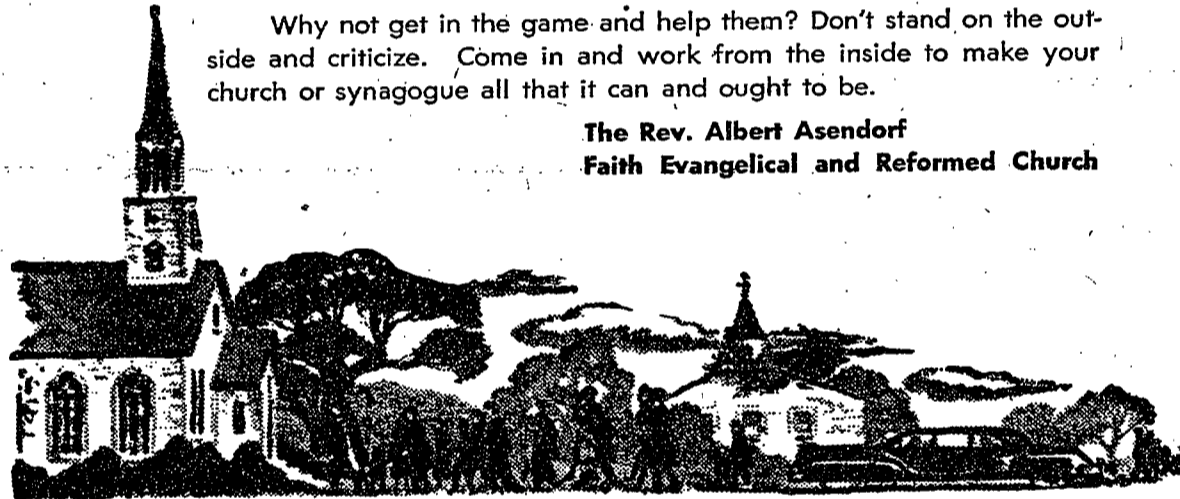

The desperate need of our atomic age is moral and spiritual. Unless there is moral regeneration throughout the world, there is little hope for humankind.

Both church and synagogue are trying to meet this need. They may not have all the answers. But they are in the game fighting—doing the best they can with what they have.

Why not get in the game and help them? Don't stand on the outside and criticize. Come in and work from the inside to make your church or synagogue all that it can and ought to be.
