

Lion Nine Washed Out at Annapolis

The Lion baseball team will have to wait until Friday to play baseball this week. The Lions returned home from Annapolis about eight hours early yesterday when their scheduled contest with the Middies was washed out.

Righthanded Gar Gingerich was slated to pitch for the Nittanies in their eleventh outing of the season, but the rain which drenched the entire eastern coast forced the cancelation of the contest.

Golfers Win 4th; Defeat Bullets, 9-0

The Bullets of Gettysburg couldn't begin to even dent the solid winning armor of State's golf squad Monday afternoon as the Lion's copped their fourth straight victory. All six Nittanies won individual matches as they crushed their opponents by a commanding 9-0 score.

Rod Eaken, who was medalist for the afternoon with a one over par score of 71, won his third match of the season by defeating Harry Williams, 6-5. Gordon Stroup, Eaken's mate in the foursome, picked up his second win and State's second team point by downing Bob Weaver, 5-3.

Two of the Rutherfordmen won two more team points in the second foursome to travel the eighteen-hole course. Joe Webb copped his win by a 6-5 score over the Bullet's Don Perry. Warren Gittlen extended his individual win streak to four as he edged by Tom Naughton. Gittlen had the second best score of the afternoon with a 72. Naughton was Gettysburg's best swinger with a five over par score of 74.

Lou Riggs and George Kreidler combined their efforts for two more team points as they defeated their opponents. Dale Righard was the victim of a 4-3 defeat at the hands of Riggs, who won his fourth successive victory. Kreidler won his third match against Bryant Heston, 5-4.

The three remaining points owned by the Rutherfordmen were won by the best ball. The three foursomes played match play for individual team points, and the two best scores of each foursome win one point for either team, depending upon which men win their matches. State's two wins in each of the three foursomes earned them three additional match points.

An ankle sprain suffered in gym class is retarding the early-season progress of Penn State's star quarter-miler, Ollie Sax.

The team will get back into action Friday and Saturday when it meets Pitt in two games at Beaver Field. The Panthers have had their ups and downs this season, but are a pretty solid ball club and the Lions will probably have their hands full. State split two games with the Pittsburghers last season in a weekend series in the Smoky City. They dropped the first contest, 8-6, but then Keith Vesling put the damper on the Panthers in the second contest when he hurled a three hitter and received credit for a 4-1 win.

Vesling and Gingerich will probably get the starting assignments this weekend as the Lions go after their ninth and tenth wins. Gingerich owns a 3-0 record and Ves is sporting a 4-1 mark. His only loss came against Georgetown when he pitched an eight-hitter but lost 4-2.

Tom Werner, coach Joe Bendek's slugging rightfielder goes into Friday's contest carrying a ten-game hitting streak. The burly righthanded batter is hitting a lusty .375.

Here's the way the rest of the club lines up statistically with half of the season in the record books (including the 2-2 tie with Lafayette).

T-Football Doomed By New Rule—Tatum

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—The T-Formation is doomed if colleges decided to stick to the limited substitution rule in football, Maryland's coach Jim Tatum said today.

"The pressure now is all on defense and we're going to have a lot of wild-scoring games—there's no getting around it," the barrel-chested mentor of the Terrapins added in a little shop talk at a mid-town eating emporium.

Trade Rumors Stir In Majors; Houtteman, Noren, Bell Mentioned

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Trade rumors were popping up again today as the major league managers started pruning players off their rosters in an attempt to meet the 25-player limit by midnight of May 14.

The most persistent of the rumors has the World Champion New York Yankees seeking to wrest a righthanded pitcher from the Detroit Tigers. Specifically, the Yankees are supposed to have offered outfielder Irv Noren for Art Houtteman.

Negotiations between the two clubs actually began in Florida last March. They were reportedly resumed during the Yankees' recent two-day visit to Detroit. The Yankees also are interested in veteran infielder Johnny Pesky for utility purposes.

The Brooklyn Dodgers are seeking a lefthanded hitting outfielder. When Cincinnati was in Brooklyn, Dodger manager Charlie Dressen had Rogers Hornsby, Redleg skipper, closeted for an hour trying to pry Gus Bell loose from Cincinnati. Hornsby turned down the offer because it consisted of a couple of Dodger farmhands plus a third rate pitcher.

The Giants, off to a start almost as miserable as the one in 1951 when they dropped 11 straight in April, may make a major deal before the trade deadline on June 14. Durocher is unhappy about his infield and his catching situation.

A report that the Philadelphia Phillies had offered first baseman Eddie Waitkus and another unidentified player to Pittsburgh for veteran righthanded pitcher Murry Dickson could not be confirmed. Neither could the one that Cleveland had offered the St. Louis Browns $150,000 for catcher Clint Courtney.
