

7 Fraternities Set Dances for Tonight

By AL MUNN

Seven fraternities will hold houseparties tonight to begin Junior Week celebrations. Parties will be held at Alpha Epsilon Pi, Kappa Alpha Psi, Phi Epsilon Pi, Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Sigma Delta, Sigma Alpha Mu and Zeta Beta Tau.

Rusty Burke and his orchestra will provide music for Alpha Epsilon Pi's annual pledge dance. The semi-formal dance will be open at 9 p.m. A jam session will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday. The music will be by Burke, and the session will be open.

"Record Theme" will be sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi. Guests will come dressed as titles of popular records. Dancing to recordings will be held from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m.

Phi Epsilon Pi will hold a formal dinner dance. The Melody Men will furnish rhythm for the semi-formal.

A cocktail party with Jim Elliott and his orchestra furnishing entertainment will be held at Phi Kappa Tau.

Mike Rosenfeld and his orchestra will play at Phi Sigma Delta's dinner dance. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. until 1:30 a.m. Doors will be open for the dance.

"Duffy's Tavern" will prevail at Sigma Alpha Mu. Bar room decorations and appropriate costumes will furnish atmosphere. The party will be open.

Walk up a gangplank and into Zeta Beta Tau. Lifesavers will furnish background for the seafarers strolling the plank. Dick Marsh and his orchestra will provide the music.

Fulbright Winner Named Visiting Ceramics Prof
Dr. Megumi Tashire, of Kyoto University, Japan, has been appointed visiting professor of ceramics at the College for one year under a Fulbright grant.

He will work with Dr. Wolde-maar A. Weyl, professor of glass technology, on research on the constitution and properties of glass and enamels.

Checker Club to Play
The Checker Club will meet the Clearfield Eagles at 8 tonight in the Temporary Union Building.

Weekend Hours
Upperclasswomen will receive 2 a.m. permissions for the Junior Prom tonight and 1 a.m. permissions tomorrow night. Hours for freshman women this weekend will be 1 a.m. tonight and midnight tomorrow night.

2 Business Profs Honored in Book
Two faculty members of the School of Business are listed in the 1953 edition of "Who's Who in Commerce and Industry," published by the A. N. Marquis Co.

They are Dr. George L. Leffler, director of planning for the School of Business and professor of finance, and Dr. Sheldon C. Tanner, professor of business law.

Religion—Church Groups Meet Tonight
Several student church groups will hold social meetings tonight.

Wesley Foundation of the Methodist Church will hold open house and a taffy pull at 7:30 tonight at the foundation.

The Lutheran Student Association will sponsor a bowling and roller skating party at 7:30 tonight. Students will meet at the Church Student Center.

Hillel Foundation will hold Sabbath Eve services at 8 tonight at the foundation, 224 S. Miles street. Rabbi Benjamin M. Kahn will officiate.

Chem-Phys Mixer Will Be at TUB
The chemistry-physics student-faculty mixer will be held Wednesday at the Temporary Union Building, and not at the Eutaw House as previously announced.

The mixer will provide an opportunity for chemistry-physics majors to become acquainted with professors. The mixer is open to students in the school.

Mortar Board Treasurer Requests Expense Lists
Ethel Brown, treasurer of Mortar Board, senior women's hat society, asks that chairmen of Mardi Gras committees turn in a bill for their expenses no later than Nov. 11.

Women may submit expense lists for reimbursement to Miss Brown in 422 Sirmons.

Correspondent Will Address Journ Coeds
About 180 women journalism majors have been invited to the annual tea of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalism honorary, 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday in Atherton lounge.

Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, Washington newspaper woman and radio-television commentator, will discuss her recent trip around the world.

On committees for the tea are Mary Jameson and Margaret Trol-lier, invitations; Lenore Kahano-witz, name tags; Ilene McKenzie, refreshments; Eliza Newell, arrangements; Virginia Bowman and Evelyn Kiehar, cleanup.

President Nancy Gemmill and Grace Shoffstall, vice president, will pour.

Blatt to Open 3-Day Colloquy
The annual colloquy on politics and religion which begins tomorrow will feature five events during the three-day program.

Mrs. Genevieve Blatt, director of the Intercollegiate Conference on Government, will open the colloquy when she speaks on "Faculty and Student Freedom" at the faculty dinner at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Autoport.

Norman Thomas, colorful elder politician who unsuccessfully sought the United States presidency six times on the Socialist party ticket, will also discuss the theme of the three-day program, "Freedom—Can We Risk It?"

Block to Lead
Sponsored by the Penn State Christian Association, the Department of Political Science and the junior class, the colloquy will be conducted by William Block, joint owner and publisher of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, Mrs. Blatt, Buell Gallagher, president of the City College of New York, and Thomas.

Dr. Gallagher, author, preacher and former assistant commissioner of education of the United States, will speak at Chapel service on "The Meaning of Freedom" at 11 a.m. Sunday in Schwab Auditorium. McElwain lounge will be scene of a tea in honor of the four guests from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Kent Forster, associate professor of history, will serve as moderator at a symposium to be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in 121 Sparks. The speakers will discuss aspects of this year's topic including threats to political freedom and problems of freedom on the campus.

Will Discuss Campaigns
Thomas will discuss "Reflections on My Six Tries for the Presidency" at a meeting designed for students interested in political science at 10 a.m. in Little Theatre in Old Main. At 11, the program will be turned open to student questions and informal discussion.

An address by Thomas on "Freedom: Yesterday and Today" will conclude the colloquy at 8 p.m. Monday in 121 Sparks. Kirk Garber, president of PSCA, will serve as chairman of the program.

Alice Murray, seventh semester education major, is chairman of the general committee for the colloquy. Students serving on committees for the annual three-day program are Harry Shank, Ann Patterson, Linda Jacobs, Dorothy Osterhout, Doris Humphrey, Duane Holm, and Sylvia Crum. Association members will serve as ushers.

6 Faculty Advisers
Faculty consultants are the Rev. Luther Harshbarger, College chaplain and executive secretary of PSCA, Mary Jane Wyland, program coordinator of the Christian Association, Dr. John H. Ferguson, professor of political science, Dr. Robert B. Patrick, associate professor of education, Dr. Warren B. Miller, associate professor of chemistry, and Dr. Neil Reimer, assistant professor of political science.

Confusion Prevails In Co-op Apartment

By JIM JACOBY

Ever live in a home of mass confusion? Imagine trying to study for that tough exam with loud wails of a baby coming from the floor below. Imagine trying to make a meal in a kitchen with two other families trying to do the same thing with the same stove, sink, and refrigerator.

Add all these complications together, with a second baby, two more kitchens undergoing the same treatment and seven families from all over the state with different ideas about everything, and you have what is known as complete hysteria, or a "cooperative" apartment—seven students trying to go to school and live with their families at the same time.

All kinds of families, including newlyweds, live in the apartment, from the West Virginia wife who likes her fried mush to the Pennsylvania Dutch fraulein who likes her Snitz and Knepp. Mixed aromas rise from the kitchens to all the rooms. To find out what the neighbors are having for supper, one needs only to open the bedroom door and get a whiff.

Newest Couple
The newest couple is Jim, a senior, and Janet, a junior, married only one month. They're from the western part of the state, and are usually the noisiest. Jim is a Republican and Janet is a Democrat, a relationship two steps below the Hatfields and the McCoys.

Shortly after arriving at State College, Janet unpacked a personally signed photograph in a glass frame to a prominent lady Democrat, one of Janet's political friends. She laid the picture on the bed and left the room.

Jim, at the same time, decided to knock some cobwebs from the ceiling. He stepped on the bed in his stocking feet and unknowingly crunched the picture!

No Cooked Supper
You can imagine the explosion that resulted when Janet returned, and poor innocent Jim went without a cooked supper that night.

Another newlywed couple, Don, a Korean vet, and Billie, a school teacher, also make a little noise at the wrong times.

Don's favorite pastime is going on bird walks at 4 a.m. Naturally, his faithful West Virginia wife follows wherever he may wander. However, both of them in combat boots trying to tiptoe down the two flights of stairs at 4 a.m. is slightly ridiculous.

Back by Breakfast
They're usually back to the house by breakfast time, and they go into ecstasies about the yellow-bellied sapsucker or the white-breasted nuthatch they saw. Then the next time they get a chance—there they go, clomping out to view nature at its loveliest.

Then there's another Don, with his new acquisition, Shirley, also from western Pennsylvania. Don's favorite pastime is study, study, study. Everyone's seen the type. The trouble is, he almost forgets about Shirley in his vigorous pursuit of knowledge. The only time he realizes she's around is when she calls him for supper.

She's a terrific cook, but all the compliments Don ever pays her would make one think she can't cook at all. If something is really terrific, he'll say, "What did you say dear? The cake? Oh, it was OK". So that just about leaves Shirley with her only friends, the pots and pans. Generally, if she seems forlorn, and is puttering around the kitchen, trying to think of something new and exciting to make for her beloved husband, it's ten to one that Don is upstairs, studying, studying, studying.

Baby Formulas
The one and only physicist in the place often shows off his great talent by mixing special formulas. Baby formulas, that is, Joe, a senior, and his wife, Loretta, have a two-month-old daughter, and are considered the "old married couple."

Imagine a serious-minded experimenter trying to mix the following chemicals amid screams louder than a radio gone mad: one part Similac plus two parts water. Shake well. Pour into eight decahedron shaped cylinders. Place into sterilizer filled with water and heat until steam escapes for 1200 seconds.

Open Sterilizer
Then Joe opens the sterilizer, takes out the baby's formula bottles and a short while later little Cynthia is sound asleep, and our hero has won the battle. Science triumphs over hunger!

Actually, life may not be so bad as it seems in the kind of conglomeration as these couples make up, but everyone respects the other's little quirks and it's one big happy family.

At any time, any day, anything like these incidents may happen, and the "cooperative" home often turns out to be just a co-op of laughs every day in the year.
