

7 Students Involved In Accident

A student received small lacerations of the lip and six others escaped without injury early Saturday morning when a car in which they were traveling struck a Baton Co. construction shed at the corner of Pollock and Burrows roads.

James Shaid, third semester industrial engineering major, was treated and released from the College Infirmary Saturday morning. None of the other students required hospitalization.

Total damage to the car has been estimated at $815.94, according to the owner, Michael Roseberry, third semester engineering major. Roseberry was a passenger when the accident occurred.

According to Capt. Philip A. Mark of the Campus Patrol, the accident occurred about 12:45 a.m. Saturday, as the car was turning south on Burrows road off Pollock road. Roseberry said the car careened into the shed after the driver, Raymond Wells, fifth semester industrial engineering major, was distracted by shouts from friends.

Walter Hawkinson, general superintendent of the Baton Construction Corp. said the company would not press charges against Roseberry for damages to the shed. Hawkinson said damage was negligible and the insurance adjuster had already settled for the damage.

Christoff Hides In Mountains

Jean Christoff, fugitive from Torrance State Hospital, is believed to be hiding in the Blue Ridge Mountains—the area where he hid for 13 days last February after the strangulation death of his sister, June, a former coed at the College.

Dr. William J. Shilling, hospital superintendent, said Christoff had been a good patient and had shown improvement in the six months he had been at the institution before he escaped Sept. 7.

Sinclair Chosen Lion Chairman

Benjamin Sinclair, fifth semester arts and letters major, has been appointed temporary Lion Party clique chairman by Watson Leese, acting clique chairman.

Sinclair will serve until a permanent chairman is elected. Elections will probably be held Sunday, Leese said.

Leese was appointed last May by former chairman Richard Kirshner, who resigned after spring elections.

Penn Ticket Sale To Start Thursday

Sale of approximately 4000 tickets to the University of Pennsylvania-Penn State football game will start Thursday at the Athletic Association ticket window in Old Main.

Students who ordered 1080 tickets through advance sale by mail, also will be able to pick them up starting Thursday.

The game will be played Oct. 3 at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

Collegian Candidates To Meet Tonight

Candidates for Daily Collegian editorial staff will meet at 7 tonight in 9 Carnegie.

Candidates may be freshmen or upperclassmen and need not be journalism majors.

TODAY'S WEATHER:
COOLER WITH SHOWERS

The Daily Collegian

FOR A BETTER PENN STATE

VOL. 54, No. 4

STATE COLLEGE, PA., TUESDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 22, 1953

FIVE CENTS

Business School Begins Regular Class Sessions

Freshmen Complain Of Customs Laxity

See picture on page eight

By PEGGY McCLAIN

Showers and storm clouds placed no damper on freshman spirit yesterday as some 20 hatmen and hatwomen put frosh through customs rituals.

The greatest complaint of customs laxity came from the frosh themselves. "Upperclassmen aren't making us 'button' enough. We learned all this stuff and no one makes us do it," one freshman said.

Plan to Change Registration Under Study

Elimination of registration by class is now under consideration by the College.

This is one of several possibilities being studied for remedying future tie-ups similar to the one which occurred in Recreation Hall during fall registration last week, C. O. Williams, College registrar, has announced.

Under the proposed plan, all students would register alphabetically regardless of semester standing. This method was considered when centralized registration began in Rec Hall last fall, he said.

However, the present registration method was adopted on the assumption that it might be necessary for a senior to schedule a course which might otherwise be closed in order to graduate, Williams said. The present system gives seniors preference in course selection, he said.

Rotation of the alphabetical listings of all students during a four year period is included in the present set-up, he said.

Only four cases of discipline for illegal registration have been handled by the College so far, Williams reported. The trend away from the 27 cases handled last fall is a good sign, he said. Students are to be commended for their cooperation, Williams added.

Three of the four students who tried to register out of sequence were placed on office probation, and were required to register yesterday and pay the $10 late registration fee, Dean of Men Frank J. Simes reported. Office probation, he said, is a warning that any further difficulty would result in more serious disciplinary action to the students involved.

Although upperclassmen joined hatmen in the "button frosh" custom, hatmen and hatwomen themselves did a major part of hazing today.

'Nice Treatment'

Despite frequent doses of Penn State weather, crowds of green dinks and black hats gathered all day along the east side of the Mall and in front of the Carnegie bulletin board.

"They treat us real nice," a frosh commented. "If we didn't know our songs, they let us get out our song sheets."

The Student Handbook, or Freshman Bible, containing the school songs and cheers, has not yet been given to freshmen, but should be ready for distribution later this week, according to Richard Rau, editor. Meanwhile, frosh have been learning songs and cheers from mimeographed sheets given them last weekend.

No customs violations have been reported, Thomas Farrell, chairman of Freshman Customs and Regulations Board, announced at a meeting of the board last night.

Aid of upperclassmen in customs enforcement is being urged, Farrell said.

The board last night lifted the freshman regulation on dating, that "freshman men and women shall have no association with members of the opposite sex within a three-mile radius of Old Main; she'll be permitted to say 'Hello' in the specified areas, but that shall be the limit of their conversation," for the coke dates to be sponsored from 4 to 5 p.m. daily by the Penn State Christian Association.

Frosh will be required to wear dress customs at these affairs. The coke dates will be announced at a later date by the PSCA.

Veterans who signed for customs exemption cards may pick up their cards tomorrow at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

Ossian R. MacKenzie
Business School Dean

MacKenzie Gets Position As Dean Of New School

Ossian R. MacKenzie, former assistant dean of the Graduate School of Business and assistant to the executive director of the American Assembly at Columbia University, has assumed the position of dean of the new School of Business.

The school, established in July, enrolled its first students yesterday with the opening of the fall semester classes. The College Board of Trustees last January approved the separation of the Department of Economics and Commerce from the School of the Liberal Arts to become the School of Business.

Journalism Degree

President Eisenhower said the new school will provide Pennsylvania business and industry with a conventional land-grant college service, benefit the students by opening the way for accreditation by the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, and foster more effective business instruction and research.

A native of Hampden, Me., Dean MacKenzie was graduated from the University of Montana with a B.A. degree in journalism. He studied economics at Harvard University, and later received a bachelor of laws degree from

(Continued on page eight)

Penn State's ninth and newest school, the School of Business, began its first regular session of classes yesterday, seeking to foster effective instruction and research for both undergraduates and graduates.

The school was formally approved by the College Board of Trustees in January, 1953, and was authorized to begin operations July 1.

Department Heads

Ossian R. MacKenzie, formerly of Columbia University, was appointed dean of the new School. David H. McKinley, associate professor of finance, has been named assistant dean.

Department heads for the three academic departments of the school have also been appointed.

Charles J. Rowland, professor of accounting, has been appointed head of the Department of Accounting and Business Statistics.

Acting head of the Department of Commerce is Ralph H. Wherry, associate professor of insurance.

Director of Research

Howard A. Cutler, assistant professor of economics, was named head of the Department of Economics.

Included in the office of the dean is a director of research. George L. Leffler, professor of finance, has been appointed acting director. He will also head the Advisory Council of Planning and continue as assistant director of the Bureau of Business Research.

The Advisory Council of Planning will assist the office of the dean in an advisory capacity. It will consist of the director and four faculty members. Among its duties will be advising the office of the dean on planning and policy.

(Continued on page eight)

Flanagan Band To Play Nov. 6

Ralph Flanagan and his orchestra will play at the annual Junior Prom Nov. 6, Joseph Barnett, class president, announced yesterday.

The semi-formal dance in Recreation Hall, will start Junior Weekend activities including fraternity house parties, the Fordham football game, and a Players show in Schwab Auditorium.

Dance tickets will be $4 per couple.

Today ...

The Lion Roars

A growl of approval for Penn State's ninth and newest school, the School of Business.

Classes for both grads and undergrads began in the new school yesterday. Ossian R. MacKenzie, formerly of Columbia University, is new dean.

Philip Greenberg, seventh semester arts and letters major, is president of the school's student council, which will begin operations soon.

Weapons Ban Proposed by Vishinsky

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 21 (AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky demanded today the immediate and unconditional prohibition of hydrogen and atomic bombs and all weapons of mass destruction.

In a resolution at the end of his policy speech to the UN General Assembly, the Soviet chief delegate proposed the Security Council set up international controls to make certain nations comply with bans on these weapons. The Russians have a veto in the council and the Americans have refused to accept similar Russian proposals in the past.

Vishinsky also made a bid to admit neutrals to the Korean peace conference in line with demands by the Red Chinese.

He attacked the United States for opposing Peiping's admission to the UN, urged a one-third cut in the armed forces of the Big Five powers, called for a disarmament conference, and demanded the elimination of American military bases on foreign soil.

Except that he added the word "hydrogen" to take account of Russia's announcement last month she now has the H-bomb secret, there was nothing new in Vishinsky's proposals.

They all have been beaten by large majorities and key Western delegates said the same fate would await the latest Russian resolution.

UN delegates, noting the long official pronouncements from Russia in recent weeks on the hydrogen bomb, had been expecting some new turn from Vishinsky. But Western diplomats said he did not offer one constructive way out of the East-West deadlocks in the UN.

The United States delegation, through its spokesman, blasted Vishinsky's speech and his closing resolution as a "rambling rehash of what we have heard many times before."

The spokesman said the delegation was disappointed that Vishinsky had given a negative response to the proposals of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in his speech opening the Assembly's debate last Thursday.

Dulles told the Assembly the United States was standing pat on plans for control of the atomic weapon and for arms limitation which have been approved by past assemblies. He said the time has come for the UN to gather all necessary information on these subjects so it can take advantage of any change in the world situation that would bring about a settlement.