

Stickmen Face Hobart Saturday

Although the weekend trip for Penn State's lacrosse men was dampened by the two losses to Swarthmore and Navy, the outlook for the future is not as dismal as one might expect.

For one thing, the team's two toughest opponents seem to be out of the way, with the exception of Syracuse. The Lions will be back in their own class when they play Hobart on the golf course Saturday.

Coach Nick Thiel was philosophical about the "lost weekend." "We looked good against Navy for a while Saturday," he said, "and the boys really scrapped. Our big trouble against both Swarthmore and Navy was our defense," he continued. "They got a lot more shots than we did, and that always means a lot."

Thiel was impressed most by Swarthmore's Avery Blake, Jr. "He's big, can really run, and he really hurt us," he said. "He's just about the best all-around lacrosse player I've ever seen."

The Lions are trying to polish up their offensive game this week while waiting for the Hobart invasion. Thiel is looking for more passing from his men, and wants more "feeders," those who can pass off to a player cutting for the goal.

"We're not looking for our men many times when they are open with a chance for a shot," he pointed out.

The genial mentor liked the play of goalie Don McCollough against the Garnet and Middies. McCollough made many fine stops against a great barrage of shots (Navy had 87), and generally performed well.

"Although the score doesn't indicate it, he actually played a better game than the Swarthmore goalie," Thiel said. Sophomore Joe Erwin, who chipped in with two goals against the Garnet, also showed promise for the future.

Coogan Elected Head

Jim Coogan, Penn State, is the newly-elected president of the nation's sports publicity directors. Sports specialists in the American College Public Relations Association named him to the post for the year beginning July 1.

Bill Jeffrey Honored

THE MEMORIAL PLAQUE, presented by friends of Penn State soccer, which will be erected in Rec Hall as a tribute to Coach Bill Jeffrey and his All-Americans in the name of soccer's World War II dead. Jeffrey, who is currently on a teaching-coaching assignment at the University of Puerto Rico, will accept the plaque at a formal ceremony which has been postponed until his return in July.

Soccer Memorial

A memorial plaque has been erected at Penn State in memory of three former soccer players and two former managers who lost their lives during World War II. So honored are Fred Ernst and Don McGrail, of Philadelphia; Emmett Fletcher, of State College; Gar Thomas, of Colver; and Bob Galley, of Connellsville.

Penn State in 1953 became the first Eastern team to win a National Collegiate wrestling team championship.

Foggmens Await Weather Break to Resume Practice

With the 1953 tennis opener less than a week away, Coach Sherm Fogg and his 12-man team began yesterday to wonder just when they are going to get some sort of break from the weather. The Lions will meet Bucknell at Lewistown Tuesday.

Bucknell already has one intercollegiate win stashed away, a 6-3 win over the Colonials of George Washington.

The Bisons will present a mean problem for Fogg's crew to solve this season. Along with a revenge motive plus one meet's experience, Bucknell has in its fold five of last season's starting six singles performers, including ace Paul Remmey.

Other veteran Bisons back for probable singles jobs are Alan Goffy, Alan Holton, Spencer Lenhart, and Joe Battis.

Last season the two clubs split their matches.

In taking the second match, 5-4, at home, the Lions capped off a five-match win streak. There's nothing the Bisons would like to do better than to mess up that win streak. The Lions will be after number six in a row without loss Tuesday.

Fogg, fighting a slightly-losing battle with the elements, said both his singles and doubles lineups have not been decided and will probably not be determined until after the weekend scrimmages.

The Lions schedule is:

April 21	Bucknell	away
25	Syracuse	home
29	Navy	away
30	Georgetown	away
May 6	Maryland	home
9	Colgate	away
14	Lehigh	away
16	Pittsburgh	home
20	Bucknell	home
23	Colgate	home
30	Duquesne	away
