

Coeds to Select Queen, Court

Primary elections for the May Queen and her court will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. April 14 in the main lounges of all women's dormitories. Women may vote only for the attendant who is to represent their class, but all classes will vote for the May Queen, who must be a senior woman. Women living in town may vote in

8 Women To Debate In Nationals

Four teams from the College women's debate squad will compete in the Grand National Debate and Forensic Tournament tomorrow through Saturday at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va.

Marian Ungar, debate manager, Lois Lehman, Sally Lowry, and Mary Jane Kelley will debate on the negative teams. Affirmative debaters are Guyla Woodward, Susan Holtzinger, Jane Montgomery, and Agnes Porter. Debate Coach Clayton S. Schug and Vernon Rank, graduate student in arts and letters, will accompany the teams.

To Defend 2 Titles
Each team will be entered in nine competitions. The debates will be held pyramid style with each speaker rating his opponent and teams rating each other. The Big Ten national champion teams and individual speakers will be determined by the ratings.

In the individual contests, Miss Ungar will defend her national titles in address reading and declamation for the third consecutive year. Miss Kelley, winner of last year's after-dinner speaking contests, will enter the oratory and incommium contests.

Enters 5 Contests
National champion in the response to the occasion in last year's competition, Miss Porter will defend her title and enter the impromptu speaking and poetry reading divisions. Last year she scored winner ratings in both classes.

Miss Holtzinger will enter the after-dinner, extemporaneous, informative speaking, response to the occasion, and situation oratory competitions.

Miss Lehman will participate in the dramatic reading contests. Last year a negative team of Miss Ungar and Greta Weaver was runnerup for women's Grand National champion. The College women's team was listed among the Big Ten.

plank in the Lion party platform. The Lion party also included a plank in its platform that would call for the establishment of first aid stations in men's dormitories. The State party presented a plank calling for the resurrection of the Central Promotion Agency—an agency that would provide specialized promotion plans for organizations and publications on campus. The plank also pledged the securing of space for the agency when the space "becomes available." The agency would be a profit making agency, Enelow said, and would receive original backing from Froth, campus humor magazine. The State party also pledged the expansion of the Cabinet Projects Council. The elections committee also decided that Lion party candidates will have the first position on the ballot by the toss of a coin. The candidates' transcripts for the spring elections on April 22 and 23 were checked by the committee to insure the possession of the necessary 1.0 All-College average. Thorpe said that five voting machines will be used in the spring elections instead of four as or-

Apple Blossom Queen

KATHRYN EISENHOWER, second semester medical technology major and niece of President Milton S. and Dwight D. Eisenhower, will be queen of the 26th annual Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, Va., April 30-May 1. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Eisenhower of Charleroi.

Students Fine Florida Hotrodders

Plan to take a little run down to Florida over Easter vacation? If you stop in at Florida State University, try to forget your hotrod tendencies. For a stray campus cop might haul you into the newly organized student traffic court.

Your case would be decided by a chief justice and two associate justices—all students who could fine you 50 cents—or $5.

Previously, traffic violations were reviewed by the business manager's office.

But a student chief justice? Well, why not take your helicopter instead?

Women's Sport Shoes 'Cover a Lot of Ground'

By AL MUNN

The last few years have shown new and fascinating trends in women's sport shoes. In the early '40's, everyone, but everyone, was wearing dirty, beat-up saddle shoes. Vivid, plaid and colored shoe strings were finally added to give the foot-apparel some gait.

Loafers were next on the agenda. For some reason, these had to be kept clean, or the female was a social outcast. Much embarrassment resulted in classes and in the movies when careless girls kicked off their shoes and were unable to find them again.

Black moccasins next paraded up and down the "halls of learning" and around campuses. These got so sloppy that if a shoestring broke, the next step was taken in stocking feet.

The '50's rolled in with a brand new fad—"the cat." Shades of any color or shape were the vogue. Many a female heart was broken during a flash rainstorm when her beautiful suede shoes became water spotted.

College males revived an old '20 love—the white bucks. Many a coed eyed the approaching male foot with envy. (After she had started with the head and worked down.) Well, why not? Soon as many girls as fellows were seen wandering around in white bucks.

A new trend appeared in 1953 in the form of colored tennis shoes. They may be here for some

Gals Buy, Guys Sigh; Easter—That's Why

By ANN LEDERMAN

When spring weather finally locates Penn State, in spite of the hard time it has finding it among the Nittany mountains, you'll know Easter is not far behind.

And to the study-weary students, Easter means one thing, vacation! It is a recognized fact that spring vacation is different, somehow, than any other vacation of the school year.

Marriages

Strickland-Bastian

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bastian of Wellsboro announce the marriage of their daughter, Erma Jean, to Lt. Robert Strickland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Strickland of Marietta. The Rev. Robert W. L. Mark performed the ceremony March 13 in the First Presbyterian Church of Wellsboro.

Mrs. Strickland is an eighth semester home economics major. Lt. Strickland, who was graduated last June in forestry, is a member of Xi Sigma Pi, forestry honorary, and Scabbard and Blade. He is leaving soon for Germany.

Lewis-Nicholson

Alice Nicholson, daughter of Mrs. Richard H. Nicholson of West Pittston, became the bride of Lowell Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Y. Lewis of Mount Zion, Saturday in West Pittston.

Mrs. Lewis is a registered nurse in West Pittston. Mr. Lewis, an eighth semester horticulture major, is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho, Phi Epsilon Phi, botany honorary, Skull and Bones, and the Coaly honorary society. He is editor of the Alpha Gamma Rho "Crescent," and a past editor of the Penn State Farmer. Sunday, Founders' Day at the local chapter of AGR, he was awarded the Martin V. Rockwell achievement award for outstanding scholarship, leadership, and character.

For the women, it means a shopping spree, from which they return triumphantly, loaded down with the frilly, flowery hats and accessories, or oddities, whichever you prefer, that are seen in church on Easter Sunday.

Let Ladies Shine

At this time, we can pity the poor fathers, especially when the local ads read invitingly, "Send the bill home to Dad." We wonder how many coeds take up the store on this invitation?

The men, however, prefer to let the ladies have the limelight in this department, and are satisfied with the old gray flannels and perhaps a new tie to brighten the over-all picture. At least, they pretend to be satisfied, but when you come right down to it, do they really have a choice in the matter?

For both sexes, spring vacation gives that old spring fever a much-needed chance to run its course completely. After fighting for weeks to get to classes, whether on time or not, and to be at least partially prepared, we find ourselves with absolutely no classes and no books to worry about—except of course, that thousand-word theme and the paper on aerodynamics that was due a week before vacation began.

Spring Fever Arrives

We are free to do whatever we want to with our time, unless we count the kitchen mom needs painted and the garage we promised our neighbor we'd help him build.

There are, of course, those of us who, when spring fever actually arrives, find that the spring fever we had all-year-round has tripled, and we are fit to do absolutely nothing, which is exactly what we proceed to do.

It may be possible to find the energy to help little sister dye Easter eggs; (we probably enjoy it more than she does) a custom that some duchess named Rosilinda von Lindenburg came up with too many hundreds of years ago to matter.

Egg-rolling Here?

We may also thank the duchess for starting the yarn about the proverbial Easter bunny, for after dyeing all the eggs in town and hiding them in the forest for the children, she didn't have the nerve to stand up for her act, and put all the blame on an innocent hare.

Speaking of Easter eggs, we would like to point out the possibilities of having egg-rolling festivities at Penn State, since we now have the same qualifications as Washington, D.C. Not only do we have a President named Eisenhower, but it is very easy to find pairs of students on campus in the spring (another symptom of spring fever). Since a rule of the capital's contest is that the egg-rolling must be done in pairs, what more could you ask?

Woman's Building

Senior candidates for May Queen are Barbara Baker, Jacqueline Becker, Nancy Higgins, Barbara Johnson, Elizabeth Johnson, Mary Markley, Madeleine Sharp, Joan Tadero, Irene Taylor, and Constance Wellen.

Candidates for junior attendant are Carol Bach, Marilyn Buzby, Neida Fralich, Theresa Horrigan, Caroline Manbeck, Joan McClane, DelRene Millner, Jane Montgomery, Carolyn Pelczar, Ida Mae Renner, and Elizabeth Smucker.

Candidates for sophomore attendant are Elizabeth Bell, Jayn Frank, Louanne Gallagher, Louise Justin, Nancy Knouse, Celeste McDermott, Beverly Patterson, Barbara Patton, Alma Street, and Nancy Van Tries.

Candidates for freshman maid of honor are Margaret Fisher, Joan Gray, Alyce Grunberg, Nancy Lee, Jane Patton, and Barbara Richards.

Senior women may sign up for the Hemlock Chain April 16 at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Seventy-five names will be accepted; the first 50 to sign up will be chosen, however.

Final elections for May Queen and her court will be April 16.

Co-Edits

Phi Kappa Sigma

Phi Kappa Sigma last weekend held its second annual "Dad's Day." Fifty-one fathers and guests attended the event.

Recently pledged to the fraternity were George Deike, Ralph High, Leo Kwalik, Stanley Larimer, Fred Montanari, Robert Springer, Ross Studebaker, Archie Wallace, and Charles Yarbrough.

Phi Gamma Delta

The newly elected officers of Phi Gamma Delta are: David Lucas, president; Norman Rubash, treasurer; Richard Matz, recording secretary; Richard McFeely, corresponding secretary; Daniel Wilder, historian; Daniel Garson, caterer; Jesse Darlington, house manager.

Phi Sigma Sigma

The pledge class of Phi Sigma Sigma recently entertained the pledges of Zeta Tau Alpha, Chi Omega, and Delta Gamma at an informal luncheon in the suite.

Engagements

Friedman-Naveen

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Naveen of Wilkes-Barre announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to Sidney Friedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Friedman of Port Chester, N.Y.

Miss Naveen received a B.A. degree in journalism in January, 1952. While at Penn State, she was a member of the senior board of the Daily Collegian business staff. She is presently employed by J. Walter Thompson, advertising agency in New York City.

Mr. Friedman attended Pace College in New York City and is now associated with his father in the scrap iron and metals business in Port Chester.

Originally planned. He said that the Jamestown Company, manufacturers of the machine will send a representative to the College to supervise the use of the machines.

The company will also send sample machines to the College so that students will have a chance to familiarize themselves with the operation of the regular machines.
