

Lions Face 2nd Grid Champion

When Penn State kicks off against the Quakers of Penn at 2:00 p.m. Saturday it will be the second consecutive weekend that Coach Rip Engle's gridders will face a football conference champion.

Last season Penn regained the "mythical" Ivy League championship from Princeton.

Although Penn is ordinarily hailed as a perennial Ivy League champion, it will not be eligible for the title this year since it only has one Ivy League opponent scheduled. That is inning blast, they finally managed to knock out a fast-tiring Reynolds in the sixth only to see the game go out the window when their own pitchers failed. Twelve Brooks were stranded, only two short of the Series record.

Jim Hughes, who allowed only one run in four innings after taking over from Erskine, was the only effective Dodger pitcher. After he went out for pinch-hitter George Shuba in the sixth, Manager Chuck Dressen couldn't find a stopper.

Billy Martin hit a three-run triple with the bases loaded off Erskine in the first and added a pair of singles to lead the Yankee attack. Collins and Yogi Berra provided the home run punch.

Junior Gilliam, Gil Hodges and Shuba ripped into Reynolds' pitches for home runs before Manager Casey Stengel brought in tobacco chawin' Sain. Curveball Johnny allowed only one more run and five hits over the last four and two thirds innings to earn the victory.

Reynolds threw like a man determined to go as far as he could and let Stengel worry about the late innings. He was superb in the first four, blanking the Brooks with only two hits.

From the time Gilliam, the rookie who chased Jackie Robinson off second base, hit his homer into the right field seats in the fifth, it was obvious that Reynolds would be lucky to go nine.

Time after time he went to three balls on the hitter. When he finally was yanked after Hodges' blast and Shuba's two-run pinch homer in the sixth, he had thrown 104 pitches. Most pitchers average about 120 or so for a full game.

Game Close

Brooklyn's manager Charlie Dressen said the close call at third base in the seventh inning decided the first World Series game in favor of the Yankees, but he refused to "alibi."

"All I'm going to say is that it was close," the doctory Dodger master mind said in the dressing room afterwards. "I'm not going to cry like the Yankees did last year."

"But if Hodges is safe, it's an entirely different ball game."

The situation was this:

The game was tied 5-5 with Brooklyn at bat and none out at the top of the seventh.

Gil Hodges was on second and Carl Furillo on first after slashing singles.

No Protest

Third baseman Billy Cox bunted and Yogi Berra scooped up the ball and rifled it to the Yankee third baseman, Gil McDougald.

Art Gore, National League umpire at third, threw his hands up quickly on the close play. Dressen went into a dance of rage at third base but made no official protest. Other Dodgers complained.

But instead of having the bases full with none out, the Dodgers had men on first and second with one out. The Yankees emerged from the situation without permitting another score and went on to win 9-5.

Hodges Hits

The beaten Dodgers were solemn but not down-hearted as they trooped single file into their dressing quarters under the Yankee Stadium catecombs.

They had some consolation in that first baseman Gil Hodges bounced out of the first World Series hitting which had seen him go 0 for 24.

Cornell. However, the Quakers undoubtedly possess one of the roughest schedules in the country.

Penn's 1953 football team is still a potent force on the gridiron even though they only defeated Vanderbilt, 13-7 last Saturday. It was obvious that Penn felt the sting of one-platoon football, but so did Penn State. Therefore, this game should prove which team has benefited from its experience last Saturday.

Red Munger, who is in his last year as head coach at Penn, has a nucleus of 27 lettermen from the 1952 championship team to form the backbone of the current squad.

Munger has been trying to groom men to take over for eleven outstanding members of last year's team which posted a 4-3-2 record. One of its losses was at the hands of Penn State, 14-7. The Quakers had been unbeaten in five games before the Nittany Lion contest.

Losses like Captain Bob Evans, Ed Bell, the All-American left end, and a pair of fine running backs, Bill Deuber, and Glenn Adams, will certainly be felt. However, in the important tailback and fullback positions in the single wing attack, Munger has Walt Hynoski, the Mt. Carmel, Pa. griddier who has been named to many All-America predictions for this year, and Joe Varaitis, a hard-running fullback who has picked up 1024 yards and nine touchdowns in the last two years.

Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh both lead Penn State by commanding margins in their all-time football rivalry.

Penn State's own version of "touch-football" continued through its third successive frame with two Intramural grid contests at Beaver Field last night.

The Terrors took the measure of Joe's Boys, 32-0, to get the season's Independent schedule under way, while Alpha Chi Sigma lost to Triangle, 6-0, in the evening's finale.

Soccer Managers

Candidates, including freshmen, interested in being soccer managers are requested to report to Ken Hosterman, booter coach, or the senior soccer manager. Both men can be contacted in Rec Hall anytime after 3 p.m. today.

Lions Open Soccer Log At Bucknell

The 1953 soccer season makes its bow this coming Saturday, as coach Ken Hosterman's booters travel to Lewisburg to meet the Bucknell Bisons.

These same two clubs also inaugurated the 1952 season opener, with the Nittany Lions having things pretty much their own way. The final count of that ball game found Penn State on the winning side of a 10-1 score. As usual, Jack Pinezich managed to bear the brunt of the Lion scoring.

Although the Lion booters are hoping for a repeat performance of last year's game, Bucknell is expected to field a veteran team. With this situation facing them, a Lion victory would probably be a forerunner of things to come.

With no definite lineup established, the Nittany Lions will have seven veterans available for opening game action. Of those awaiting the call to action, Bob Harris opened last season's contest at goalie. Paul Dierks and Captain "Hap" Irwin formed an almost impregnable combination at the fullback slots.

Hubie Kline and Bill Norcik held down the outside posts. The latter was second to Jack Pinezich in individual scoring last season. Ralph Hoffman and Gail Robbins saw action at the halfback positions. Coach Hosterman has been searching for able replacements for these positions which were hit hard due to graduation.

Bob Little, who was being counted on by Coach Hosterman, has been declared ineligible for the coming campaign because he is not carrying enough credits.

Penn State Club failed to show up for the scheduled final encounter with the Bulldogs, thus forfeiting the game.

Lou Schneider, Paul Phillips, Butch Lentz, and Joe Captain were the main factors in the Terror's 32-0 romp over Joe's Boys. Each man played a decisive role in the victory, with Phillips and Schneider each accounting for two tallies, and Captain crossing the double chalk mark twice. Schneider completed two of five extra point pass attempts, one to Captain and one to Schuman, to account for the Terror's 32 counters.

Just seven minutes after the opening whistle, a Phillips-to-Schneider-to-Captain aerial clicked for the winner's initial six-pointer. Following the ensuing kickoff and a quick series of downs in which Joe's Boys failed to advance the pigskin, Schneider passed to Lentz for another Terror score. In the final seconds of the first half, the winners again clicked in the air. This time it was a Schneider to Lentz to Captain combination that accounted for a TD.

On the Joe's Boys kickoff to open the final period, a Schneider-to-Lentz-to-Phillips-to-Captain aerial once again came through to give the Terrors six points. The play covered a total of 95 yards. Halfway through the final chapter, after receiving an opponent's punt on his own 25, Schneider advanced to his 45 and passed to Lentz who galloped ten yards, and then threw to Phillips who raced ten yards to paydirt to wind up the scoring.

It was definitely the sterling offensive play by Schneider, Phillips, Lentz, and Captain that spelled defeat for the losers.

Don Holler, Red Felix and Bill Greenawalt played great all-around ball in vain, as Alpha Chi Sigma was turned back by Triangle, 6-0, in the evening's final encounter. It was a Paul Shoop-to-Paul Whipkey-to-Harry Leshner pass play that accounted for the winner's lone tally. Jim Bobb's pass attempt to Rodney Beck for the seventh point failed. Neither team was able to score in the final period as excellent defensive play was shown by both squads.

Sports Briefs

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today released Emil "Dutch" Leonard, 43-year-old pitcher who had been with the National League club since 1949.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—Billy Martin, whose first inning bases-loaded triple sent the New York Yankees away winging in the first World Series game today, has a ready answer for his recently discovered power. "I think it's DiMag's locker. He must have left some base hits in it."

VIRGINIA WATER, England, Sept. 30 (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum, U.S. Ryder Cup golf team captain, today replied to some British sports writers who have been claiming the U.S. team is the weakest since at least World War II.

"These British don't know Americans," he said during practice for the cup matches over the tough 6700-yard Wentworth course Friday and Saturday.

"We're here to win. I think we will. Wentworth is a long, rugged hitters' course. We like this place. I've played dozens of courses over here and this is my favorite. It's the best."

Mangrum would not say he thought this was America's best team but "I can't remember a stronger one," he said after checking players on previous teams.
