

Outstanding Independent

Pellnitz Wins Plaque Award

David Pellnitz, former Collegian editor, yesterday received the Penn State Club award for outstanding independent man on campus.

Pellnitz was chosen for the honor by a special committee consisting of Dean of Men Frank J. Simes, George Donovan, and Arthur Rosfeld.

An inscribed plaque was presented to Pellnitz by Walter Kowalik, president of the Penn State Club. The club had previously selected names from "Who's in the News at Penn State."

Pellnitz said, "I'm very surprised and deeply appreciate the honor. I would like to thank the members of the committee and the Penn State Club for selecting me."

The award has been presented annually for the past ten years. Last year's winner was David Mutchler.

DIR Gives Students Special Counseling

By AL MUNN

On a campus where organization initials are thrown around at random, DIR generally evokes wider recognition and emotion than most of the alphabetical jumble. The specific functions of the Division of Intermediate Registration, however, are not so well known.

DIR was originally established to help students with low averages, and those who aren't sure what they want to study. It offers special training, exploration work and counseling to help students find a place for themselves in the College. It is a helpful, not degrading, organization dedicated to the service of the school.

A student whose grade point average is below .5 at the end of his second or third semester is accepted into the division or dismissed from school. With the approval of the dean, he may remain there for two semesters. If not accepted by a dean of a school at that time, he is dismissed. A student transferring from one school to another may be referred through the division.

450 Now Enrolled
Nearly 200 freshmen sought voluntary admission into DIR at the end of the past semester because they realized DIR was the one place that might help them. Last semester, 504 students were enrolled in the division, and about 450 enrolled this semester.

Dr. Harold K. Wilson, director of DIR, listed inadequate development of study habits, lack of satisfactory reading speed and accuracy, and improper choice of curriculum as main reasons for poor scholastic standing. Forestry and engineering have the highest ratio of students entering DIR. DIR can be very useful, as shown by the following examples. Several years ago a young man entered DIR with a grade average of .05. At the end of the next semester, he left the division with a 2.75 in a technical curriculum. The same young man is now doing graduate work at the College.

Three on Dean's List
A girl entered the division with a 2 average. She was not satisfied with her curriculum and wanted special testing and guidance to help her determine what she wanted to obtain from college.

Three students left DIR last semester on the dean's list. Sixty-three former DIR students graduated in January.

The Division of Intermediate Registration is essentially a service organization designed to help students who are experiencing academic difficulties. It has enabled many students to be graduated and enter professional fields.

LA Poll to Decide Evaluation Fate

Opinion of the liberal arts instructors concerning faculty evaluation forms distributed recently by the Liberal Arts School Council will determine whether these forms will be given out again next year, Richard Kirschner, president of LA council, has announced.

The faculty will be polled next year to discover whether they thought the forms were of value.

According to Ben Euwema, dean of the School of Liberal Arts, forms of this type have received favorable comments from the faculty in previous years.

Housing Rules--

women students may be present in the house from 11:45 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Other regulations are similar to those in operation during the regular school year.

If any violations of these regulations occur, the fraternity or group concerned shall be notified by the Dean of Men that its social privileges are suspended until the case can be heard and proper action taken.

Last summer 28 fraternities were open during the summer. Sixteen of these were open to non-members.

Personal Possessions Will Not Be Stored

All possessions must be removed from rooms, closets, and storage rooms when students leave campus for the summer, according to Allen C. St. Clair, acting director of housing.

Formerly possessions could be stored at the College during summer months, but due to a change in College policy, belongings will no longer be stored.

New Coal Scuttle Goes on Display After Engraving

The coal scuttle, emblem of victory in the annual Penn State-Pitt football game, has been engraved and returned to the College for display. It has temporarily been placed in the Dean of Men's office.

The exchange of the brass scuttle was originated during the last football season by the Interfraternity Councils of the two schools. The score of each Pitt-Penn State game since 1893 has been engraved around the edges of the scuttle. State won the last game 17-0.

Arthur Rosfeld, former IFC president said he hopes the exchange will become an annual tradition similar to the "Little Brown Jug" exchanged by the Universities of Michigan and Minnesota.

The scuttle is similar to the one found in front of many fireplaces. A scuttle was chosen to symbolize the soft coal school, Pitt, and the hard coal school, Penn State.

Librarian Reports Reference Missing

One of the library's most valuable books, Winchell's "Guide to Reference Books," is still missing from the library, according to Mildred A. Ailman, reference librarian.

This book, which is a reference book for reference books, although inexpensive, is very valuable to the library because it contains records and call numbers of library books not recorded in any other volume, she said. Its return would save numerous hours of renumbering the books.

Miss Ailman said that the book is priceless to the library staff, and she hoped it will be returned promptly.

Squadron Initiates Four

The Harry Armstrong Squadron of Arnold Air Society Tuesday night initiated senior pledges Gerald E. Garman, Jeffrey D. Bennett, Edgar C. Berger and Harold N. Wells.

11 Titlists --

designated Spoon, Barrel, Cane and Donor.

Similar honors for outstanding senior women were created eight years after the men began their tradition. Bow Girl, Slipper Girl, Fan Girl, Class Poet and Class Donor were titles selected in order of votes received or else most appropriate for the senior's personality. The title of Mirror Girl was created after the other five.

Initialed charms are awarded to those students who have best exemplified personal honor, integrity, sincerity, versatility of activities, scholarship—and, of course, a sense of humor.

Garrett to Lecture Tonight and Friday

Dr. A. B. Garrett of Ohio State University will speak tonight and Friday in 119 Osmond at lectures sponsored by the Department of Chemistry.

Garrett will speak at 7:30 tonight and at 2:10 p.m. Friday.

Tomorrow's lecture will cover research on the constitution of grignard reagent and friedelcrafts systems. Friday's lecture will cover the mechanism of dissolution of metals in acid solutions from a temperature of -65 degrees centigrade to room temperature.

Leese Named Temporary Lion Clique Head

Watson Leese, fourth semester commerce major, has been appointed temporary All-College clique chairman of Lion Party to replace Richard Kirschner who resigned yesterday.

Kirschner said Leese will organize the party for fall elections. A permanent chairman will be selected after the party has been organized, Kirschner said.
