

Reforms Asked In Health Poll

Twenty-four hour health service, a doctor on duty at all times, and a better plan for class excuses were suggested as improvements in the University Health Service in a recent Daily Collegian poll of 240 students. Another suggestion, combination of the Infirmary and Dispensary into one building, will become a reality since the

7 Will Attend Chicago Confab

Seven faculty members of the English Literature department will attend the 68th annual meeting of the Modern Language Association of America in Chicago, Dec. 28 to 30.

They are Brice Harris, William L. Werner, Frederick L. Gwynn, Robert V. Bauer, Ralph W. Condee, Arthur O. Lewis Jr., and J. Mitchell Morse.

At the Dec. 28 dinner meeting of the College section of the National Council of Teachers of English, Gwynn will discuss "The Case for Poetry." Harris is vice chairman of this section.

At the annual meeting of the College English Association on Dec. 29, Werner, who is president-elect, will discuss "The English Teacher Looks at the Social Sciences."

Collegian Staff Promotes Five

Five promotions have been made to the editorial senior board of the Daily Collegian, David Jones, editor, has announced.

Eliza Jane Newell has been promoted from assistant society editor to society editor, replacing Lenore Kahanowitz, who will graduate in January.

Leonard Goodman has been promoted to editorial director, replacing Richard Rau who is also graduating this semester.

Norma Vollmer has been moved to assistant society editor from her former position of exchange editor. Lorraine Gladus has been promoted from librarian to exchange editor. Alvin Goodman has been promoted to librarian.

Promotions will go into effect next semester.

Food Committee Seeks Suggestions for Menus

The University food committee has asked students living in dormitories to get menu suggestions while they are home during the Christmas vacation.

The suggestions may be turned in to dormitory officers who will forward them to the Food department.

Anthony Tornetta, chairman of the food committee, said the suggestions will be used in planning menus for the dormitory dining rooms.

Donovan Will Speak At Faculty Luncheon

George L. Donovan, director of the Student Union, will speak on "The Faculty in the Student Union" to the Faculty Luncheon Club Jan. 4 in the Hotel State College.

He will discuss the facilities which will be made available by the new Student Union building and will open discussion to the faculty in a question and answer period.

LaVie Proofs Due Tomorrow

Senior proofs must be turned into the Penn State Photo Shop for the 1954 LaVie before Christmas vacation, according to Herman Golomb, editor.

Those who have not returned their proof will have pictures selected by the LaVie staff.

Snapshots for the campus life section of the LaVie are still being accepted at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Pictures should have the name, address, and telephone number of the person submitting them. Photos will become property of the LaVie staff.

used by all colleges of the University, he said. The building will not be included under any college, he added.

The GSA is a corporation set up by the state of Pennsylvania as a borrowing agent for the state.

Pending before GSA is an Air, Army, and Naval Science building. Plans for the building were not revealed by the University. The legislative request for 1953-55, however, included completion of Burrows Building, a meats laboratory, alterations of the Agricultural Building, a general engineering building, an addition to Frear Laboratory, a general extension building, and a home economics building.

Other action of the GSA yesterday included the naming of John N. Forker, retired vice president of the Koppers Co. of Pittsburgh, as executive director. He will take over the duties of Warren W. Holmes, acting executive director for the GSA since May 14, 1952.

must be paid before students may register, according to David C. Hogan, University registrar. Students will receive a sheet of estimated expenses and bill for next semester during the Christmas holidays and may send fee payments into the Bursar's office by mail.

Receipts for fee payment by mail will be returned to students at their homes, and they may pick them up during semesters. Receipts will be required at registration.

The new system of fee payment, adopted last semester, facilitates early payment and results in more efficient handling of fees in the Bursar's office, according to Hogan. Fees that are not sent in by mail may be paid in person in January at the Bursar's office.

and 74 of the 124 women polled. As to paying the costs of the ambulance, students were evenly divided, 99 favoring either student support or joint support of the students and the University. Ninety-seven thought the University should pay the entire cost. The other students gave no answer to the question.

Although students were evenly divided on who should pay the cost of the ambulance, women were decidedly in favor of the University paying the entire cost. Sixty-two of the women thought the University should pay, whereas only 35 male students held this opinion.

Answers to the question "How many cases do you think the Infirmary and Dispensary handle in one school year?" ranged anywhere from 300 to 400,000. Twenty-six students came within 15,000 of the exact number, 50,000. Only five students were able to give the exact number of cases.

Ninety per cent of the answers by students to this question ranged within the figures 5000 to 10,000.

An article on the health service, carried by the Collegian Nov. 24, gave in headlines the number of cases handled in a year.

Richmond Awarded Baseball Franchise

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The International League today tentatively awarded a franchise to Richmond, Va.

The award was contingent on the ability of franchise owner Harry C. Seibold to secure a ball park which meets International League specifications.

Seibold told reporters he expects to have no difficulty in meeting that requirement.

Frank Shaughnessy, International League president, said that if Seibold comes up with his park, Havana, Cuba, will be admitted as the eighth member of the league. He said he had assured the Havana people of this in the event Richmond was admitted.

The decision was made after eight hours of conference. The big hitch was to get Edwin Mooers, who owned the Richmond franchise in the Piedmont League, to surrender his franchise to Seibold.

In the end, Mooers sold his franchise to Seibold for a figure said to be $25,000. Mooers, however, retained possession of the ball park in which the Piedmont League club played.

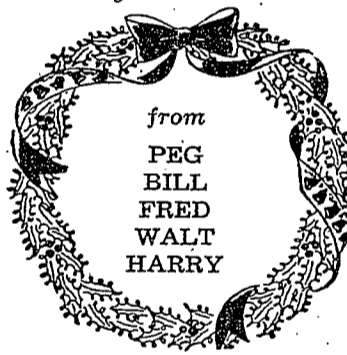

Richmond and Havana would succeed Baltimore and Springfield, Mass., in the International League. Springfield recently gave up its franchise while Baltimore switched to the American League.

The other International League cities are Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, N.Y.; Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal, Canada.

Stanford Offers Journ Scholarships

The Institute for Journalistic Studies of Stanford University is now receiving applications for graduate scholarships in journalism. The scholarships, which amount to $1200, $1400, and $1800, are for the 1954-55 academic year.
