race is led to believe they are as perfect as human beings can be. Individualism becomes extinct. From birth the child is prepared to accept the absurd theories of the dictators. To think for one's self is "crime stuff," Nelson said.

Under such a system it was taken for granted that man could escape mortality and animal frustration through laws of human nature and cultural growth. This has provoked resentment and violent reaction, Nelson said.

Nelson attacked the belief that the humanities have achieved a view of man's culture free from diversity. He traced the development of the nineteenth century attack on the abuses of industrial society by artists. They upheld the theory that molded into a theoretical work of art, society could be unified and a source of enduring delight. Those who fostered the "art for art's sake" movement abandoned society. The surrealist poets also strove to remedy the world through art.

"Size plays a large part in the integration of mankind," Nelson said.

"There is a distinction between two and two billion, but human beings have been unable to understand this."

Nelson pointed out the failure of Karl Marx because he could not realize that a given industrial society cannot be separated from a civil society.

Forum to Hear Stateswoman From Pakistan

Community Forum will hear Begum Ikramullah, Pakistan stateswoman, at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium.

Single reserved seat tickets, priced at $1.20, will be on sale tomorrow until lecture time at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

Speaking on "Pakistan—The New Democracy," the begum will trace the development of her free state and the growing threat of Communist aggression.

A member of Pakistan's Constituent Assembly and wife of the ambassador to Canada, Begum Ikramullah has also served as Pakistan's delegate to the United Nations.

The begum is a fluent speaker, both in English and her native tongue. She is heard frequently on the Pakistan radio and has broadcast several times over the British Broadcasting Company in London. An international traveler, the begum's lecture tour marks her second visit to the United States.

sorbed by the social sciences," Nelson said. If one surveys society he will find natural integrations. Men are bonded together in a mechanical solidarity.

Nelson said it is unlikely that we shall achieve homogeneity of wills because the peoples of the world are too busy at different jobs to realize the similarity of their work.

Laubach Wants CPC-Cabinet Coordination

At the meeting of the Cabinet Projects Council last night, John Laubach, All-College president, said he hoped All-College Cabinet and the council might be soon coordinated into a wholly efficient organization.

Laubach said the announcement that voting machines will appear in the spring elections came as a surprise since they have never been used at Penn State. Up to now students had to vote by written ballots.

Tom Pyle, member of the elections committee, reported the voting statistics of the freshman and sophomore elections last Fall.

Eight hundred fifty-three sophomores, or 32.69 per cent of the class turned out. Phi Epsilon Pi, Tau Phi Delta, and Alpha Tau Omega led the fraternities in the number of voters per house. Some 1277 freshmen voted, 44 per cent of the class.

The committee on the abolishing of senior finals reported that business letters and questionnaires were sent to 150 colleges in the country asking their solutions to this problem.

Irvin White, council president, announced the appointments of James Snyder as temporary chairman of the program committee; Robert Landis, chairman of the exchange committee; Marilyn

Alumni to Nominate Three Trustees Soon

Nominations for the election of three alumni to serve on the College Board of Trustees will begin when nomination ballots are received by alumni this week.

Each eligible alumnus will nominate three on each ballot. Those names receiving 50 or more votes will be placed on the final election ballots to be mailed on or about May 1.

Graduates of the College with not less than three years standing and those with advanced degrees will be eligible to vote under the rules governing the trustee elections.

Porter, chairman special events committee; and Warren Haffner, political party committee.

Veteran Benefits Are Tax Exempt

Payments to veterans for benefits administered by the Veterans Administration are tax-free and need not be reported in computing income tax, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has reminded veterans.

Dividends which veterans have received on their GI insurance policies are also exempt from taxation and need not be reported.

Among the tax-exempt payments are subsistence allowances to World War II veterans for training in schools, on farms, and on-the-job under the GI Bill and subsistence to disabled World War II and Korean veterans in training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act.
