

Campus Is Overrun By Crazy Felines

By ANN LEH

Political campaigning on state and national levels is over for a time at least and heavy campus politicking has taken its place.

Instead of pictures of Republicans and Democrats, banners proclaiming the glory of Lion and State are decorating the campus. The race is on. The Lions are roaring the promises of their platform; the Staters are pointing with pride to theirs.

Coed Chorus Will Perform At Sing Sunday

The Penn State Women's Chorus will be among four groups which will perform at the All-College Sing at 3 p.m. Sunday in Schwab Auditorium.

Doors will open at 2:30 p.m. for the sing, sponsored for the second year by the Women's Student Government Association.

The chorus, directed by Raymond H. Brown, assistant professor of music, is composed of 70 women. It has a long and varied history, having been known by various names since its inception in the early years of the College.

Elmer C. Wareham Jr., instructor in music, was director of the group, known then as Treble Singers, during 1949, 1950 and 1951-52. Herbert W. Beattie, former professor of music, led the group last year, changing the name to the Penn State Women's Chorus and reducing the number of members from 88 to 40.

The chorus presents a concert each spring and occasionally participates in Christmas caroling with the Penn State Glee Club.

The Glee Club will also perform at the sing Sunday. Other participating groups are a male quartet which will include two members of last year's Mellow-Aires, and Frank Gullo and Hummel Fishburn, musical team.

Anna Webb is chairman of the sing.

Discrimination Is Forum Topic

The second Hillel Town Meeting will discuss discrimination at 8 p.m. Sunday at the Hillel Foundation, 224 S. Miles street.

The subject of this meeting will be "How Can We Combat Racial and Religious Discrimination?" Rabbi Benjamin M. Kahn will act as moderator for the discussion.

Speakers for the session are Clarence R. Carpenter, professor of psychology, Walter Coutu, professor of sociology, and David R. Mackey, assistant professor of speech.

This is the 14th annual series of Town Meetings sponsored by the Hillel Foundation

State's only worry, so they think, is the Lion Party, and the Lions are worried simply about beating the State Party. Little do they know about the fast-spreading new party that hit campus recently.

"Vote Cat" "Vote for the Cat Party," the members scream. "The Cat Party's Right Down Your Alley." "Me and You Will Be at the Polls to Insure the Best in Government for You." "Vote Cat!"

"We looked 'em both over," say the Catheads, "and which party promises the things we need most?" "Does either platform say anything, one word, about avenging the wrong done by the RAT party against Pogo's Okefenokee camp in the house?" Is there anything about improving the lot of the CAT. Not one word!"

At a caucus in a smoke-filled room in Thompson, the party clique, by a unanimous vote (4-0), nominated their slate for sophomore and freshman class officers.

Felix for President Felix of funny book fame is up for Frosh presidency, the Calico Cat for vice president. To show how democratic their party is, the clique nominated Pluto for secretary-treasurer.

In addition to nominating the candidates, the party also adopted "Kitten on the Keys" as their campaign fight song.

When interviewed by reporters, State and Lion party officials had but one comment to make. "We always said this school was going to the dogs, but it seems that we were wrong. Will the cats take over?"

Those tapped are Ona Kay Lee, Joan Wilson, Shirley Musgrave, Norma Vollmer, Mary Lee Lauffer, Nancy Ward, Martha MacDonald, Mary Bolich and Patricia Beahan.

Only junior and senior straight and home economics journalism majors are eligible for membership. Tapping is on the basis of scholarship, activities, professional promise and ability to accept responsibility.

Pledging will take place at 7 p.m. Tuesday in 219 Simmons.

Council Approves Continuing Edits; Name Committee

Education Student Council voted Tuesday night to continue publishing Edits, a School of Education publication, and set up a permanent committee of Gwen Griffith and Harry Shank to advise the newsletter.

Susanna Wescott, Carolyn Carey, Ann Lofquist and Alice Murray were chosen as possible members of Cabinet Secretariat. The council voted in favor of the judicial amendment before All-College Cabinet.

The council voted in favor of co-sponsoring the United Nations trip with the Penn State Christian Association. Janet Feaster was named liaison officer for the committee.

Miss Murray and Miss Griffith were appointed to see Marion R. Trabue, Education school dean, and Dr. Charles M. Long, professor of education, about the possibility of eliminating final exams for seniors in the School of Education.

Dorothy Swanson and Miss Carey were named publicity chairmen of the council award for the outstanding senior in the School of Education. The award is given each semester.

Natalie Mockowitz was named representative to the United Nations committee on international understanding.

WD Will Hold Exchange Meal

An exchange Thanksgiving dinner for 1200 men and 400 women in the West Dorm area will be held tonight.

The 400 women from Thompson will be divided into three groups of 135, one group remaining in Thompson and the other two eating in the north and south dining halls.

Plans have been made for six men and two women to eat at each table.

Robert Gellman, West Dorm social committee head, has asked that all men wear coats and ties to the dinner and that men remove the women's trays after the meal.

A record dance for those attending the dinner will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. in the main lounge of Hamilton Hall.

Prof to Discuss Ethics, Politics At 7:30 Tonight

Edward C. Thaden, instructor of history, will present three historical perspectives on ethics and politics to the Political Science Club at 7:30 tonight in McElwain lounge.

Thaden will discuss Saint Augustine, Bishop of Hippo in North Africa who lived from 354 to 430 A.D.; Spengler, German author of "Decline of the West"; and Meinecke, a German philosopher.

Neal Riemer, assistant professor of political science, will moderate the after-talk discussion in which the audience may criticize, analyze, appraise and evaluate the central theme of the semester, "Ethics and Politics."

Thaden will address himself to questions of the relationship of ethics and politics, the fundamental principles of the relationship and the evaluation of today's political scene in the light of these topics.

Thru the Looking Glass

with Gabbi
Now that the snow has melted and we can see below our noses again—it's just about time that I start singing the praises of ETHEL'S again. You thought the snow would freeze my fingers, but I fooled you! Instead of a Tom and Jerry to thaw me out, I tried ETHEL'S for warmth and cheer.
An illuminating experience for you

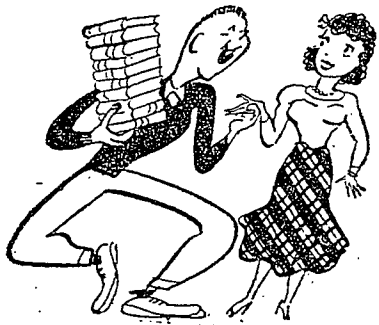

. . . a handful of electricity in the form of a "Cozy-lite" that comes in 3-D technicolor and clips on your book or headboard. (Put your polaroids down, we're just joshing). It's the craziest for 2 o'clock Spanish translating sessions when your roommate subtly hints about the glaring overhead light as he buries his head under the mattress. (Looking for a monkey wrench, no doubt). They're clever, handy and only 1.95. Great for gift-giving, too!
Solution for overcrowded bulletin boards

. . . a scrapbook that's so neat and handsome it can sit in any library right 'long side Bill Shakespeare, proud as punch because of its fine leather binding. No messy strings to knot your patience or fingers 'cause the pages are permanent. We like them better with gold monograms, that's done at ETHEL'S and costs not one cent more than the 2.95 or 4.95 for the book (it's not that I can't make up my mind, there's 2 sizes).
Vegetables you don't have to eat

. . . cause they're in the form of dolls, stuffed saucies with lima-bean, carrot or tomato heads (just like your best gal's??). We can't even begin to describe their cleverness and originality because it takes words I can't even spell—like adoribbble and purkey. (I wasn't kidding, was I?) But it's just like everything else at ETHEL'S, you can't appreciate them till you see them. We're sure you'll be fascinated, g'wan down and make yourself homely (Where did I put that thesaurus??) We'll be seeing you . . .
