

Groups Seek Recreation Hall For Roosevelt Talk Tomorrow

In hopes that a larger student audience will be able to hear Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt speak tomorrow night, attempts are being made to secure Recreation Hall for the talk.

At present, the talk is scheduled to be presented at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium. It is entitled, "The Truth about the United Nations."

In a move sponsored by the Association of Independent Men, Interfraternity Council, Leonides, and the Panhellenic Council, financial support was also given to the transfer. It has been estimated that the transfer would cost more than $100. More than $140 has been pledged by the student groups.

LA Council To Sponsor Coffee Hours

Liberal Arts Student Council decided last night to hold coffee hours for faculty and students of the LA school. The mixers, financed by the 25-cent assessment placed on each LA student, are to promote better student-faculty relations.

Watson Leese and Mary Lee Lauffer, co-chairmen of the coffee hour committee, will work with their committee members to select 100 students for each mixer. Students and faculty from the same curriculum will be invited to attend. In this way, the LA Student Council feels that better relations will be formed than by inviting students and faculty members from different curriculums. Approximately 16 mixers will be held during the year so that all of the 1600 LA students will be invited.

Another project begun by the council is the formulating of a policy for an LA publication. Loa Packard and Jane Reber were appointed by Richard Kirschner, president of council, to head the committee to prepare the policy of the publication. Council suggested that the publication should be closer to magazine style than newsletter style. This project will also be financed from the $400 collected from the LA students and the $100 given to the council by the Inter-School Council Board.

19 Women Remain In Dorm Lounges

Only 19 women remain without rooms in dormitories or cottages, Dean of Women Pearl O. Weston reported yesterday.

Girls housed in Pollock 10 were moved last week.

Dean Weston said the 19 women in dormitory lounges will be assigned rooms as soon as vacancies occur. Four College cottages are filled, she said.

However, the committee in charge feels that the move is not feasible at this late date, reported David Russell, professor of sociology and committee head. There are many things that must be attended to in order to effect such a transfer, he said, which in the opinion of the committee, are too numerous to be accomplished in such a short time.

A basic point of disagreement was the number of students to be expected at the talk. This will also be a factor in the final decision concerning a transfer.

Doors to Schwab auditorium will open at 7:15. Nearly 250 seats have been reserved for the sponsors of the program and special guests. However, all seats will be available to the general public after 7:45. All seats are free.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who has a luncheon engagement in Pittsburgh Wednesday, is expected to arrive at the College Wednesday evening. She is expected to leave immediately following the lecture so she will be able to keep an appointment in New York City Thursday morning.

Mrs. Roosevelt was appointed to the United Nations General Assembly in 1945, where she served for seven years, and has served as chairman of the committee on human rights of the United Nations Economic and Social Council. She is currently making a series of speeches for the American Association for the United Nations.

The lecture will be sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association for the United Nations in cooperation with the All-College Committee on International Cooperation and the School of Education.

'The Moon Is Blue' Opens Friday Night

By EDMUND REISS

"The Moon Is Blue," Players first show of the year, will open Friday night for a six-week run at Center Stage.

Written by F. Hugh Herbert, this hilarious comedy first opened March 8, 1951 at the Henry Miller on Broadway. A sex comedy with an atmosphere of modest sophistication, the play manages to keep a spirit of attractive innocence. It shows that once in a blue moon two nice people can meet and fall in love in a single day.

The setting of the play is the observation platform of New York's Empire State Building and in a bachelor-architect's modern apartment. With only four characters, including one on stage about two minutes, the show depends on conversation rather than action.

Nothing said is of any world-wide importance, and certainly none of the lines sets Herbert up as a radical thinker. The only philosophizing he does is to show that a girl can be nice and still be interesting.

The author was born in London and received his education there. Working as an advertising specialist, Herbert came to the United States and became employed as a scenarist with the Long Island branch of the Paramount Film Co.

His first play, "Quiet Please," was written in collaboration with Hans Kraly in 1940. With the production of "Kiss and Tell"

Herbert's rise was meteoric. Written in 1943, the play ran over 950 performances.

Other Herbert plays include "For Keeps," produced in 1944 and "For Love or Money," in 1947. Besides writing plays, Herbert is known as the author of several novels and numerous magazine stories.
