WRA Hears Report of Convention

A report on the 1953 state convention of the Pennsylvania Division of the Athletic Federation of College Women was presented Monday to the executive board of the Women's Recreation Association.

Elizabeth George and Martha Rojhan, delegates to the convention, represented the College on the ways and means committee and the scheduling board.

The scheduling board discussed the problem of play days and how to eliminate conflict among the colleges in scheduling them. A new program was set up in which each college will be asked what play days they are having, what activities they are planning, and what colleges they are inviting. Penn State has charge of scheduling this year.

Discuss Money
The ways and means committee decided to send only one delegate to the national convention. This delegate will be the incoming president of WRA.

The possibility of obtaining enough money to send two representatives by raising dues was discussed. The committee decided that WRA officers should begin their duties in January instead of March.

Sports Day
Miss George acted as second vice president of the convention. The board set up plans for a Sports Day tomorrow at Juniata College. Penn State, Bucknell, Lycoming College and Juniata will compete in hockey.

An amendment to the WRA election code which calls for the spring election of the sophomore representative on WRA was also passed by the board.
