Kay Kingsley and Phyllis Griffith were nominated for vice-president. Sarah DeVita and Elizabeth Tomlinson were nominated for the recording secretary's position. The only nomination for corresponding secretary was Sherry Kauffmann. The nominations for treasurer were Susan Crumley and Althea Rector.

Since the election code specifies that there must be at least two nominations for every office, nominations will again take place at the next meeting March 16.

The elections date was set for March 25. Eleanor Voyvodich, elections chairman, announced that only the presidential and vice-presidential offices must be filled by women who have served one year on the council. All other offices are open to any independent woman who has an all-College average of 1.5.

Elizabeth Johnson was appointed Leonides chairman of a banquet for officers of Leonides and the Association of Independent Men. The banquet would serve as a farewell dinner for the outgoing officers and would provide an opportunity for the leaders of both organizations to get acquainted. It will be held in April.

The council also voted to co-sponsor an informal dance with AIM immediately following the return from Easter vacation.

Vivian Peterson, president of Leonides, appointed Phyllis Yoho to represent the Council on the all-College Pan-American committee. Elizabeth Tomlinson was named to the Cabinet Projects Council. Hilda Hogeland is the other Leonides representative on CPC.

Scholarship Donors To Get Cherry Tree

What? Pay Japan $250 for a cherry tree?

That's right. Penn State students may contribute a $250 scholarship to the international and interdenominational university opening next month in Japan—and get a Japanese cherry tree in return.

A scholarship fund—well, that's different.

And so's this International Christian University at Mitaka, 17 miles from Tokyo, Japan. The first Christian graduate school of higher learning in Japan, ICU will have a truly cosmopolitan staff and student body.

Students of all lands, both men and women, irrespective of race, color or religious belief will be enrolled at the university. The 32 educators on its staff come from Japan, Canada, Switzerland, and America. Among the 11 American faculty members are scholars who taught formerly at Syracuse University; Ohio State University; Carleton College, Minnesota; Goshen College, Indiana; University of Illinois; Michigan State College; and the University of Washington.

Interchurch Student Fellowship is sponsoring the scholarship drive at Penn State. The campaign for contributions ends officially Sunday, but Edna Peterson, President of ICSF, emphasized that student donations will be received throughout the spring semester and forwarded to the ICU Foundation in New York City.

In spite of efforts to raise money at a square dance held last week at the Lutheran Student Association ICSF is still far from its $250 goal.

A joint meeting of Protestant church groups will be held at 6:45 p.m. Sunday at Westminster Foundation. Dr. Rose M. Cologne, associate professor and specialist in community adult education, will speak on Japan, and the offering will go for the scholarship fund.

The opening of the university next month will culminate a dream begun more than 50 years ago by Japanese, American and European Christian educators. Its actual building started five years ago, after the Japanese people had raised approximately $450,000 to purchase the 365-acre campus site at Mitaka.

ICU is unique in that it will have student dormitories for men and women. Almost no Japanese institution has any housing facilities for students. The university will develop a campus-centered life whereby faculty and students may share community life together informally.

While its broad purpose is to establish a university based on the common values of Christianity and democratic philosophy, the university intends specifically to prepare new leaders for a new Japan.

Its program calls for the establishment of graduate schools of education, citizenship, public affairs, and social work, together with an undergraduate college of liberal arts.

ICU is sponsored and partially supported nationally by funds from 14 major Protestant denominations in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, Great Britain, and Europe.
