

Thomas to Speak At 3-Day Colloquy

Norman Thomas, author, lecturer and six-time candidate for the presidency on the Socialist ticket, will be one of four prominent speakers here this weekend for the political and religious colloquy sponsored by the Department of Political Science, the junior class and the Penn State Christian Association.

Hillel Group To Hear Reede At 1st Session

The Eisenhower administration will be discussed at 8 p.m. Sunday at the Hillel Foundation, 244 S. Miles street, at the first in the series of five town meetings sponsored by the foundation.

Arthur H. Reede, professor of economics, Leon J. Quinto, assistant professor of economics, and Vernon V. Aspaturian, assistant professor of political science, will discuss the topic "The Eisenhower Administration in Retrospect and Prospect in Past and Future." The moderator will be Rabbi Benjamin M. Kahn. Each speaker will present his viewpoint followed by an open discussion period.

The town meeting is a non-partisan platform for the discussion of varying viewpoints of social, economic and political issues of the day.

The colloquy will end at 8 p.m. Monday when the elder Socialist leader will discuss "Freedom: Yesterday and Today" in Schwab Auditorium.

Reds' Opposition—

sian policy, however, which these speculations overlook. It is the time-honored practice of never making peace about anything, trying to keep the Western world stewing in its own juices, hoping that from the stew will result differences which will eventually lead to a split in the anti-Communist front, and so offer an opportunity for Russia to fall back on the Hitlerian tactic of piecemeal conquest.

For the moment, however, since Lugano was proposed by the Allies more as a test of Russian intent than in the hope of concrete achievement, the Russian position probably will do more good than harm.

Proponents of EDC may soon be able to say, as Westerners have been able to say so often when Russia did something to rally their wavering unity: "The Russians have done it again."

Alpha Epsilon Phi

Alpha Epsilon Phi gave a Halloween dance Oct. 31 at Phi Epsilon Pi. The sorority pledges entertained with an original skit. Helene Freed, social chairman of Alpha Epsilon Phi, was in charge of the dance.

Footloose Lad Fell for Maiden—Valley Is Named

There's a legend behind the name Nittany, and, like all good legends should, this one involves a beautiful—but tearful—Indian maiden.

Her name was Nitane. Legend has it that Malachi Boyer, a footloose trader, wandered into the then nameless valley and fell in love with fair Nitane.

The seven strong braves who were Nitane's brothers wouldn't have footloose traders falling in love with their sister.

So the footloose one was imprisoned in what is now Penn's Cave. And there he died.

Thus ended a beautiful romance. But from it all sprung the Nitane legend.

The name of the tearful maiden—spelled somewhat differently—now graces the Nittany Valley, the Mt. Nittany, and the Nittany Lion.

Just goes to prove something or other.

Panhel OK's Rushing Code For Next Year

The formal rushing code used by sororities this fall has been approved by Panhellenic Council for use during the next formal rush period.

The section on informal rushing has been amended to state that there will be no informal rushing between 7 p.m. and 1 p.m. (rather than 11 a.m.) of the following day and that only two sorority alumnae may be present at informal rushing coke dates. The alumnae may be the chapter adviser and chapter rushing adviser or other alumnae representing those offices.

Ellen Wandel, council president, announced that the Powder Bowl sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma and the Aye See Colony of Pi Beta Phi netted approximately $500 for the Campus Chest.

Panhel is working with the Penn State Christian Association on ideas for topics of fireside chats.

Miss Wandel reported that results of a poll taken by the council showed that one out of five sorority women favored coeducational swimming in Glendon Pool.

Thru the Looking Glass

with Gabbi

Hey you happy hooligans, it's me again, singing and sighing because it's houseparty week-end and because I've just come from ETHEL'S. (We bring news faster than Western Union, by gum!) I just got some "scents" knocked into me when I opened a bottle of Hattie Carnegie's Four Winds cologne (if this doesn't knock him dead, nothing will). Let's be intoxicating this week-end with a splash of Carnegie perfume and then he'll know what it means when they say you can get drunk by smelling the cork.

Neckline news for happiness... a rope isn't the only fashionable thing we're wearing around our necks this season; we're also wearing scarfs—and the prettiest and filmiest ones are at ETHEL'S. Pure silk, gay patterns and printing, they add so much to a neckline, especially if they're looped through a double silver ring that creates the perfect rakish effect. (Now stand on the Mall when the wind's working up and get the crowning touch of that care-less look) are the new boxes of note paper ETHEL'S have just received. Boxed especially for her and priced at a mere 69 cents, they are white or blue, with fine gold or dark blue piping—so perfect for RSVP-ing or writing home for money. In the stationery set, we also found some cra-a-azy books for the epicurean. (Attention Philosophy 2 students) One is called "The Weigh of All Flesh" and is a real neat calorie counter that's full of facts and figures—special emphasis on the latter—another is "A Well-Dressed Tomato," pages of slightly delicious salads that are actually edible—and for the potential bartender (or bar-fly) a "Guide to the Pink Elephant," dizzy and darling and chuckful of concoctions.
