

Rec Conclave To End Today With Luncheon

The sixth annual Pennsylvania Recreation Conference will end at 12:15 p.m. today with a luncheon at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Samuel Cooperman, associate superintendent on recreation, Allentown, and Mickey McConnell, coordinator of youth activities, U.S. Rubber Co., New York, will speak on "Midget Sports in the Recreation Program" at the luncheon.

Workshop groups will begin at 9 a.m. today.

Workshop group A, under the direction of Kenneth Abell, State Planning Board recreation consultant, Harrisburg, will discuss the problems of municipal officers and recreation board members.

Group B, chaired by George Sargisson, Recreation and Service, Inc. executive director, Wilmington, Del., will function as an idea clinic in 105 Agriculture.

Group C, headed by Ruth Swezey, recreation director of the Wyoming Valley Recreation and Playground Association, Wilkes-Barre, will discuss recreation programs for women in 210 Agriculture.

Group D, under Dr. Marian Sack, Radnor elementary school principal, Wayne, will discuss problems of the school administrator and school camping in 306 Agriculture.

A. W. Castle, extension education chief, Harrisburg Department of Public Instruction, will speak on "Legislative Changes in the Extension Act" at the 11 a.m. general meeting in 121 Sparks.

Compensation -

Junior and Senior Prom committee members are paid a total of $50.

Under action taken by cabinet last night, eight school council presidents will receive $15 each and the Interscholastic Council Board chairman will receive $25.

There appears to be little or no difference in scholarships and compensation. This monetary reward is not intended as payment for the job executed, but merely as an extra pat on the back and added incentive for those holding compensatory positions. It is intended as a partial repayment for time and work put into a job. This compensation goes to both elected and appointed officials.

Some students claim the compensation idea is out of hand. These people say student government officers should work not for pay but for service. These people who would do away altogether with compensation are generally not close to the amount of work a student government officer puts into his job.

There are places where com-

Shields Elected Head Of Commerce Honorary

Edward Shields, sixth semester commerce major, was recently elected president of Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional commerce fraternity.

Other officers are Richard Lent, vice president; Donald Cox, secretary; Herbert Maliniak, treasurer; and Geoffrey Barnes, master-of-rituals.

Compensation should not be given. There are similar places where compensation is justified. In other instances, compensation is too high.

Those who believe students go into activities for money had better first look at what the pay would mean in terms of cents per hour. Student activities are not paying affairs.

The best solution, then, would be a complete study of the compensation system. Such a study could produce possible cuts and increases in compensation. But compensation must not be unwisely abolished, or highly increased, without such a study.

Kaiser, Slender by Art Diamond, Doctor Caius by Myron Cole, and Fenton by Marvin Neely.

The main trouble with the majority of the cast was that they mouthed their speeches, and at times all the audience could hear was a jumble of sounds. Fenton, in particular was guilty of this fault.

the evening as members of the Women's Chorus sang "To Shallow Rivers," "Ha, ha, ha, This World Doth Pass," and "Fie on Sinful Fancy."

The staging effects, especially the set being extended into the audience, helped the viewers feel more a part of the action.

The costumes, although sometimes too harsh to the eye in their brightness, were very good and captured the spirit of the Elizabethan era.
