Patrolman M. A. Seckinger reported that the accident was not Lawrence's fault. Complete details of the accident had not been secured at the time.

Independents Pledge Blood Contribution

Independents have thus far pledged to contribute more blood for the Oct. 13-15 campus blood drive than fraternity members, Jack Huber, liaison representative for the State College Red Cross unit, announced yesterday. About 75 pledge cards have been returned.

Pledge cards and minor release forms are available at the Student Union desk in Old Main and in the lobby of the West Dorm lounge. Forms must be turned in by Tuesday to 112 Old Main to allow for scheduling.

The Johnstown Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at Temporary Union Building during the drive. It will be prepared to handle 500 pints of blood. Appointments will be scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 13 to 15, and from 1 to 7 p.m. Oct. 14.

Students between the ages of 18 and 21 who wish to give blood must have release forms signed by parents. Donors will be informed of appointments by mail.

Donors should list at least two times when they will be able to give blood. This is necessary to prevent scheduling too many donors for the same time. The process takes approximately one hour for each donor, but a two hour period should be scheduled. Students will not be excused from classes the day they give blood.

According to Thomas Schott, IFC President, the tentative fraternity goal is ten pints from each house.

From donation centers, the blood is sent to Johnstown to be distributed to the Armed Forces or civilian hospitals for treatment of shock, hemorrhage, severe burns and anemia.

Six Dimensions Add New Headache for Students

By BETTY KOSTER

Six dimensions are a potential reason for headaches for future students of mathematics and engineering.

The two extra dimensions will be added to those of Dr. Albert Einstein—length, breadth, thickness, and time.

Dutch-American scientist Prof. Abraham Pais, colleague of Dr. Einstein at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, recently announced his new theory at a meeting of leading scientists in Kyoto, Japan.

Few professors there showed astonishment over the 35-year old professor's envisionment of more than four dimensions. However, most physicists present shared Pais' optimistic outlook that six dimensions were a possibility.

The problem of mesons, tiny particles in the nuclei of atoms, prompted the new six dimensional theory. Since width, length, thickness and even Dr. Einstein's addition of time, did not take care of these tricky little particles, Dr. Pais decided to delve into mathematics to try to explain their strange appearances and disappearances in the atomic nucleus.

Even though the senses cannot comprehend six-dimensional reasoning, the formula works—a hideous thought for all those students who have extreme difficulty even figuring out correct change after a snack at the Corner Room.

Removal of Customs Results in Confusion

The removal of four freshman customs requirements yesterday, by Freshman Customs Board had an adverse effect on remaining customs enforcement as frosh refused to "button" and "curtsy."

Customs board lifted regulations on frosh conversation with members of the opposite sex, dating, wearing of name cards and bow ties, and carrying of Student Handbooks.

Freshmen must wear dinks and observe the remaining customs regulations until the Penn State-Syracuse football game, Oct. 17.

According to Thomas Farrell and Joyce Shusman, co-chairmen of customs board, frosh must still curtsy and doff dinks, and know school songs, cheers and locations of campus buildings upon request of upperclassmen.

Upperclassmen commented yesterday that freshmen were ignoring customs enforcement and were telling customs enforcers that "since customs were declared over, frosh need not respond to any customs enforcement."

One freshman said that since the removal of name cards, upperclassmen have no way of checking the names of violators.

Customs violators reported to customs board before the lifting of the four regulations will be penalized some time next week. One violation was turned in to the Student Union desk yesterday. Freshman women will receive ten o'clock nominations tonight and tomorrow night.
