

Study Changes Get Approval by Senate

Two new degrees, changes in undergraduate regulations, and changes in courses of study were approved by the College Senate at its meeting Thursday.

The degrees of Bachelor of Architecture and Bachelor of Architectural Engineering must be approved by the College Board of Trustees before being officially established. The degrees had been proposed to differentiate between the five year architecture students and the four year engineering students who obtain a B.S. degree.

Student Writers Invited to See Plays Produced

Two liberal arts students have been invited to Greensboro, N.C., to see their prize-winning plays produced March 17 at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

Scripts of the two students, Anne Bullock, eighth semester arts and letters major, and Alice Doles, graduate student in arts and letters, were chosen to be produced as a part of the Arts Festival program at Greensboro. Each year the university selects three outstanding plays written by students in Eastern colleges and universities for this honor.

Miss Bullock's play, "The Shattered Crystal," is centered around an elderly gin addict who ignores the world around her to live in the days of her youth.

The college story by Miss Doles, "Tempest in a Test Tube," concerns a student chemist who bores his girl friend with descriptions of his chemistry experiments.

Warren S. Smith, associate professor of dramatics, will accompany Miss Bullock and Miss Doles to Greensboro.

Ag Leaders To Be Noted

The first Ag Hill Achievement Day to recognize leaders in agricultural activities will be held March 25 in Schwab Auditorium, Boyd Wolff, publicity chairman, has announced.

During the program, "Mr. Ag," selected on the basis of activities, will be announced, and the winner of the first Paul R. Guldin Agricultural Speaking Contest will be honored. The finals for the contest will be held March 24.

Ten recipients of scholarships totaling $1050 for the spring semester will also be recognized. Managers of the agriculture shows, members of judging teams, editors of the Ag Hill Breeze and the Penn State Farmer, and Agriculture Student Council officers will be among those honored.

Applications Due For Draft Exams

Applications for the April 23 Selective Service Qualification Test must be postmarked not later than midnight Monday, the national headquarters of Selective Service has reminded students.

Applications for the test, the last to be administered during this academic year, may be obtained at the local draft board in Bellefonte.

12 Withdrawals Reported

Twelve withdrawals from the College were reported in the March 6 Faculty Bulletin. Reasons given were personal 9, transferring 1, financial 1, and employment 1.

WD Applications To Begin Monday

Students who will be seniors next semester may apply for rooms in the West Dormitories 7 to 9 p.m. Monday in 108 Old Main.

The first 120 applicants with an All-College average of 1.0 or better will be accepted.

Payment of the $35 room and key deposit automatically binds the applicant to live in the College dormitories for the next full school year if he enrolls in the College, Allen C. St. Clair, acting director of housing, announced.

Students who wish to room together should apply together, St. Clair said.

Dining Hall Service OK — Gardecki

Pollock food problems are being adequately handled, Joseph Gardecki, Pollock Council president, said yesterday, after the council met with Bruce Robertson, food supervisor for the Nittany dining hall.

The serving of soup and sandwiches at noon on Mondays and Thursdays should no longer be a problem, Gardecki said. The combination has been continued despite an earlier statement by Robertson to the contrary. Because menus are planned weeks in advance, Robertson continued serving the meal. It was served on Monday without trouble, Robertson said. He stated he felt certain there would be no further trouble with the combination.

The problem of long lines, which set off a small uprising in the Pollock dining hall earlier in the semester, has been alleviated, Gardecki said. He explained that many students have moved to the West Dorms.

The problem arose because one line instead of the usual two was used in the dining hall at the start of the year because of the decrease in students. The ratio of students to lines was out of proportion some students contended. This is no longer true, Gardecki stated.

Further meetings are anticipated, Gardecki said. He said he felt the meeting was a success, in that it helped bring College officials closer to students and their problems.

Changes in four undergraduate regulations approved by the Senate call for the reporting of a grade of W for courses dropped after the first four weeks of a semester or the first one-sixth of a summer session and for all courses of a student who withdraws from the College at any time during the semester.

Rule on Course Change
The approved report also provides that a grade representing the quality of the student's work to the time of his withdrawal be entered on the grade card in parenthesis after the grade of W.

Another change provides that parental permission for a student to change courses be presented to the student's dean and then forwarded with the change of curriculum petition to the dean of admissions. Under another rule change, official withdrawal forms must be signed by the dean of men or the dean of women and the dean of the student's school.

Add New Courses
A curriculum change approved by the Senate rearranged the junior and senior years of Civil and Sanitary Engineering majors in dropping C.E. 91 and adding C.E. 24 and E. Comp. 16 to the curriculum. The American civilization curriculum will be dropped July 1.

A course in the writing of technical reports, E. Comp. 16, will be reactivated to go into effect for the coming fall semester.

Two new courses were added in the Journalism department: Journ. 92 (Radio and Television News) and Journ. 94 (Radio and Television Advertising). The Senate dropped Journ. 91 and 100.

Late Fee Payments

Students who have not paid their spring semester fees are now subject to a $10 late payment penalty, David C. Hogan, bursar, said yesterday. Fees were collected Feb. 19-20.

Hogan urged delinquent students to pay their fees as soon as possible to avoid suspension from the College.

Chapel to Hear Bennett; Service to Be Broadcast

Dr. John C. Bennett, professor of Christian theology and ethics at Union Theological Seminary, will speak on "Judgment and Promises" at Chapel, 11 a.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium.

The service will be broadcast over WMAJ, and people will be admitted to the auditorium after 10:50 only at stated intervals.

Dr. Bennett, a native of Ontario, Canada, received his A.B. degree cum laude from Williams College, Mass.; his B.A. in theology from Oxford University, England; his B.D. magna cum laude, from Union Theological Seminary, and his S.T.M., summa cum laude, from Union. He is an ordained Congregational minister.

Studies Weapon Results
During the summer of 1950, Dr. Bennett flew to Japan at the invitation of the United Church of Christ in Japan and the National Christian Council to "interpret the theological basis for social responsibility." Three of Dr. Bennett's books have been translated into Japanese.

He was also engaged in the study of the moral implication of (Continued on page eight)

Radio Station To Get News From Collegian

Staff members of The Daily Collegian will compile, write, and edit news for the planned campus FM radio station.

In making the announcement, David Pellnitz, editor, said the radio news will be under the direction of a senior board wire and radio news editor who will have a daily staff of six.

Present plans of the radio committee call for 20 or 25 minutes of local, national, and sports news during the broadcast day. The broadcast day, according to David R. Mackey, member of the radio committee and an assistant professor of speech, will probably be from 8 to 10 or 11 p.m. daily.

Collegian Has Facilities

The actual hours of broadcasting will be determined from a proposed survey designed to find out which listening hours are most acceptable to the students.

The Daily Collegian was selected as the news gathering agency because it has the facilities and it would be foolish to duplicate them, Mackey said.

Serving under the radio news editor will be a staff member to handle local news, one for Associated Press wire news, and one for sports news, Pellnitz said.

A senior board assistant sports editor will write and edit the sports news. The AP wire news will be handled by the junior board night wire editor and the local and campus news by the junior board night copy editor.

Test To Check Plans

No plans have been made as to who will read the radio news on the air Mackey said. It could be either a member of the radio station or the newspaper staff, or a combination of the two.

This plan, along with most of the radio station plans, is still in the tentative stage and is awaiting tests of the station.

These tests, to be run after completion of the station, are scheduled for the spring before the end of the present semester.

The 20 minutes of news is tentatively scheduled to be split between two newscasts, one of 15 minutes and the other 5. The 15-minute broadcast may be held near the beginning of the broadcast evening and will have five minutes each of local, national, and sports news.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, chairman of the President's radio committee, has said that the application for a permit to build the station will be mailed on or before Monday.

Vets Club to Form New Committees

Several committees will be formed by the Penn State Veterans Club at 7:30 p.m. Monday in 109 Agriculture.

The committees will include a rehabilitation and service committee, a visiting committee, a publicity and advertising committee, an Americanism committee, a social committee, and a membership committee.

A parliamentarian of the club will also be elected. Andrew S. Korim, president, said membership cards may be distributed.

Hearing Set Tuesday For Accident Case

A public hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday for Walter Sachs, who was arrested Saturday on charges of driving while intoxicated, Justice of the Peace Guy G. Mills has announced.

Sachs, an eighth semester arts and letters major, was arrested by borough police after his automobile crashed head on into a parked car owned by Roland Singer, graduate student in psychology. He was released on $300 bail.

Wherry Named As Adviser To Hat Group

Ralph H. Wherry, associate professor of economics, has been selected by Skull and Bones, senior men's hat society, as the organization's adviser. Although the society has operated without an adviser in the past, the new charter, issued by Hat Society Council, requires an adviser for such a campus organization.

Lincoln Warrell, president, said letters were sent to 30 colleges and universities dealing with the idea of forming a national Skull and Bones Hat Society. The results of these letters are not presently known.

Warrell announced that elections of new members will be in the future. The deadline for applications will be announced later.

The group donated $10 to the Penn State Student Scholarship fund in answer to the request for donations made by Hat Society Council.

Perkins Asks Greeks to Meet

Harold W. Perkins, assistant dean of men, has asked all fraternity and sorority social chairmen who are attending the Sunday outing and conference at the Penn State Christian Association cabin to meet at 4:30 p.m. Sunday behind Old Main for transportation.

The combination buffet supper and conference will feature a discussion of College policies regarding social functions and talk about social planning and group recreation. The program will be under the direction of Perkins, Mary E. Brewer, assistant to the dean of women, and Harold B. White Jr., assistant professor of physical education.

Blue Key Raises $37.50 for Chest

Blue Key hat society has donated $25 to the Campus Chest and aided in raising $12.50 more for the Chest, according to Joseph Haines, acting Chest chairman.

The hat society arranged for the showing of films of the last Pitt-Penn State football game. Proceeds from the showing were given to Campus Chest. Richard Crafton, hat society chairman in charge of the showing, said that about 50 attended the motion picture. James J. O'Hara, assistant professor of physical education, narrated for the showing.

Today Is Deadline For Cap, Gown Deposit

Today is the last day June graduates who will be student teaching the last eight weeks of the semester may sign up for their caps and gowns at the Athletic Store. The deposit for caps and gowns is $5. Invitations and announcements, costing 10 cents each, may be ordered at the Student Union desk in Old Main before noon.
