

Berliners Seek Western Butter

BERLIN, Nov. 23 (AP)—Thousands of aged East Berliners risked Communist anger today to cross into West Berlin and pick up American-donated butter.

Some reported later that their gifts were taken away by East German police in the Soviet sector.

It was the first day of the butter give-away to East Berliners over six years of age and 17,500 pounds were handed out.

Officials said the initial distribution went off smoothly in contrast to the rioting last summer when the Communists tried to break up the handing out of American food parcels.

At least 20 East Berliners came back for butter a second time. They reported that East German police checked their parcels, confiscated the butter, and took down their names.

A total of 238,000 pounds of butter will be given East Berliners in the next two weeks in the second phase of a program to provide a million pounds to aged Germans in all sectors. Since Oct. 24, about 434,000 pounds have been given residents of the allied sectors.

Distribution is being made by the recently organized Mayor Ernst Reuter Foundation and the International Rescue Committee, a welfare organization with headquarters in New York City. Reuter, a staunch foe of communism, helped organize the huge butter give-away but died Sept. 29 before he could see it carried out.

Line Forms

An hour before the 9 a.m. starting time, hundreds of West Berliners already had formed a line which grew steadily throughout the day. By mid-morning the line numbered 6000 persons.

The distribution point, at the Ernst Reuter House, a municipal building, is far enough inside the British sector to discourage disruptive tactics by the Communists.

The butter is being distributed by an alphabetical system of names. The first day's allotment went to East Berliners whose names start with "A" and with "Sch." The subsequent distribution will be made for the next two weeks in groups of several letters each day.

Ag Dean Talks At Harrisburg

Lyman E. Jackson, dean of the School of Agriculture, spoke Friday before a meeting of the sixth annual Pennsylvania Soil Conservation District Directors Conference at Harrisburg.

Conference topics centered on improvement of the small watershed program, a cooperative plan for farmers in small valleys designed to stop erosion and conserve water.

Jackson said a credit program should be developed that would allow farmers to borrow funds to install soil conservation programs.

Dean to Investigate Students' Prank

The recent molesting of a student and his date near Boalsburg by a group of marauding high school students is being investigated by the Dean of Men's office and may lead to a report to the state police, a spokesman for the office said.

The couple were reported parked in a car outside of Boalsburg when a group of local high school lads surrounded the auto and taunted them.

Gilbert L. Crossley, assistant professor of electrical engineering, has been elected one of 14 directors of the American Radio Relay League.

Crossley will represent the Atlantic Division of the league covering 8700 licensed amateurs. The league's purpose is to protect the interests of amateur radio operators.

Martin Sees Peace Hope Via Military

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP)—House Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. (R-Mass.) returned today from a two-month trip to Europe with the prediction that "we are going to have peace."

"The outlook for peace is much better," Martin told a news conference shortly after reporting on his trip to President Eisenhower.

One reason for his belief that there will be no war, he said, is that the free nations of Europe are building strong military forces and have recovered economically with American aid.

"No nation is going to attack strength," he commented.

Martin said he believes all or most economic aid from the United States can be cut off after this year, with some isolated exceptions, although continued military assistance will be needed. But he said the cost of military aid probably can be reduced.

Martin visited Eastern and Western Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain, and France. He made the trip alone.

He said he was "very much pleased to see the recovery apparent in most of Europe" since his last trip two years ago. He added he believes the unified European Army probably will come into being next year "and if it does it will probably mean peace in the world."

Martin said he was especially encouraged by the rapid economic recovery of Western Germany and said "it is going to take a little time but Germany will be united eventually."

On domestic issues, the House leader said he doubts if Congress would approve a general manufacturers excise tax although there should be some readjustments, both upward and downward, of existing excise levies.

AP Man Speaks At SDX Luncheon

Ben French of the Philadelphia Associated Press Bureau, told of some of his experiences with the AP at a luncheon of Sigma Delta Chi, national men's professional journalism fraternity, at the Allencrest yesterday.

During the luncheon, French was interrupted by a telephone call from the AP Bureau in Philadelphia asking him to mix business with pleasure, and get a story about results of Penn State's name change to The Pennsylvania State University.

Both French and his wife graduated from the University in 1948. He had been editor of Froth in his junior year, and managing editor of the Collegian in his Senior year. Mrs. French had been society editor of the Collegian and associate editor of LaVie.

Army's Cadets Get Navy Goat, Promise Return

WEST POINT, N.Y., Nov. 23 (AP)—The Army admitted today it really had got the Navy's goat. And, with tongue in cheek, it announced it was sending it back to Annapolis.

The pure blue Angora mascot, Billy the 12th, was taken late Saturday night.

It showed up last night in the military academy mess hall.

The annual Army-Navy football game is scheduled for Saturday at Philadelphia and of the apparent pre-game prank, West Point said shyly:

"It is admitted that the Navy goat has paid an unofficial visit to West Point. While individual opinion naturally is to applaud the exploit resulting in the appearance of Billy the 12th at West Point, the official view must be to decline comment and publicity in the interests of continuing good inter-service and inter-academy relationships."

A West Point spokesman said Maj. Gen. F. A. Irving, superintendent of the academy, ordered the Navy mascot to be returned to Annapolis.

Billy, accordingly, was put into an Army truck and sent on his way. Nothing was said about any disciplinary action concerning his kidnapers.

Ransom Search Is Renewed

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 23 (AP)—The inquiry into the mystery of the missing $300,000 Greenlease ransom money started anew today with St. Louis police seeking a "death row" interview with the doomed kidnap-killers.

Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell said he will ask federal permission to question Carl Austin Hall and Bonnie Brown Heady concerning statements in Hall's confession that conflict with testimony heard by a police panel investigating Hall's arrest.

Reported discrepancies in police handling of the arrest and recovery of half of the $600,000 ransom prompted the St. Louis police board to order the inquiry. The investigation began Oct. 18, but was recessed pending completion of last week's trial of Hall and Mrs. Heady.

Maurice S. Gjesdahl, professor of mechanical engineering, was recently elected national president of Pi Tau Sigma, mechanical engineering honor society.

Representatives from 56 of the 59 chapters of the society attended the convention in Ann Arbor, Mich. Gjesdahl had served as eastern vice president for four years.

Red China 'Floods' U.S. with Illicit Dope

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP)—Harry J. Anslinger, chief of the Federal Narcotics Bureau, said today illicit dope from Red China is flooding the United States, with the Chinese Communist government apparently taking a cynical attitude toward the situation.

Anslinger gave this testimony at a Senate subcommittee hearing, and later he told a reporter: "Japan is getting the first wave of this traffic, all channeled through Hong Kong, and we're getting a very large amount on the West Coast."

Hong Kong is a British crown colony just off the China mainland.

Anslinger also declared Red China is forcing farmers to grow opium in some areas by imposing such heavy taxes that the only thing the farmers can do is to raise opium to pay the taxes.

"It is a deliberate policy on the part of the local government in Jehol Province to compel the farmers to grow opium," he said.

In his testimony Anslinger indicated that the flow of dope from Communist China has created a jack-in-the-box traffic in this country that is difficult to crush.

As fast as one ring is broken, he said, another springs up to carry on the conspiracy of "selling poison for profit."

Anslinger told a Senate subcommittee the government has "very definite proof" to substantiate his accusation that huge quantities of heroin, made in Red China, are being shipped to dope peddlers in this country.

Far from making any concerted effort to interfere, he said, Red China's government apparently takes a cynical attitude toward the traffic.

"They probably hope for the worst," he commented.

Anslinger made the statement as the subcommittee continued its inquiry into juvenile delinquency in the United States.

The narcotics chief said there has been a marked drop in addiction of youths under 21 years of age—from a total of 4405 in 1951 to 3616 last year—but the problem remains serious "as long as there are any youthful addicts."

Fire Fund Money Given to Brady

Money collected for Richard Brady, seventh semester music education major, has been presented to him, the Music department announced yesterday.

Brady lost clothing and equipment, including a $400 tenor saxophone Nov. 5, when fire destroyed the house where he resided. Department faculty members, students and members of the Blue Band contributed to the fund.

Nixon Lauds Philippine President

MANILA, Tuesday, Nov. 24 (AP)—Vice President Nixon yesterday praised Ramon Magsaysay, President-elect of the Philippines, before an audience of 50,000 youths as a man who will build up freedom in the young island republic "in this time of world crisis."

Magsaysay was standing nearby as Nixon acclaimed him in the only public address of the vice president's four-day Philippines tour.

Nixon told his young audience that the most significant battle going on today was not military or economic but "for the minds, hearts and souls of men."

He said the "winner of that battle among the young people of Asia would decide "the future of the world."

Earlier Nixon made a trip through the country around Manila and shook hands with Filipinos in the barrios. A Philippine official introduced him to one group by saying "within 12 years the president of the United States will be Richard Nixon." Nixon made no comment on the reference.
