

Initial Case Heard by AIM Judicial Board

The recently organized Association of Independent Men judicial board of review heard its first case Tuesday night and placed a student charged with disorderly conduct on board probation.

The charge resulted when the student created a disturbance in one of the campus fraternities and climaxed it by breaking a window. The offender was reported to the Campus Patrol, who referred the case to the Dean of Men's office.

The dean's office in turn passed the case on to the judicial board, which handles disciplinary action involving independent men, and the group ordered the student to pay for the replacement of the window and placed him on board probation.

When on board probation, the offender must report in person to the next two board meetings and is under surveillance by the board for the rest of the semester. Any further charges against the student during his probationary period will result in his being placed on probation in the Dean of Men's office or a recommendation to the dean for his suspension.

"One of the greatest problems the nation faces is that the Northeast and Northwest provinces are separated by 1200 miles," she said. "West Pakistan is largely a country of deserts where reclamation projects are underway to bring the land under cultivation. East Pakistan is a land of swamps. Here the water is being drained to make way for agriculture and new industries," the begum said.

Although Pakistan is chiefly an agricultural country, she must industrialize to provide employment for her people, she said. In the last five years textile and jute mills have been set up to export cotton goods and jute to the United States.

No Communism
The government has taken a hand in feeding the refugees. Each family is granted twelve acres, a small house, and oxen. Their ground is plowed by the government and they can borrow government owned tractors to farm.

"At present there is no Communism in Pakistan, but there is inflammable material that could fall easy prey to Communist propaganda," she said. Pakistan could become an important nation of the East because of her free Parliamentary government. But Kashmir must be settled if Pakistan is to hold her frustrated people together, she said.

ice to remain in bed for a day or two. This problem was presented during the wave of gripe that hit the campus last month, overcrowding the Infirmary and resulting in many students being sent to bed in their rooms. The committee has studied that problem and will make a recommendation for Senate consideration.

Changes in Curriculum
The Senate committee on courses of study has approved several suggestions for course and curriculum changes and will present them to the Senate in its committee report.

These include changes in requirements in the civil engineering and sanitary engineering curriculums, dropping of the American civilization curriculum, and the addition of two new courses relating to radio and television in the Journalism department.

The committee on rules includes in its report several changes in the College's undergraduate regulations. Most are of an administrative nature. One provides that the grade of "W" be issued with a grade indicative of the student's work to date in parenthesis after the "W" on a grade card when he withdraws from the College.

levels, particularly when fraternity cases are being presented.

Arthur Rosfeld, president of IFC, formally announced the opening of nominations for next year's IFC officers. They must be submitted in a letter addressed to Rosfeld and left at the Student Union desk in Old Main before 5 p.m. March 18, he said.

Elections, he said, would be held at the March 25 IFC meeting, and each house will have one ballot. Defeated candidates may not become candidates for any subsequent offices, he added.

Rosfeld also announced that in the near future, he, William Hirsch, IFC vice-president, Thomas Fleming, IFC secretary-treasurer, and Glenn Wiggins, chairman of the IFC Board of Control, would conduct a study of the various pledge training programs employed by fraternities at the College.

day, would you as a student be willing to stay on campus Thanksgiving day?

Only 30 indicated they would stay if a special event were scheduled; 77 students checked the "no" answer.

3. Do you believe cutting would be excessive on the day after Thanksgiving if (1) no sports event were on campus? (2) there were a sports event?

Answers to this question indicate that students believe cutting would be excessive. To the first half of the question, 101 answered "yes" and 6 "no." In the second part, there were 72 "yes" answers and 34 "no's."

4. Could you devise a more favorable calendar plan and preserve 15 full class weeks for each course? If so, students were asked to indicate their plan on the reverse side of the questionnaire.

To this question, 32 answered "yes" and 65 "no."

Laubach said that answers to this question showed that the students polled did not have an idea of how much work is involved in making a schedule. He also pointed out that the students submitting schedules made one for next year and did not indicate a calendar plan.

Actually, he explained, the committee on calendar has set up a calendar policy which can be used year after year. This was done so that the schedule would be known years in advance in order to schedule meetings. Many of these meetings are scheduled several years ahead of the meeting date.

Laubach said he will present the following suggestion to the student affairs committee:

Start orientation week on the Wednesday following Labor Day and start classes the following Thursday. Registration could be held Saturday and Monday through Wednesday of Orientation Week.
