

Hillel Forum Series Will Feature Author

By LEE WHEELER

Maurice Samuel, author, publicist, and translator, will speak on "The Legacy of European Jewry" at 8 p.m. Monday at Hillel Auditorium as part of the Hillel forum lecture series.

His lecture will be a survey of the cultural heritage, in literature and folklore, left to the world by the destroyed Jewish civilization of Europe.

Samuel was born in Rumania, educated in England, and came to the United States in 1914. Since then he has devoted himself to Jewish affairs and to the interpretation of Jewish values to the English-speaking world.

Lived in Palestine

He lived in Palestine for 10 years and has revisited Israel many times since. He has traveled widely in America, Europe, and Africa, living in Jewish communities and is acknowledged as a master of Jewish culture.

Samuel is the author of 12 volumes in the Jewish field, among the "The World of Sholom Aleichem," "The Great Hatred," and "The Devil That Failed." In 1944 the Saturday Review of Literature awarded him a prize for "The World of Sholom Aleichem" as the best contribution of the year toward improving inter-group relations. This book is also the source for the title of the popular Broadway play now in its sixth month of production.

Sholem Asch

In the general field of letters Samuel has produced a number of novels and studies and is regarded as a leading critic. He is also the translator of 15 books including the works of Sholem Asch and I. J. Singer and other contemporary Jewish writers.

His most recent work, "Level Sunlight," is a study of Israel and American Jewry. In his books and lectures Samuel is concerned with the world of today, and with the past only as it shows itself in actual living forces which are shaping the future.

Panhel Council Asks for TV Time

A letter requesting public service time on the Altoona television channel has been sent to the Altoona station by Panhellenic Council, Eleanor Nicastro, head of the television show committee, said yesterday.

The letter asked for as much time as the station would give. The committee hopes for a 15- or 30-minute time allotment for as many weeks as possible, Miss Nicastro said.

The council show would be a demonstration of what sororities are doing at the University. One or two representatives from each sorority would participate in the program.

If time is allotted for a number of weeks, Miss Nicastro said, the shows would be a weekly series of programs given either individually or jointly by the sororities.

Phi Sigma Sigma To Hold Dance For Heart Fund

Phi Sigma Sigma will sponsor a square dance from 9 p.m. to midnight tomorrow at the Temporary Union Building for the benefit of the Rheumatic Heart fund.

Proceeds of the dance will be sent to the national office of Phi Sigma Sigma to be forwarded to the fund supported by the national sorority. The fund aids children stricken with rheumatic fever, finances research, and furnishes heart hospitals.

Duane Beals' orchestra will play for the informal dance. Tickets at 35 cents per person are on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main, in the West Dorms, and on the Mall. They may be purchased also from members of the sorority. Dormitories and fraternity houses will be covered for ticket sales.

Phi Sigma Sigma previously co-sponsored the annual benefit dance with the Association of Independent Men. This year, however, AIM's expanded budget for activities with Leonides, independent women's organization, has made it impossible for AIM to participate in the dance project.
