

Forestry Queen Reigns Tonight

A loving cup will be presented to the Sweetheart of the Forestry Ball tonight when she is selected from three finalists at the semi-formal dance in Recreation Hall.

Joan Ziegler, second semester music education major sponsored by Sigma Chi; Gail Fromer, fourth semester home economics major sponsored by Alpha Chi Rho; and Rosey Whetstone, a Bedford High School senior sponsored by Lloyd Arms, have been selected to compete for the title.

The faculty at Mont Alto, a branch of the Pennsylvania State Forest School, and the Forestry Society selected the finalists. Victory figurines will be awarded to the runnersup.

Photographs On Display

The Sweetheart will be selected by audience applause during intermission.

Richard Stanley, Agriculture Student Council president; John Laubach, All-College president; and Arthur Rosfeld, Interfraternity Council president, will judge the applause. Gene Love, an agricultural education graduate student, will be master of ceremonies.

Photographs of the finalists and the awards are on display in the Western Union Office window.

Evergreens will decorate the entrance and the west end of Rec Hall in accordance with the theme, "A National Forest."

Music by Blue Notes

A mascot of the Forest Service, "Smoky Bear," an eight foot cut-out, will stand inside the front door. A fire tower will be in the middle of the dance floor. The ticket booths will represent guard stations.

Jim Erb and the Penn State Blue Notes will provide music for the dance, which will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Tickets selling for $2 a couple may be purchased at the Student Union desk in Old Main or from members of the Forestry Society, which sponsors the dance annually. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Purim Carnival Proceeds to Go To UJA Drive

Candidates for king and queen of the Purim Carnival, to be held 7:30 p.m. to midnight tomorrow at Hillel Foundation, have been announced.

The carnival is an annual fund raising project for the United Jewish Appeal. This year's goal has been set at $4200. Selection of the king and queen will be determined by the amount of contributions donated in their behalf.

Fraternity nominees for king are Theodore Matlow, Zeta Beta Tau; Stuart Allen, Phi Sigma Delta; Richard Altman, Beta Sigma Rho; Barton Burke, Alpha Epsilon Pi; and Barton Mann, Sigma Alpha Mu.

Queen contestants are Judith Lippman, Phi Sigma Sigma; Hannah Rutenberg, Sigma Delta Tau; Edith Brooks, Alpha Epsilon Phi; and Rose Brein, independent.

The king and queen will receive loving cups, and similar cups will be awarded sororities and fraternities producing the best decorated and most original booths. The group collecting the most donations for the UJA drive will also be given a loving cup.

Phi Sigma Sigma will be in charge of refreshments for the carnival, and independent students will provide music for dancing. Three booth themes that have been disclosed are a "Sing Sister Sing" booth, casino, and an "Over and Under" booth.

The Osier Cage

Nothing like being a senior. Yes, sir, after three solid years of book larnin' one sure is smart. Take the example of one senior who went through the following true experiences.

When he first got on campus, like everyone else, he was confused with the geographical layout. Just couldn't seem to remember where all the buildings are, you know. But there was one thing of which he was really certain—the location of the girls' dorms, naturally.

Why, there was the time he even took it upon himself to help out some poor fellow who was in the wrong dorm.

Standing in the phone line in front of our hero, a fellow asked for Simmons.

"Hey, buddy," said our friend helpfully, "This isn't Simmons, this is McElwain."

Surprised for a second, the fellow hung up the phone and turned around.

"What do you mean?" he said. "Why, this is Simmons!"

"Oh, no it's not," countered our friend, hereinafter known as Senior Sam. "I have a date in McElwain, and I ought to know what dorm I'm in."

"I tell you this is Simmons!" was the piqued retort.

Not to be outdone, Senior Sam (a sophomore at the time) pointed to the hostess behind the desk. "Ask her. Aren't we in McElwain?"

"This," she answered in calm dignity, "is Simmons. McElwain is the big brick building immediately above this."

Two years pass, and Senior Sam becomes a senior.

Last month Senior Sam had an early morning date to go horseback riding. Five minutes late, he walked into the girls' dorm.

"—McElwain, please," he said softly into the phone.

"I'll be right down," was the sweet greeting of the coed.

Five minutes passed, ten, 15, then 20.

"This isn't like her," he thought.

"I'll give her five minutes more, and if she doesn't come, the heck with her!"

The five minutes passed quickly, and Senior Sam stalked out of the dorm as dignified as possible after slipping with his highly polished boots on the highly polished floor.

As he passed the hostess, he said, just to show his displeasure at the whole affair, "This IS McElwain, isn't it!"

"This," she answered in calm dignity, "is Simmons. McElwain is the big brick—"

"I know," he cut in icily. "I'm a senior!"
