Jones Elected To Regional SCM Position

Patricia Jones has recently been elected program co-chairman for the Middle Atlantic region of the Student Christian Movement. William Hudnut of Princeton will also serve as co-chairman.

Active on numerous religious committees, the sixth semester sociology major is a member of Westminster Foundation, past secretary of the Penn State Christian Association, chairman of town women solicitations for Campus Chest, and a member of Beta Sigma Omicron.

The Student Christian Movement includes YMCA's and YWCA's, joint student Christian Association, denominational groups, and others. The regional organization comprises 140 student groups in 95 colleges and universities in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia.

The Student Christian Movement is a member of the world organization, the World Student Christian Federation. Overall purpose of the federation is the uniting of the world's student Christian movements by exchanging knowledge of conditions of students in all lands.

Cwens to Conduct Retreat Tonight

Problems of leadership will be discussed at 7 tonight in Thompson playroom at a retreat of Cwens, sophomore women's hat society, Baylee Friedman, president, has announced.

Twenty-one women tapped last Friday will separate into budget, program, and project workshops to be led by active Cwens. Chairman of the retreat is Sylvia Grube. Assisting her will be Johanne Llewelyn, Patricia Ellis, Maud Strawn, and Nedaline Charnbury.

Cwens tappers will meet at 6:30 in the Day Students' room in Woman's Building for a short preliminary session.

Registration Ends Today For CA Lodge Supper

Students should sign up today if they wish to attend the meeting. Supper at the cabin will cost 35 cents. Cars will leave from the driveway behind Old Main at 4 p.m. and 5 p.m.

3 Types Get 'Stuck' With Fraternity Pins

By DOTTY BOURNE

There are all kinds of pins: safety pins, straight pins, hat pins, bowling pins, rolling pins, wrestling pins, and fraternity pins. We are concerned here, however, with the last. Thousands of fraternity pins are given or thrown away every year. Why?

There are as many meanings attached to the pinning custom as there are couples who become pinned. Nevertheless, there are three general categories into which these couples divide themselves.

First, there are the "This is it" adherents. To them pinning is an engagement, or a preliminary engagement to engagement, or an engagement to be engaged in a preliminary engagement to the engagement. They are the shiny-faced lovers with the stardusted eyes ever-turned in each other's direction. They live in a little world all their own, with their heads in the clouds and their feet on the ground.

'Ham and Eggs'

The second group is by far the most infamous. The "Look-at-the-trophy-I-have" groups are noted for being pinned and depinned almost as often as they eat.

The women like the additional piece of jewelry dripping from their sweaters. These women collect pins like campaign buttons. The men like the idea of adding new conquests to their list. The conquests are like a shot in the arm for their warped personalities, and puff up their egos and give them a certain prestige among their male friends.

The third, and least obtrusive, group is the "It might as well be you because I haven't the initiative to find anyone else" group. They have dated each other for so long that they go together like ham and eggs.

Grass Almost 'Riz'

To pinned couples it is desirable to belong to the first group. But in case you've done some summing up and have found yourselves glorying in the second group or trapped in the third, it

Engagements Feinstein-Lipsky

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lipsky of Carlisle have announced the engagement of their daughter, Audrey, to Alan Feinstein, son of Mr. L. Feinstein of New York City.

Miss Lipsky is a sixth semester education major and a member of Phi Sigma Sigma. Mr. Feinstein graduated from Brooklyn College in 1950 and is now a radio announcer on station WNYC, New York. No date has been set for the wedding.

Profs Judge Contest

James W. Dunlop, director of the Penn State Blue Band, and Joseph F. O'Brien, professor of public speaking, recently served as judges in the state finals of the University of Pittsburgh Forensic and Music League contest.

is time to start singing a different song like "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

Spring is almost sprung and the grass is almost riz as the saying goes. It is now that a young man's fancy turns. Poor unsuspecting males will be giving away their little emblems of fraternity this spring; poor unsuspecting females will be accepting them.

A pin is a serious thing, not for the stones or metal which wouldn't give you peanut money in a pawn shop, but for the serious idea which should be behind the giving and receiving of a pin. It should be a bond of love supported by strict loyalty and mutual consideration. So think twice, ye lads and lassies, before you indulge in this custom.

Co-Edits

Alpha Omicron Pi

Alpha Omicron Pi's annual pledge banquet was held Saturday at the Eutaw House followed by a dance at Alpha Tau Omega.

Miss Joan Hunter Okay Joe?

While photographing the Kappa Kappa Gamma formal this past Saturday, we again ran into Joan Hunter. If you've ever seen her dressed up in a formal then you'll agree that this girl is one of the most beautiful possessions that the Kappas have had for some years. And that is quite a feat if you know the Kappas.

Are you interested in having your fraternity photographed in an open shirt, informal group in front of your house? We're taking it right after lunch during week days. It only takes a few minutes and no one will miss his one o'clock class. Call now for an appointment.

Also call now to make an appointment for group pictures of mothers and sons outside the house on Mother's Day.

Sincerely,
Bill Coleman
