

Relay Team Runs in N.Y.; Penn Joins Cagers Visit Pittsburgh Ivy League Round-Robin

Wernermen Enter Fifth Indoor Run

By HERM WEISKOPF
Nittany track Coach Chick Werner has entered Art Pollard, Ollie Sax, and his crack mile relay team in Saturday's New York Athletic Club meet.

Once again the Lions will be facing some of the finest competition in the world. This will be the fifth indoor meet of the season for the Wernermen.

Pollard, the "Coatesville Comet," who has done remarkably well so far this year, will have to face what many consider the finest field of sprinters ever assembled. The sophomore standout turned in his best performance of the campaign in Boston when he finished second to Olympic 200-meter champion Andy Stanfield.

Lindy Remingo, who copped the 100-meter crown at Helsinki, will also be competing in this star-studded field. All the top sprint titlists in the nation will also be on hand, including Villanova's sensational Mike Agostini, who shaved two-tenths of a second off the world's indoor record in the 100-yard dash when he sped to an 0:09.6 clocking in the Washington Star Meet on Jan. 23. The 18-year-old native of Trinidad upset Stanfield at the outset of this year's track festivities.

Art Bragg, Jamaica's Olympic star, and ICAA champ Bob Keegan of Seton Hall will also be vying for honors along with national champion Johnny Haines of Penn.

The competition in this field has been so keen that only one performer, Stanfield, has been able to win consistently. At one time or another they have all entered the finals of the 60-yard sprint this season.

Pollard holds the distinction of having beaten many of these stars at some time this year. The sophomore speedster has done a fine job of living up to his performances of last year. He will also run in the lead off slot on the relay quartet.

It was thought earlier in the week that Sax might not be able to run due to a bronchial ailment. However, he is under treatment and will be able to run in the 500-yard event and in the anchor position for the relay squad. Sax needs one more victory in the former event to retire the trophy awarded for this annual race. He won this race once before.

Sax has run the 600-yard race twice this season and this will be his first effort in the shorter distance. He has paced the Nittany mile relay outfit in its rise to prominence among the best in the nation.

Skip Slocum and Roy Brunjes will be the middle twosome on the relay squad. Werner's baton passers have won two of the four meets in which they have run thus far. At the Inquirer meet in Philadelphia they captured the Liberty Bell trophy with a new meet record of 3:23.8.

In their other two races the foursome has finished third. In the Washington Evening Star meet Morgan State copped the laurels and in Boston Manhattan's quartet took the honors. These three squads have formed what is now looked upon as the fastest field in the history of indoor mile relay competition. The Lions sped to a new Penn State standard in this event with a clocking of 3:19.7 Saturday in the Millrose Games in Madison Square Garden.

2 Slots Altered In Ring Lineup

In preparation for the Lions' second and final home boxing match of the season, Coach Eddie Sulkowski has begun shuffling his men into different weight classes.

After two straight losses, one to Michigan State in their home opener and one to Maryland last week, the Lions will be facing one of their toughest foes of the season this Saturday. Coach Roy Simmons will bring a loaded Syracuse team to the Rec Hall ring Saturday night.

When visiting Maryland, Sulkowski was forced to forfeit the 125-pound weight class competition because Bob Hartly, a sophomore, did not compete. This week, Sulkowski may use either Hartly or newcomer Dick Evanko in the lightweight class.

Harry Papacharalambous, a veteran letterman who recently returned to campus after a stint in the service, will be looking for his second win in three starts. Harry, commonly known as Pappy, scored an impressive 30-26 win against the Spartans, but dropped a rugged session against the Terps, 27-30.

Sulkowski Praises Pappy
"Pappy uses a bob and weave style," Coach Sulkowski explained, "and has a good left hook."

In the 139-pound class, Sulkowski will stick with Don Martin, a product of the intramural ring, although Martin has scored two draws in as many matches. Martin has been a good counter-puncher for the Lions while scoring a 29-29 draw in the opener, and a 30-30 draw at Maryland.

Larry Stokes, a very promising sophomore fighting in the 147 slot, will be gunning for win number two. He dropped a close decision in his first collegiate bout against the Spartans, but showed very well in his 29-28 victory at Maryland.

Allan DeMay, one of Sulkowski's six sophomores, will go again at 156, although he fought 165 against Michigan State. DeMay's first fight was stopped in the first round against champ Tom Hickey. He then dropped a heartbreaker at Maryland 29-28.

Another shakeup has occurred for the 165-pound slot. Sulkowski said that although Dick Ahern, a senior with one match under his belt from last season, looked good in defeat at Maryland, Frannie Breider, third semester, will get the nod. Breider, from Philadelphia, has seen considerable ring experience while in the service.

Team Progressing—Sulk
"Both DeMay and Stokes, like the rest of the boys, are coming along," Coach Sulkowski said. "Stokes is speeding up with jabs and left hooks, while DeMay continues to push the attack," Sulk continued.

Captain Adam Kois will be looking for win number two, after a 26-26 draw at Maryland. Frank Della Penna, another sophomore, will go at the heavyweight slot. Della Penna, strictly a one-two boxer, lost his first collegiate match 30-27 against Maryland. Joe Goleman, a junior, handled the chores against the Spartans with a 29-29 draw.

Lions Seek 11th Victory Saturday

The Penn State basketball team, victor in ten of its first 12 starts, is getting a brief rest from competitive circles this week, but Coach Elmer Gross hasn't slowed the practice pace a bit.

The Lions face a crucial test Saturday night at the Pitt field house when they meet Bob Timmons' always-dangerous Panther quintet. And the vengeance-minded Pitts will probably be tougher than ever in the coming contest since the stinging 91-85 defeat that the Lions handed them two weeks ago must still be fresh in their minds.

Pitt-Penn State athletic contests have always been bitterly contested and the triple-overtime extravaganza at Rec Hall stands at the top of the list.

The Panthers, who trailed for almost the entire regulation game, came from behind in the dying seconds to tie the contest, sending it into overtime. Then they watched two leads melt in the final seconds of the first two periods, before the Lions took command in the final frame to win going away.

Timmons' contingent of Dutch Burch, Tommy Artman, Ed Pavlick, Al Zimmoman, and Bill Fenwick, spearhead a fastbreak offense that is capable of scoring consistently. Coupled with a hard-pushing man-for-man defense the Panthers can give any team a rough time.

However, in the first contest Pitt was unable to find a way to stop the Lions one-two punch—Jesse Arnelle and Jack Sherry. Arnelle hit his season high in that one with 31 points and Sherry tossed 20 points through the nets. Ron Weidenhammer's deadly set shots from outside provide the Panthers with another man-sized problem.

Following the Pitt contest the Nittanyans travel to Syracuse and Colgate, returning the Rec Hall Feb. 24 to host Gettysburg.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—The Ivy group of colleges became a football league in fact today when the presidents' agreement calling for a round-robin football schedule, starting in 1956, received the official blessing of the governing boards of the eight institutions.

Although it had been known for some time that the presidents, at a December meeting, had agreed upon the round-robin football plan, the agreement did not become effective until it had been formally ratified by the governing bodies. This was announced today by Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia University and chairman of the Ivy "Presidents' Policy Committee."

Since the Ivy group agreement provides that football schedules shall not be made more than two years in advance, the round-robin is expected to go into effect in 1956. The schedules for 1954, and for the most part, for 1955 already have been drawn up.

In addition to taking this long step toward league competition in football, the presidents approved the principle of round-robin competition in other sports, reaffirmed the ban on spring football practice and on athletic scholarships and rewrote and extended slightly the agreement, originally adopted in 1945 and revised in 1952.

The eight Ivy group colleges are Brown, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton, and Yale.

The revised agreement sets no definite number of games for football schedules. Since 1945 the group has limited the football schedules to nine games a year. This leaves the possibility that the Ivy teams can meet such traditional rivals as Army and Navy regularly and still play seven league games.

Two new sections of the agreement specify that schedules in other sports than football shall not be made prior to December of the preceding academic year and that coaches shall not endorse commercial products.

The latter could force some of the prominent coaches to drop their advisory connections with sporting goods companies which have brought them additional income.
