

Ag Hill to Honor Contest Winners

The winners of the Mr. Ag Contest and the first Paul R. Guldin Agriculture Speaking Contest will be among those honored at the first Ag Hill Achievement Day at 7 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

Mr. Ag will be an agriculture senior selected from 1400 students by a faculty committee on the basis of activities. Five agriculture undergraduates competed in the finals for the speaking contest last night. First and second place winners will be presented $50 and a gold medal and $25 and a silver medal during the Achievement Day program, which will be open to the public.

LA Lecture To Feature Oregon Prof

Dr. R. F. Arragon, professor of history at Reed College, Portland, Oregon, will present the third in the series of Liberal Arts lectures at 8 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks.

The subject, "Total Vision in the Humanities," was chosen in keeping with the general theme of the series this year which deals with the problems of integration and mutual understanding between the various fields of science and learning.

Experiments by Dr. Arragon in bringing together the themes and skills of the various humanistic studies such as literature, history, and art, were recently reviewed in an article in the Saturday Evening Post.

Dr. Arragon took his first degrees at Northwestern University and his doctorate at Harvard. At present he is on leave of absence from Reed College to serve as visiting professor at Haverford College.

Dr. Arragon is the author of "Transition from the Ancient and the Medieval World" and "Technique of Group Discussions."

Dr. Brice Harris, professor and head of the Department of English Literature, will preside at the lecture. The lecture is open to the public.

Ag Council Vetoes Fee Consolidation

The Agriculture Student Council voted last night to oppose the proposed consolidation of fees because of its effects on the Penn State Farmer, a council publication.

At present 75 cents is collected by the School of Agriculture each semester. Fifty cents goes to the Farmer and 25 cents to extra-curricular activities.

Boyd Wolff, former editor of the Farmer, explained that approximately $1700 is now collected to help finance the Farmer's publication. He said about $3000 is received from advertising.

Unless the consolidated fee was high enough to support the Farmer, Wolff said, it would be necessary to sell subscription and individual copies.

Richard Stanley, council president, said the other school councils do not feel the need for the money which they would receive if the fee were consolidated, because they do not sponsor as many activities as does Ag council.

Stanley appointed Fred Seipt, James Hay, and William Brooks to the student faculty rating committee.

AIM to Set Nomination, Vote Dates

The dates of the opening and closing of nominations for Association of Independent Men officers for the coming year and the election date will be announced at a meeting of the AIM Board of governors at 7 tonight in 102 Willard.

William Shifflett, president of AIM, said the election date will probably be sometime near the end of April.

Shifflett said the board will also consider changes in the present elections committee. The alterations will enable it to operate more smoothly and efficiently and remove the causes of present criticism of it, he said.

The elections committee, along with directing the elections, is responsible for the screening of the nominees for AIM offices to determine if they meet qualifications. It also prepares and presents the candidates to the AIM board.

The board will also hear a report on the proposed participation of independents in Spring Week activities from Andrew Jaros, chairman of the AIM Spring Week committee.

Cattle Drawings Set for Tomorrow

Drawings for cattle to be shown in the 1953 Dairy Exposition will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 117 Dairy.

Any student may participate in the show. Breeding managers will serve as assistants. The facilities of the new barns have been made available, and transportation to and from the barns will be provided by the show committee.

A fitting and showing demonstration will be held April 9. A washing and clipping demonstration will be held April 26. The exposition will be May 9.

Eisenhower to Speak Tonight in Philadelphia

President Milton S. Eisenhower will present his personal views on current problems in the field of national agricultural administration to a joint meeting of the Franklin Institute and the Philadelphia Society for Promoting Agriculture tonight in Philadelphia.

Nine Candidates To Seek IFC Offices Tonight

Interfraternity Council officers will be elected at 7:30 tonight in 217 Electrical Engineering. Each fraternity which has a representative present will be allowed one vote, Arthur Rosfeld, president of the council, has announced.

Candidates for president are Thomas Schott of Phi Gamma Delta, ninth semester architectural engineering major; and Richard Gibbs of Chi Phi, sixth semester industrial engineering major.

Vice presidential candidates are Bruce Nichols of Delta Tau Delta, sixth semester mechanical engineering major; Edwin Kohn of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, fifth semester industrial engineering major; and John Flanagan of Sigma Chi, seventh semester agricultural education major.

Seeking the secretary-treasurer post are Richard Altmann of Beta Sigma Rho, sixth semester arts and letters major; Alan McChesney of Phi Kappa Sigma, eighth semester architecture major; Merice Nelles of Alpha Tau Omega, sixth semester bacteriology major; and George Richards of Sigma Nu, sixth semester commerce major.

Nominations for the offices were closed Thursday. Nomination was by self-nomination. The candidates introduced themselves and explained their aims and qualifications at the council meeting Thursday night.

Each fraternity must have a representative present in order to cast their vote, Rosfeld said. Candidates must receive a majority of the votes cast to be elected, he added. The new officers will be installed at the IFC-Panhellenic Council Banquet to be held during Greek Week.

The present officers of IFC are: president—Arthur Rosfeld of Phi Delta Theta, vice president—William Hirsch of Tau Kappa Epsilon, and secretary-treasurer—Thomas Fleming of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Trustees to Meet

The March meeting of the executive committee of the College Board of Trustees will be held Friday in the board room, 201 Old Main.

The next meeting of the full Board of Trustees is scheduled for June.

Plans Made To Improve Scholarship

Plans for bettering student-adviser relationships have been adopted by Honor Society Council as its specific project for furthering Penn State scholarship.

The Council has decided that by improving the relationship between advisers and students, a mutual feeling of trust and friendship will result to better the student's attitude toward his studies and his proper vocation. The council will study the adviser plans now in use in the different schools to compile a composite plan for use throughout the College.

In obtaining this information, council members will ask deans and representatives of their schools such questions as: Who assigns advisers and advisees? How many advisees does each adviser get? Do the advisers get to know their advisees other than in scheduling activities and can they get adequate information on the students and their work?

The deans will also be asked if they would be willing to share their adviser plans with the other schools at the College.

Other suggestions for furthering scholarship that the council is studying are the offering of rewards to make scholarship more desirable, the tutoring of students by honor society members in various fields, and a system of big brother and big sister advice in each school.

Members of the council noted that the deans of the schools are interested in the project and referred them to books and other members of the staff that could help them.

The final winners were selected from 25 entries in the preliminaries Monday night. They are Samuel Curtis, Edgar Fehnel, Conrad Kresge, Lawrence Hart, and Robert J. Miller.

Scholarships Recognized

The contest awards, to be presented annually, have been provided by Mrs. Paul R. Guldin. Contest judges were Dr. Russell B. Dickerson, vice dean of the School of Agriculture; Dr. Earl M. Kesler, assistant professor of dairy husbandry; and Joseph F. O'Brien, professor of public speaking.

During the program ten recipients of agriculture scholarships totaling $1050 for the spring semester will also be recognized.

Managers of Ag Hill shows, members of judging teams, publications editors, members of All-College Cabinet and the Agriculture Student Council, presidents of the four agricultural fraternities, and heads of agricultural organizations and societies will also be honored.

Haggerty To Speak

Dr. John B. Haggerty, former director of the Office of Foreign Relations, U.S. Department of Agriculture, will speak.

Dr. Haggerty graduated from Montana State College and received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin. He was employed in the USDA Bureau of Agriculture Economics. While working for the Office of Foreign Relations he spent four years in Yugoslavia.

Master of ceremonies for the program will be Paul H. Margolf, professor of poultry husbandry, and William Waters, Coaly Society president.

Election Group to Meet

The All-College elections committee will meet at 7 tonight in 102 Willard, Ronald Thorpe, chairman, announced.

Campus, Town Personalities Get Roasting on WSDX-TV

By ROBERT LANDIS

Student, faculty, administration, and borough leaders were roundly lampooned last night by members of Sigma Delta Chi, journalistic fraternity, at their annual Gridiron Banquet at the Nittany Lion Inn.

The lampooning took the form of WSDX-TV skits served between courses to upset the stomachs of those attending. The skits, written by Marshall Donley and Donald Lambert, journalism majors, roasted students, faculty, and townspeople alike with fiendish delight.

Prexy Eisenhower was presented a Stevenson button with "the hope he would right the injustice he did the Democratic presidential candidate."

All-College Cabinet and its president, John Laubach, were given a thorough going-over in a parody on Howdy-Doody. This particular skit centered about cabinet's attempts to levy the most fees on students in the fastest possible time. The cabinet was suitably attired in bow ties and short pants.

The Journalism department was also singled out for raking over the coals.

SDX LAMPOONERS Donald Lambert, David Jones, and Charles Oberbance sing a ditty telling the story of the new Dean Simes administration at last night's annual Gridiron Banquet held at the Nittany Lion Inn. The song was a parody on "Ghost Riders in the Sky" and told the town merchants they couldn't "clean up" on the students by selling them liquor because of the Simes "crackdown."

IFC Withdraws Unchaperoned Dating Petition

The Interfraternity Council has withdrawn its request to allow women to remain unchaperoned in fraternity houses until the time for them to return to the dormitories, Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, has announced.

Arthur Rosfeld, IFC president, refused to state reasons for withdrawing the request. The petition for the change passed the IFC unanimously and was sent to the Senate committee on student affairs.

Existing regulations provide that women must be out of fraternity houses by 8 p.m. Sundays through Thursdays and 1 a.m. Saturdays and Sundays. The proposal would have amended section 3-b of the dating code.

Two other proposals were included in the IFC's recommendation. One would have removed the requirement that joint fraternity and sorority social activities would need chaperones. The suggestion did provide that the parties be registered with the dean of men and the dean of women at least one week in advance of the affair.

The other request was that fraternities be given better representation on the Senate committee and on subcommittees, especially when fraternity cases are being presented.
