Rating Tests Sent to Profs In LA School

Copies of the faculty-evaluation test and letters of explanation have been delivered to the instructors of the liberal arts school, Richard Kirschner, chairman of the evaluation committee, has announced.

The evaluation, which is sponsored by the Liberal Arts Student Council, is to be purely on a voluntary basis. The letter explains that the evaluation is to be administered at the discretion of the instructor.

The council suggests that the instructor give out the evaluation sheets to his class 20 minutes before the end of the period and then leave the room. An appointed student should collect the sheets, place them in an envelope and deliver it to the instructor's mail box. The evaluations should be examined by no one except the instructor. After examining the sheets, the instructor will then dispose of them.

Any instructor interested in administering the evaluation should indicate on the council's letter the number of evaluation forms he needs and give the letter to the department secretary.
