Coach Rip Engle ended his fourth season at the Nittany Lion helm in fine fashion last Saturday as his gridders upset the Panthers of Pitt, 17-0. Despite the fact that his 1953 seasonal record reads only 6-3 compared to the 7-2-1 log for 1952, it's quite noticeable that Engle missed winning seven retted by Dick Packer, cen-straight-by one point. That was the controversial game ter forward. After the first period against West Virginia, 20-19. With Saturday's finale dotting the win column the Lions were lifted in the Associated Press ratings. Not far (28th), but the fact remains they are listed. Engle's team won the game it wanted most. Rip remarked after the win: "I knew the boys wouldn't let me down, but I did not think we'd win so decisively."

If an individual award were to be made at this game, there would be something like ten players who would be contenders. Pitt's Malinak, linebacker Pete Schod-erbek, halfbacks Lenny Moore, Wayne Wolfkeil, Buddy Rowell, and Ron Younker, tackle Rosey Grier, and fullback Bill Straub.

Rados received compliments from the radio announcers who said: "Rados has lived up to his reputation. We weren't surprised."

The same radio announcers said: "We heard a lot about Lenny Moore. Now we know what they mean."

Schoderbek and Straub must be the game's "unsung heroes." Rowell and Younker receive the nod on their fine running performances. Wolfkeil certainly ended his career in fine style, blocking three "sure" TD pass-es. Engle's great tackle, Grier, won the loudest applause from the 42,277 fans when he was taken out late in the game. Grier had a not-too-impressive showing at the start of the season but quickly made the oneplatoon change in All-Ameri-

test, made one against the Panthers that topped it. One reporter exclaimed: "That Garrity is playing a banged-up ballgame

It was a great season and congratulations are in order to Rip Engle, his excellent coaching staff (Al Michaels, Jim O'Hora, Sever Toretti, Joe Paterno, Frank Patrick, and Earl Bruce), and the football players. —30—

With sophomore Dick Packer leading the scoring parade with four goals, the Nittany soccer squad closed its season by shuting out Penn, 6-0, in one of the best games the Lions have played all season.

Graduate engineers are much in demand. But, as your placement bureau will verify, certain types of engineering aptitudes are in considerably greater demand than others.

For example, when more than 450 leading companies throughout the country contacted a leading engineering college for prospects, six different engineering specialties were frequently mentioned-mechanical, chemical, electrical, industrial, civil and metalmand was mentioned four times as often as the least.
