Your Life Dreary? Try 'Schuhplattling'

By SHIRLEY MUSGRAVE

If blue books, quizzes, your professors, and even the weather are getting you down—relax. Change your outlook on life. Get slaphappy, or in other words—learn to dance the Schuhplattle.

Ag Club to Hold Driving Contest

A tractor driving contest will be sponsored Saturday by Agriculture Engineering Club at the Plant Industries parking lot.

The contest will have two divisions, one for male students at 1 p.m. and one for coeds at 3 p.m. Anyone who can handle a tractor may enter the contest. Entry blanks may be obtained at the Student Union desk in Old Main or in the Ag Building.

Safety, as well as speed, will be considered in the contest.

The Schuhplattle, an old German folk dance, is being revived here on campus and will be demonstrated at 7:30 tonight at the folk dance festival in Recreation Hall by the New Bavarian Schuhplattlers, who will show their ability at "plattling."

The word "plattling" means slap. In dancing the Schuhplattle you slap your hands, your feet, your sides. Each dance has a different slap, so if you're not up on your slaps don't try Schuhplattling.

The male is the show off in this type of folk dancing, particularly when performing the more colorful plattles of jealousy and courtship.

Traditional "lederhosen" are worn by the male Schuhplattlers. These are short leather embroidered pants with suspenders. The dancers also wear special pleated shirts and hand-painted ties.

Female Schuhplattlers wear peasant costumes—white blouses, black vests and full red skirts.

Schuhplattling came to the campus when Warren Hommas, sixth semester civil engineering major, danced at a Pennsylvania Recreation Conference. Hommas is a member of Reading's Edelweiss Schuhplattlers.

At present, four couples are dancing the Schuhplattle.

Interested? If you're slaphappy—you've met the major requirement.

The College's five new dairy barns will be open to the public for the first time, during the exhibition. Tours of the barns and the College Creamery will be conducted by members of the Dairy Science Club, sponsor of the exposition.

A sheep dog demonstration by Carroll Shaffner, College shepherd, and his prize-winning Border Collies will be presented in the afternoon.

Three Contests Held

Judges for the fitting and showing contests are John C. Thompson, livestock manager of the Ralston-Purina Co. of St. Louis, Mo., and George Snyder, manager of the Coldspring Farms' prize-winning Guernsey herds. Thompson was the exposition's championship winner 25 years ago when he was enrolled in a two-year Agriculture course at the College. Snyder is well-known throughout the East for his work with Guernseys.

Three other contests have taken place as part of the dairy exposition.

A dairy judging contest was held Saturday at the new barns. A dairy products judging contest will be held at 3:30 p.m. today in 4 Dairy. Both amateurs and professionals may enter the contest. Amateur divisions are open to all students, while the professional divisions are restricted to students who have taken courses in dairy products judging.

Ice Cream Mold Contest
In these contests, students act as judges of dairy products and dairy cattle. Five official judges will select the winners from among the student contestants.

The last of the three contests is the ice cream mold contest. Ice cream molds, made by students, will be judged on a basis of originality.

Prizes for the contests will be awarded at the annual Dairy Science Club banquet at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at the Lutheran Student Association building. Cash prizes, medals, trophies, a set of cream jugs, and magazine subscriptions will be presented to the contests winners.

Action Seen On Loyalty Investigation

Committee action in the state Senate on a bill permitting the Commonwealth to dismiss employees refusing to testify in loyalty investigations on grounds of self-incrimination, may be taken this week, the Associated Press reported.

Action on the bill, sponsored by Sen. Albert R. Pechan, (R.-Armstrong), was spurred by Judge Curtis Bok's decision in Philadelphia Monday, refusing to permit a nurse, Mrs. Marie S. Fitzgerald, to regain the job she lost at Philadelphia General Hospital when she refused to sign the state loyalty oath, the A.P. said.

Sen. Greybill Diehm, chairman of the Senate State Government committee, said he has received a deluge of mail on Pechan's new bill, now before his committee. Most of the mail opposing the bill has come from school teachers and most of the mail supporting the proposal has come from American Legion members, he said.

"It looks like every American Legion post in the state has been alerted to write letters urging passage of this bill," Diehm said.

Pechan, commenting on Judge Bok's decision said he will press for action on the bill which would oust state employees "hiding behind the fifth amendment of the Federal Constitution."

Judge Bok said he based his decision on previous decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court. "We must leave to our appellate courts the possibility of expressing another view as to the legal policy of the state," Judge Bok said.

IFC Approves Allocation Plan

Interfraternity Council last night voted 23-16 in favor of the proposed $15 compensation for presidents of the eight student councils. The proposal will be discussed tonight by All-College Cabinet.

Although there was some opposition, the council felt compensation would be a token of appreciation for services rendered during the year.

Three members of the IFC Board of Control were named by President Thomas Schott. They are Temple Reynolds, Alpha Chi Rho; Ronald Lench, Phi Sigma Delta; and Howard Giles, Delta Sigma Phi.

Merice Nelles, Alpha Tau Omega, was named IFC workshop chairman, and Richard Altman, Beta Sigma Rho, was appointed chairman of the outstanding fraternity award committee. Barry Kay, Phi Epsilon Pi, was also named Greek Week chairman. Fury Feraco, Tau Kappa Epsilon, was named brochure committee chairman.
