

SU Building Stage Suggested As Gift

(This is the third in a series of discussions concerning suggestions for the senior class gift.)

With the completion of the new Student Union Building in sight, the senior class has been asked to devote its gift fund to the construction of a stage and projection room.

'Ugly' Contest Remains Open

Additional candidates may be entered in the Ugly Man contest today, Hampton Huff, chairman of the Ugly Man committee, announced yesterday.

The opportunity was made available for the benefit of organizations which had requested another opportunity to enter candidates.

Entrants may meet at 9 tonight in 9 Carnegie. The fifty cent entrance fee is payable then. Photographers will be on hand to photograph new entrants for the Ugly Man identification contest and several candidates who had not previously been photographed.

and juniors will vote for officers, while all classes will elect representatives.

Education students voted yesterday at a station set up on the steps of Burrowes and will vote there again today, weather permitting. Otherwise the voting will be done in 105 Burrowes. All second through seventh semester students are eligible to vote.

The voting station for Home Economics Student Council will again be set up in the main lobby of the Home Economics Building.

Agriculture Student Council will not hold general elections. Council members are elected throughout the year by 12 clubs within the school. Membership is based on the school's enrollment. The new student council officers were announced in yesterday's Daily Collegian.

Rostmeyer said it was felt that the student council presidents "deserved some monetary reward for the work they did throughout the year." While the compensation allotted is "not indicative" of their work, the budget would not allow greater compensation, he said.

The Senior Class permanent fund was raised by $250, the appropriation to finance the Student Encampment at Mont Alto, Sept. 10-12, $100, and $250 for the annual report were other additions to last year's budget total.

Of the budget allocations, $2755 is slated for All-College Cabinet expenses, $1975 for scholarships and compensations, $1750 for Senior Class permanent funds, $1600 for the carryover fund, $1500 for school councils, $720 for Student Union, $400 each for Freshman and Sophomore Class dances and shows, $250 annual report, $100 for class organization, $100 for class day, $100 for printing and supplies, $100 for orientation, and $50 for Tribunal. Items in the carryover fund are $1000 for dance band, $400 for encampment, and $200 miscellaneous.

An appropriation for additional funds for the publication of the student government booklet will be up for approval. Myron Ene-low, chairman, explained that the expansion of the yearly booklet has made an increase in expenses.

Cabinet will also hear a report from Edgar Fehnel, chairman of the scholarship committee, on the presentation of scholarship awards.

Since approximately $8000 will be in the fund, the supporters of the project suggest that $6000 would pay for the stage and the remainder for a projection room. The stage would have a public address system, according to Claire Kime, a member of the gift committee. Also complete wiring including flood lights and possibly footlights would be installed.

All student organizations would have access to the stage for approximately 288 days of the school year, Kime said. It could be used for speech programs, dramatics, dance rehearsals, concerts, and sings. Kime suggests that class reunion participants could also make good use of the stage—with the idea that the class of '53 might see the gift by '58.

Other senior class gift suggestions include a record room in the library, a gift for the proposed meditation chapel (chimes, organ, or stained glass windows), the Lineman statue, and an arena theater.

John Hoerr is chairman of the gift committee. Assisting him are Peggy Mayberry, Robert Sherman, Mary Markley, and Kime.

Voting will take place during May when seniors pick up their copies of LaVie at the Student Union desk.

hibits have been arranged by the departments. Information may be obtained in Burrowes where registration will be held.

The Engineering Open House has been planned in the form of a continual tour including the engineering units. Work in underwater research will be displayed in the Garfield Thomas Water Tunnel. Displays prepared by the Naval ROTC, Signal Corps, and Army Engineering units will be on display in the Armory. Copies of the Penn State Engineer with tour guides and articles on the school's departments will be distributed. An information booth and refreshment stand will be located in front of Main Engineering.

Riot--
