

'Hat' Charters To Be Revised

Richard Gibbs, Hat Societies Council president, last night requested that the constitutions of men's hat societies be revised to meet current comparative ratings of campus activities and that the constitutions of men's and women's hat societies be submitted to the council for approval by the end of the semester.

Late Hours Sought for Ed Library

Education Student Council named Carol Durbin, third semester education major, chairman of a committee to investigate the possibility of having the education library, first floor Byrrowes Building, open evenings.

The action was taken as a result of several suggestions left in the Education Student Council suggestion box. The library now closes at 5 p.m.

Council members were asked to contact education students in their classes to determine if Edits, Education school publication, should be continued, and how many students would be willing to work on it.

A Christmas party for students in the School of Education was tentatively set for Dec. 17 in Temporary Union Building. Susanna Wescott, chairman of the social committee, announced committees for the party. They are, refreshments, Diane Edelman and Marilyn DuPont; entertainment, Janet Feather, Alice Murray, Dorothy Swanson, Jo Anne Fulton and Natalie Moskowitz; advertisement, Annie Campbell, Ann Lofquist, Barbara Easter and Carolyn Carey; decorations, Charles Witmer; cleanup, Edward Crossley, and an advisory committee, Gwen Griffith and Harry Shank.

Gibbs said some of the men's societies' constitutions are two years old and very much in need of revision.

He said the constitutions of women's hat societies cannot be changed except by their national chapters, according to the charters of the national chapters.

Gibbs asked that the revisions include definite requirements for tapping new members. At present, some of the men's societies' constitutions list a point system for the comparative rating of campus activities, while others list general activities eligible for recognition by the society.

The comparative ratings in the constitutions are not all in accordance with current evaluations of activities, based on service to the College and amount of work required by the activities, Gibbs said.

Revisions of the men's hat society constitutions are made by the societies and are submitted to the council for final approval. The constitutions must be in accordance with the All-College Cabinet constitution, Gibbs said.

The council completed their recommendations to the Freshman Joint Customs Board on next year's customs period.

Recommendations made last night are:

1. That the customs period end after two weeks.

2. That blue dinks with white buttons and white class numerals replace the green dinks worn this year.

3. That the wearing of black bow ties by men be dropped from the dress customs requirements.

4. That a contest between freshmen and sophomore men, such as a rope pulling, be held at the end of the customs period; that if the freshmen win the contest, customs be lifted, and if the freshmen lose, customs continue for several days.

5. That no customs period be held during the spring semester.

The council dropped a recommendation made two weeks ago that freshmen be required to wear name cards during Orientation Week as well as during the customs period, because they felt that not enough students would have returned to campus during Orientation Week for complete enforcement of the regulation.

Gibbs said the recommendations will be added to those made by the council two weeks ago, that dating restrictions be removed from the customs program and that customs be jointly enforced every day of the customs period.

The recommendations will be given to the customs board before their next meeting, Nov. 13, Gibbs said.

Trainer Says Campus Green Is Disappearing

Take a long look at the campus green you see today, for tomorrow that same campus green may be transformed into just another brown patch.

New paths across campus lawns are springing up almost overnight, according to Walter W. Trainer, supervisor of landscape construction and maintenance. In the last four weeks alone, Trainer said, over two dozen new paths have come into being.

The situation is reaching the serious stage, Trainer said, and the College physical plant is not in a position to do any additional paving until next summer. Last summer the physical plant put in over 1400 feet of asphalt sidewalks over paths cut through the campus the previous semester.

As a temporary alternative, Trainer said, the physical plant will have to resort to putting up posts and chains to restrain short-cutting students.

Some paths are legitimate short-cuts and will possibly be paved next summer, Trainer said, but the majority of the paths result from student indifference.

Trainer cited the path on the Mall by Old Main and the path north of Whitmore Laboratory as prime examples of student indifference.

Flanagan Is Music's 'Man of Miracles'

By BAYLEE FREIDMAN

Who was it who said miracles don't exist? Ralph Flanagan, whose orchestra will play tomorrow night at the Junior Prom, gives convincing proof that they might.

Flanagan is the man who left the arranger staff of the Perry Como Supper Club to gross a half-million dollars, make 1950's top selling popular albums and appear before three million persons—all in one year.

In 1949 Flanagan was merely a name on RCA Victor records. Then he was signed to make a few dance band sides for his company. Here shone an opportunity to turn out instrumental music with a strong dance beat—a phenomenon which had faded after the Miller-Goodman-Shaw era. The records, including "You're Breaking My Heart," established the Flanagan name.

As a youngster in Lorain, O., Flanagan had no doubts that he'd be a success someday. Only his dream was to become an aviator like his idol Charles Lindbergh. His mother's pleas to take piano lessons were answered with the typical "music's for sissies" response.

But attitudes change and Flanagan's negativism toward music turned positive when he was 17. In fact, it changed with such determination, that within a short time he was playing with small bands and combos. He devoted much of his time to arranging, too. In 1940 Sammy Kaye heard about Flanagan, and, as Kaye's

60 to Attend Coffee Hour

Over 60 students from various living areas have been invited to attend a dean of men's coffee hour from 4 to 5 p.m. today in the Dean of Men's office, 109 Old Main.

Sponsored jointly by the Dean of Men's office and All-College Cabinet, the sessions propose to give the dean's office and the students a better understanding of each other's problems, according to Jane Mason, in charge of the coffee hours.

piano-arranger, Flanagan was on his way.

Four years in the army entered into the picture. Then came the job with Victor and then "You're Breaking My Heart."

Before anyone could fully realize it—including the bandleader himself—the Flanagan story had turned into a minor miracle.

Tickets priced at $4 will go on sale 8 a.m. tomorrow at the Student Union desk in Old Main.
