

State-Army Dual Meet Battle Final

The Penn State-Army match set for 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Rec Hall will be the last opportunity this season for the Nittany Lion wrestling enthusiasts to witness not only one of the best teams in the wrestling circles but the last of Coach Charlie Speidel's formidable brother acts.

Penn State, which has carried potential brother acts throughout the years, will have their two-way battling performances broken up for at least one year because Co-captains Joe Lemyre and Don Frey are graduating seniors.

Like the Maryland dual meet, it was the brother act for both teams that was telling and exciting. And with the Karns brothers, Bob and Jim, Coach Lloyd Appleton will present another test for the Lion powerhouse.

Army Tough
Speidel figures there are upsets in the making and a rough going for his matmen against the West Pointers.

"We will have to take the early matches or else the meet will go down to the heavyweight class as it did before," Speidel said.

"Army is rough," he continued. "Had it been earlier in the season, our boys could have taken them in a breeze because they were hampered with injuries. But now with a solid team," he explained, "there will be trouble."

Lemyre vs. Paulekas
There is certainly no soft spot in the Army lineup. In fact, three of Appleton's wrestlers fought their way into the semi-finals of the Eastern Intercollegiate wrestling tournament last year and one—Al Paulekas—turned out to be champion in his 177 class.

Paulekas may face Joe Lemyre, who was EIWA champion in the 167 class. Should Lemyre go into the Easterns in the lighthheavy class which he has wrestled all season, this match will not only give the fans a championship battle but two men who are likely to meet again at Princeton for the EIWA championship match.

IC4A Runner-up

Penn State's 22½ points in the 1953 IC4A indoor track and field championships exceeded even its title-winning total of 1942.

Head Fate of '53 Gridders

Don Malinak and Tony Rados were elected co-captains of the 1953 Lion gridders at a meeting of the players Wednesday.

Malinak was an outstanding defensive star for the Nittany eleven during the past season, although he did play some time on offense.

Rados was the number-one quarterback for the team last season. Tony set a Penn State record for number of completed passes in a season last year despite the fact that he had an injured knee.

Mittmen to Present New Combination for Cadets

In an effort to come up with a winning combination, Penn State boxing Coach Eddie Sulkowski has shuffled his lineup slightly for tomorrow's dual match with Army's rugged mitt team.

Stan Engle will be reinserted into the lineup at 147 pounds, and Steve Melmeck and Hank Arnold will move up a weight to 156 and 165, respectively.

Otherwise the Lions will lead with Sam Marino, 125; Sam Butler, 132; Tony Flore, 139; Adam Kois, 176; and Bill Andresevic, heavyweight.

Engle, brought from the ranks of intramural champions last December, lost his first three bouts of the season at 147, then sat out the Wisconsin and Virginia matches while Melmeck handled his job.

Like Engle, Melmeck has an 0-3 record with losses at 156 against Syracuse and at 147 to Wisconsin and Virginia.

State's other moveup, Hank Arnold (165), will be seeking his second win of the season. He has lost three. Lanky Hank won the first varsity bout of his career in the season opener against Maryland but since has found rough going in losing to Michigan State, Wisconsin, and Virginia opponents.

This lineup change was necessitated by the internal ear injury suffered by regular 165 pounder Dick Cameron. Cameron had an 0-4 record against what usually was the opposition's ace. Last week junior Dick Ahern filled in for Cameron.

As to the remainder of the Nittanies going against Army, four will get their final dual meet prior to next week's attempts at Eastern Intercollegiate championships at Syracuse, N.Y.

Two, Flore and Kois, are unbeaten all season, and two others, Marino and Andresevic, are undefeated in EIBA circles.

State's other starter, Butler, at 132 pounds, will be swinging for his first victory of the season. Sam lost to a Marylander in the opener, watched the next two matches, and then lost to good Wisconsin and Virginia opponents.
