

8 Men Will Debate In Eastern Tourneys

Eight members of the Penn State Men's Debate team will participate in two away tournaments this weekend.

Four members of the squad left yesterday, bound for the All-Eastern Invitational Tournament at the University of Vermont. The national question, "Resolved: That the United States should adopt a policy of free trade," will be argued by Richard Kirschner and Benjamin Sinclair on the affirmative and Ronald Lench and Donald Pripstein on the negative.

In the Eastern debate tomorrow at Muhlenberg College, four team members will also argue the national question. Phillip Greenberg and Ronald Isenberg will present the affirmative arguments and David Meckler and Kenneth White will air the negative arguments.

O'Brien to Go Also

Harold J. O'Brien, instructor in speech, will travel with the four debaters to the Muhlenberg event. One hundred invitations have been sent to colleges and universities, most of them in Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey, to participate in the debate at Muhlenberg. Four rounds will be held.

Dr. Joseph H. O'Brien, debate team coach and professor of public speaking, accompanied the four-member squad to Vermont.

Over sixty colleges and universities, including Dartmouth, Yale, Harvard, Wesleyan, Army, Navy, McGill, Bowdoin, Bates, Boston University, and the University of Connecticut, will participate in the All-Eastern, the largest debate tourney in the East. In this event, there will be ten rounds of debate.

Both Orthodox Debates

Both events are orthodox debates, in which the affirmative first gives a ten-minute constructive speech, which is followed by a ten-minute constructive speech by the negative. The second affirmative then rebuts and presents the affirmative plan. The second negative rebuts the affirmative arguments and presents a counter plan. In conclusion, each of the speakers give a five-minute rebuttal.

Spring Week--

Spring groups while 150 points will be awarded the winning contestant.

Twenty-five points for the sponsoring group will be awarded entries into the He-Man contest. Five finalists will each merit 100 points and the winner will receive 150 points.

Entries in the Ugly Man contest will earn 25 points for their group. Tentatively there will be three finalists who will get 50 points each. The winner will receive 100 points.

Richards said that groups who will combine for Spring Week will be allowed one candidate in each of the following contests: Miss Penn State, Ugly Man, and He-Man.

Mil Ball Sales To End Today

Tickets for the Military Ball to be held Dec. 11 in Recreation Hall, will be on sale until 4 p.m. today at the main ROTC offices, Carl K. Lunde, publicity chairman for the ball, has announced.

Only 388 of the 1000 tickets to be sold remain, Lunde said, 612 having been sold to advanced ROTC students and members of military societies yesterday.

The remaining tickets have been distributed to the three military departments on a percentage basis, Lunde said, based on the number of basic ROTC students in each department. The Air Force received 61% of the total or 236 tickets, Army 32½% or 126 tickets, and Navy 6½% or 26 tickets.

The tickets, priced at $4, are limited to one per ROTC student. Lunde emphasized that today's sales are open to all ROTC students.

Sales will be made at the Army office in Carnegie Hall, the Air Force office in the Armory and the Navy wardroom in Electrical Engineering.

Grossman Asks Hat Society For New Rule

Richard Grossman, treasurer of Parmi Nous, senior men's hat society, asked Hat Society Council this week to initiate a rule by which an applicant to a men's hat society would be dropped automatically if he is found to have forged any activity in his letter of application.

Grossman asked that chairmen of major committees be required to submit to the council lists of committee members before applications to the societies are received.

The rule was requested because, Grossman said, many men have forged their way into hat societies this year and in past years by listing activities, mainly committees, on which they never participated.

He asked that the rule be effected by having the council's screening board check activities listed by applicants against the proposed master list of committee members. The screening board automatically would drop any applicant who had falsely listed an activity, Grossman said.

He said the rule would apply to the men's hat societies which tap members on a point system of comparative rating of campus activities and to those which tap on a general activity basis.

Richard Gibbs, council president, said the rule, if passed, would serve two purposes: (1) it would assure validity of the selection of members and (2) it could be referred to by all campus organizations.

The proposed rule must be approved by the council before adoption. Gibbs said he would recommend the proposal at the next meeting of the council.

Pitt Conduct --

The disciplinary committee would probably be the group to investigate and act on the cases of any student accused of misconduct in Pittsburgh, Kenworthy said. They are still working on the cases of six students who were reported from Philadelphia.

The group trying the individual students, Kenworthy said, is composed of four members of the University staff and one student. They include the director of student affairs, the chairman of the Senate committee on student affairs, the dean of the student's school, and, depending on the sex of the student, the dean of men or women, and the chairman of Tribunal or Judicial.

The half-holiday set for Saturday, when all classes are called off, will be the last one in the foreseeable future judging from the calendars released for the next two academic years. The half-day recess was eliminated mainly because of the scheduling of more Saturday classes.

AFTER GRADUATION...

What kind of a job do YOU want?

If you still haven't made up your mind, here's how to get practical information that may help you decide

All over America there are thousands of young men and women in college who are genuinely uncertain about this question of a business career.

Perhaps you are one of them. Perhaps you've talked with your placement bureau about prospects in transportation, in engineering, or in one of the new, fast-growing industries like electronics or plastics.

Only you still find it hard to make up your mind when you've had no personal experience in considering the kind of facts and figures that might decide your whole business future.

As advertising representatives for over 700 college newspapers, we've long been aware of this campus problem. And, since we deal with some of America's biggest companies, we also know that there is a good deal of authentic business data available that would be very helpful to college students considering a career.

So if you'd like to be better informed about a particular field, fill in the coupon and turn it over to the business manager of this paper. He'll send it to us.

Let us make it plain that we're not establishing either an employment agency or an information bureau. But we will do our best to see that your inquiry is referred to the proper source.

In some cases you may hear directly from companies in the field you designate. In others you may receive an industry-wide report. It is entirely possible that in some fields no information will be readily available.

But we do know that American business is keenly aware of its responsibility to American youth and constantly on the alert for promising prospects. So send in your coupon today. You have nothing to lose—and a great deal to gain.
