

Organ, Chimes Added to List For Class Gift

(This is the last in a series of five articles discussing suggestions for the senior class gift.)

When the proposed meditation chapel passes from the dream-stage to reality, it might include an organ and/or chimes donated by the class of '53.

The senior gift committee, headed by John Hoerr, received list prices of two organ companies. A Baldwin electronic concert organ would cost $8000, approximately the amount in the gift fund. Adding chimes to the organ would run the price up to $10,000. A Hammond concert organ, chimes, and piano could be purchased for $8000. The final decision would be made after the chapel architectural design is announced.

If chimes were purchased, they would be electronic and therefore be able to play any melody. Old Main chimes are mechanical.

Other gift suggestions are the "Lineman" statue, a record library, stage and projection room for the Student Union Building, and an arena theater. Seniors will vote when they pick up their copies of LaVie.

Whichever gift is chosen must be submitted to the Board of Trustees for acceptance. If it is not accepted, the gift suggestion receiving the second highest number of votes will be purchased.

to this country and its free world allies.

He told newsmen later he believes the U.S. and its Allies must draw a line some time and say to the Communists that to cross it means war.

The American people, he said, "realize we can't sit back and do nothing while one country after another falls to the Communists."

After the hearing, Dulles sought out the Californian and talked several minutes with him privately in a Capitol corridor.

Afterwards, the senator declined to discuss the conversation with reporters except to say he had "highly recommended" that the administration "tell the American people what it is doing to meet the threat in Southeast Asia."

Prexy Stresses Personal Faith In Recent Talk

The necessity of each individual achieving his own measure of faith in the modern world struggle was stressed yesterday by President Milton S. Eisenhower in his address before the Philadelphia Council of Churches.

He said that while some critics of the nation point to unfavorable instances which make most of us ashamed, our common life is sound and durable and concern for truly fundamental values is increasing.

Students at Penn State, he said, as well as other colleges, are demonstrating a growing interest in the cardinal religious concepts which undergird our whole free structure.

Dr. Eisenhower cited a growing concern for religious affairs among all peoples and said this situation is a reassuring realization of the true sources of our national strength.

"As a people we are rising to the responsibility of world leadership which has been thrust upon us, and we are beginning to use true human understanding as one indispensable instrument for creating peace," he said.

College Employee Falls, Hurts Ankle

Mrs. Ida L. Houser, attendant in the towel service at White Hall, received an ankle injury yesterday when she fell on the stairway in White Hall.

Mrs. Houser was taken to the Centre County Hospital where officials said she may be suffering from a fractured ankle. The extent of injuries has not been officially determined, officials said.

According to Miss Marie Haidt, professor of physical education, Mrs. Houser slipped at the top of the stairs, which were wet from the rain.

Miss Haidt said she called the hospital because she was afraid ankle bones were broken.

Observatories Open For Viewing of Saturn

Weather permitting, the observatories will be open to the public for observation of the planet Saturn from 8:30 to 10:30 tonight and tomorrow.

The College telescopes reveal the cloud belts across the face of Saturn, as well as the celebrated rings. Saturn is distinguished by its steady yellow light.

All the roads lead to Kankakee

Some routes, naturally, are longer than others. But if there is less traffic on them, they might get you to Kankakee faster.

The same holds true of your Long Distance calls. When circuits are temporarily busy on the most direct route for your call, a new electronic brain in the telephone office automatically selects alternate routes. They may be hundreds of miles longer, but the detour saves you time.

And the entire operation of selection and rerouting is done in a split second!

The Bell System people who perfected, maintain and operate this electronic switching system have one goal: to make the best telephone service in the world even better. Would you like to join this competent, aggressive team?

There are many opportunities in the Bell System—in engineering, business administration, accounting, and other fields. Your Placement Officer can give you the details.
