'Week' Hours Voiced Unfair

By BEV DICKINSON

Twelve students replied negatively when asked by the Inquiring Reporter "Do you think that the Senate's action denying women 12 o'clocks for Spring Week Carnival is justifiable?"

The six men and six women questioned seemed to feel the Senate's action denying the request of the Women Student Government Association for late permissions to be granted to coeds during the two Spring Carnival nights was unfair. Here are the answers the students gave in the sixth study of student opinion on campus affairs:

Jane Stevenson, eighth semester marketing major: "No, I don't. Since the Carnival has to be two nights, I don't think the students will have time to get things done. We won't be excused from classes, and if a student has a full schedule, he will not have sufficient time to participate fully in the Carnival activities."

Shirley Smith, fourth semester arts and letters major: "No, I definitely don't. For two nights there is too much work to be done to grant women only ten o'clocks."

Tom Elston, eighth semester fuel technology major: "No, it is not justifiable, because since the coeds are a vital part of a successful week, they should be able to participate and enjoy it completely."

Martha Colaianni, sixth semester home economics education major: "No. The biggest part of the crowd comes to the Carnival late at night. Besides, for all the work the students put into it, it doesn't seem fair to close so early."

Steve Dunlap, second semester business major: "Spring Week is important to all; especially the Carnival, and therefore I feel that women should be granted 12 o'clocks."

Hank Berkheimer, chemistry graduate student: "I'd be inclined to agree with the Senate, but I do feel that they could be a bit more lenient, perhaps giving a 12 o'clock one of the two nights of the Carnival."

Neida Fralich, eighth semester journalism major: "Saying Carnival will interfere with classes is ridiculous. Students will undoubtedly cut anyway. I think the coeds should be given 12 o'clocks. The Carnival includes only two nights out of the year and all the work put forth merits late permissions."

Howard Giles, eighth semester business administration major: "The Carnival is open only two days of the entire school year. It is my opinion that the Senate is being very narrow-minded toward the late hours for coeds. After all, this is a University, not a high school. The coeds are mature enough to handle responsibility."

Faye Holden, fourth semester music education major: "No, I don't. The students probably

Summer Class Timetables Now Available

Students may pick up free scheduling timetables for summer sessions in the basement of Willard Hall or at the Director of Sessions office, 102 Burrowes.

Registration for the three summer sessions will be held May 1 to 15 for students now on campus. Further instructions in regard to registration will be released later, according to Ray V. Watkins, scheduling officer.

Classes for the three sessions, inter-session, main session, and post-session, will meet daily Monday through Friday for 80-minute periods. Fees for courses will be $11 per credit, and with the exception of cases of special instruction, laboratory fees will be included in one general fee. No additional charge will be made to out-of-state students during the summer sessions.

Students living in the West Dorms during inter-session or post-session will be charged $59.50 to $71.50 for room and board, and charges for the main summer session will be $119 to $143.

University catalogs for 1954-55 are also available without charge in the basement of Willard.

Spring Election Date Set by Committee

The elections committee Tuesday night tentatively set April 8 as the date for spring All-University elections and considered the proposed system of decentralized voting.

Because of the possibility of initiating decentralized voting, the committee was unable to decide whether the elections would be held one day or, as is the past, two days.

Elections may be held only one day if the proposed decentralized system is adopted because it is believed the system may expedite the elections.

The committee will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in 204 Old Main to further discuss the system.

Decentralized voting was proposed in September by the committee on political conventions at the Student Encampment. Under the system voting booths would be set up at various points on campus, in addition to Old Main lounge, the central point of previous elections.

The system was proposed because it was hoped more students would vote if the booths were decentralized. Decentralized voting was not used in the fall freshman and sophomore elections because it was believed there was not enough time to perfect the system.

Kenneth White, retiring State Party Clique chairman, said the State Party favored decentralized voting, but believed it should not

Latham Wins Nash Award

Roger Latham, 1950 graduate of the University and resident of Pennsylvania Furnace, has been named one of the ten winners of the first annual nationwide Nash conservation awards.

The award, consisting of $500 cash, was presented to Latham in recognition of his research in deer, turkey, quail and predatory bird programs, and his writings on game management principles. Presentation was made by George Mason, president and chairman of the board of Nash-Kelvinator.

Since receiving his M.S. degree in 1951 Latham has been chief of wildlife, the research division with the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

be experimented with in a major election.

Lewis Goslin, representing the Lion Party, said the party favored decentralized voting for the spring elections.

HUGHES Cooperative Fellowship Program for

MASTER OF SCIENCE DEGREES

Purpose	The Hughes Cooperative Fellowship Program has been established to enable outstanding graduates to pursue work for the Master of Science degree while employed in industry and making significant contributions to important military projects.	Recipients will earn five-eighths of a normal salary each year. This salary will be determined by the individual's qualifications and experience, and will reflect current salary practices in the electronics industry. Salary growth will be on the same basis as for full-time members of the scientific-engineering staff. Recipients will also be eligible for health, accident and life insurance benefits, as well as other privileges accruing to full-time staff members.
Eligibility	Eligible for consideration are students who will receive the B.S. degree during the coming year and members of the Armed Services being honorably separated and holding B.S. degrees. In either case the field of the B.S. degree must be: ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING PHYSICS, OR MECHANICAL ENGINEERING	Tuition, admission fee, and required books at either the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California, covering the number of units required to earn an M. S. degree, will be provided.
Citizenship	The awards will be made to applicants who have evidenced outstanding ability and some degree of creativeness. They must also possess traits enabling them to work well with others.	For those residing outside the Southern California area, actual travel and moving expenses to this area will be allowed up to 10 percent of the full starting annual salary.
Universities	Applicants must be United States citizens for whom appropriate security clearance can be obtained, as their work in the Hughes Laboratories may be related to National Defense projects.	If a sufficient number of qualified candidates present themselves, as many as 100 Fellowships will be awarded each year.
Program	Applicants must be able to meet the requirements for admission to graduate standing at the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California.	Candidates will be selected by the Committee for Graduate Study of Hughes Research and Development Laboratories.
	Participants will be employed at Hughes full time in the summer and 25 hours a week during the university year while pursuing half-time graduate work.	Application forms should be obtained immediately. Completed applications must be accompanied by detailed college transcripts.
