Two Square Dances Planned for Tonight

Two local religious groups have planned square dances for tonight. The Newman Club will hold a round and square dance from 8 to 11 tonight in the Temporary Union Building. The dance is open to the public, and refreshments will be served.

Nominees for new officers of the Newman Club will attend the dance. Nominees for president are Edward Kittka and Dennis Donovan; for vice president, Thomas Ahearn; for secretary, Joan Ahearn and Catherine Carr; for treasurer, Antonette Grast and Patricia Nageotte. Elections will be held March 15.

Wesley Foundation will hold a "Circle and Square Jamboree" at 7:30 tonight in the foundation recreation hall.

The Rev. Robert Cressy from Swarthmore will speak on "Wisdom of God versus Wisdom of Man" to Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship at 7:30 tonight in 405 Old Main.

The Rev. Arthur L. Ruths will show and comment on colored slides on church symbols from 7 to 8 tonight to the Lutheran Students Association. Planned games in the fellowship hall of the Lutheran Student House will follow the talk.

At Hillel Foundation at 8 tonight, Rabbi Benjamin M. Kahn will speak on "Too Little and Too Late" at the Sabbath Eve Services.

WSSF Officer Speaks to PSCA

Money that foreign students receive through World Student Service Fund is appreciated as much as money received through the Federal government, according to David Levering, New York and Middle Atlantic secretary of WSSF.

Levering spoke to several campus groups including the Penn State Christian Association Wednesday night according to Joseph Haines, acting chairman of the Campus Chest. Levering praised Campus Chest, which raises money for WSSF and other charity and service organizations.

Haines said that about 35 colleges in this region will attend a WSSF convention in Philadelphia during the first week in May to share ideas on fund raising methods.

Barons Will Hold Exchange Events

Tentative plans for several exchange social events between independent men and women were discussed Tuesday night by members of Barons, Nittany-Pollock social organization, meeting with 13 independent women representing Leonides, independent women's organization; Philotes, independent women's social organization, and the floor counselor groups from women's dormitories.

Although no specific program has been set up, a succession of planned activities probably will begin in two weeks.

Eleven Barons, Squires, counselors, and advisors from the Nittany-Pollock area attended.

Barons is "rapidly reorganizing," Alan Reeves, president pro-tempore, said.

6 Schools to Meet At PSCA Cabin

With Open Mind

MARCH 23, 1955—The Penn State Daily Collegian ended 68 years of publication today with a final issue written by members of the American Legion. Legionnaires stormed the Daily C's offices clad in white robes and hoods, slayed two Daily C writers and injured four more.

"J. Trueblood Loyalo, one of the Legionnaires, released the following statement to the press:

"What we have done today we have done because it is the will of the people. It is unsafe to allow criticism of the country. Besides, they criticized the American Legion!"

MARCH 31, 1955 — William S. McElvey, tent-pole raiser for the Wilson Brothers traveling show, was dismissed from his job today because he refused to sign a loyalty oath. McElvey said: "I been raising tent-poles for more than 20 years; now I'm going to raise a little dickens."

APRIL 9, 1955—Members of the Wilson Brothers traveling show demand an open hearing for McElvey, and also request that a committee made up of carnival workers and customers review McElvey's loyalty. Both requests were turned down by the carnival's new owner—J. Trueblood Loyalo.

"Reds ain't got no rights," Loyalo said, waving an American flag.

(It may be pointed out at this point that the Wilson Brothers traveling show is the only one known to have American flags and Legion pennants waving from its tents instead of ordinary circus banners.)

APRIL 14, 1955—Great strike of carnival workers begins throughout U.S. Workers refuse to feed elephants, tent-pole raisers refuse to raise tent-poles, trapeze artists refuse to swing. Things are in one heck of a mess.

In Chicago a little girl complained to her mother about the strike. "I wanna see the circus, mommy."

"Dirty Red," her mother answered, slapping her down.

APRIL 15, 1955—J. Trueblood Loyalo announces the dismissal of Trudy, the trained seal, from his show. Says Loyalo:

"Trudy refused to play America on her horns—obviously she is un-American. No one—seal or not—shall be in my show unless they are loyal."

APRIL 20, 1955—Great Strike ends. Senator McCarthy and J. Trueblood Loyalo, in their intense interest in exposing circuses have become thrilled with them and have joined the Wilson show as a combined act. Without them, the loyalty legislation lacks teeth and the strike ends.

McCarthy has resigned his Senate post and has become a fire-eater in the show. Says he: "I have no trouble until I think about the fire being red."

J. Trueblood Loyalo has become a snake charmer. He goes into a huge pit of snakes and carresses and holds the snakes fearlessly. "There is only one trouble," says Wilson (again owner of the show). "We can't tell the snakes from Loyalo."
