

Petitgout Named Judicial Head

Mary Petitgout, sixth semester home economics major, was appointed Judicial chairman last night by Women's Student Government Association Senate. Miss Petitgout will succeed Irene Taylor,

Scholarship Drive Nets $77 for ICU

Contributions from four local Protestant student groups during the past week bring the Interchurch Student Fellowship scholarship fund for International Christian University to $77.36. Westminster Foundation, Wesley Foundation, Roger Williams Fellowship, and the Young Friends have each contributed the offering of one Sunday night to the fund.

The bulk of the money was obtained from the offering at an inter-denominational worship service held at the Westminster Foundation March 8. The proceeds from ICSF's midwinter square dance and several anonymous donations made up the remainder of the amount.

ICU is an international, interracial, interdenominational college which will open next month in Mitaka, 17 miles from Tokyo, Japan. Although the basic purpose of the college is to emphasize the values of Christianity and democratic philosophy, its essential purpose at the moment is to train new leaders for Japan.

If the College reaches the $250 goal set for the fund, which will bear its name, a cherry tree will be sent from Japan to be planted in the vicinity of Simmons and McElwain halls.

Contributions for the scholarship will be accepted throughout the spring semester. Edna Peterson, president of ICSF, announced. Donations may be made to Miss Peterson.

The program of ICU is to establish graduate schools of education, citizenship, public affairs, and social work, plus an undergraduate college of liberal arts.

Fourteen major Protestant denominations in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, Great Britain, and continental Europe are sponsoring and supporting ICU.

Members of Gamma Pi Epsilon, women's national pre-medical society, will elect officers at their meeting at 7 tonight in McElwain Hall study lounge.

at Easter time to look your best, Shop State College like all the rest.

present chairman of the board. Four sophomore women will be appointed to the Judicial board when Senate meets next Wednesday. At that time members of next year's freshman regulations board will be named. Second semester women with 1.5 All-College averages and no major judicial record are eligible for appointment.

A retreat for outgoing and newly elected women's government officers will be held in Grange playroom before WSGA spring convocation. Barbara Deniston is retreat chairman.

Handbook Chairman Advised
A definite date for the convocation, at which new WSGA officers will be installed, has not been set. Senate decided to hold the meeting in a dormitory lounge, with a guest speaker from campus.

Senate recommended that Patricia Ellis, WSGA handbook revisions chairman, consult with Richard Rau, Student Handbook chairman, in planning the booklet, so that contradictions in the two publications are avoided.

Delegates Retained
A recommendation that the handbook include a revision stating that special hours granted to women be announced at least one week in advance was approved.

In a discussion on whether to set up a definite policy regarding status of delegates to be sent to conventions, Senate decided to let each new Senate formulate its own policies. Members voted to retain Joan Hutchon, retiring president, and Nancy D. White, incoming president, as delegates to the Intercollegiate Association of Women Students convention, April 1 at Ohio State.

Barons Will Hold 2 Lounge Parties

Lounge parties will be held from 6:30 to 8 tonight in McElwain and Thompson halls. The lounge parties are sponsored by the Barons, Nittany-Pollock social organization, and the women's living units.

Men from Pollock Dormitories 1 and 2 and Nittany Dorms 21, 22 and 23 and women from McElwain and Thompson halls will participate in these first parties. Dancing and refreshments will be included in the program.

The name of "lounge parties" has replaced that of "mixers," Alan Reeve, president pro tempore of the Barons, announced.

Lounge parties are tentatively scheduled for next Thursday in Simmons and McAllister halls.

Coeds Alarmed About Required Gym Suit Length

Numerous coeds frantically dashed to their rooms yesterday and grabbed for a ruler.

The cause for alarm—the physical education instructors have announced that gym uniforms should be no shorter than seven inches above the knees! This, it seems, is a standard requirement for a tennis tunic, the dress worn in women's gym classes.

The conservative class whose skirts reached their knobby knees gloated, "Aren't we smart." But the daring gals who had shortened their suits exchanged rather amazed expressions.

But the poor girls who, in the process of shortening their skirts, had cut off the excess material were particularly disturbed by the announcement.

Their problem: how do we lengthen 'em?

A possible solution: sew lace around the bottom!

Capitol Tour Registration Will End at Noon Today

Noon today will end registration for the "Meet Your Government Seminar," sponsored by the Penn State Christian Association and the Department of Political Science.

The Washington D.C. tour, which will be Sunday through Tuesday, is being held to give students opportunity to observe some processes of federal government and to hear leading speakers discuss current issues.

A $5 registration fee and a $2 hotel reservation deposit must be paid at the PSCA office, 304 Old Main. No refunds can be made.

Interviews and speeches have been arranged with Marquis Childs, Washington Post columnist; Eugene Meyers, publisher and owner of the Washington Post; Arthur Flemming, member of the President's committee on reorganization of the government (other committee members are President Milton S. Eisenhower and John D. Rockefeller); and Thomas Keane, a religion lobbyist recently returned from India.

Other plans for the tour include visits to the State Department, the Pan American building, the Department of Interior, the Supreme Court, the National Labor Relations Board, the Washington Post, a foreign embassy (probably Greek), Congress, and the Congressional Library.

Each student must pay his own expenses, which will total about $30.

Busses will leave Old Main at 6:30 a.m. Sunday and leave Washington for State College 5 p.m. Tuesday.
