

'Birthday Party' Plans Approved

The University's first major celebration of its centennial year in 1955 will be observed at a "birthday party" Feb. 22, the 100th anniversary of the institution.

The "Birthday Party" was among the centennial plans approved at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees. C. S. Wyand, executive assistant to the President and chairman of the University centennial committee, presented proposals for the celebration to the board.

civil engineering major; Robert Yoder, eighth semester recreation major; and Donald Vaughn, sixth semester civil engineering major. Dean Presnall, second semester geology and mineralogy major, an accordionist, will give his rendition of "In the Mood," and "Twelfth Street Rag."

Jeanne Lippy, sixth semester arts and letters major, a soprano, will sing "Romance," by Victor Herbert.

Barry Keiser, sixth semester electrical engineering major, a pianist, will play "Prelude in G Minor," by Rachmaninoff.

John Moran, fourth semester arts and letters major, a tenor, will sing "Music, Maestro, Please," and "I Believe."

Mary Ann Lewis, second semester business administration major, will present a novelty baton twirling routine and Richard Mohler, second semester civil engineering major, a comedy act.

Performances by Ronald Spangenberg, sixth semester business administration major, baritone, and song stylist Frances Spatafore, second semester arts and letters major, will round out the show. Spangenberg will sing "Secret Love," and "Oh Mein Papa," and Spatafore, "What is This Thing Called Love," and "The Nearness of You."

Master of ceremonies for the show will be Seymour "Cy" Lazarus, eighth semester education major.

Music will be provided by the Lee Garbrick Trio and accompanist Gene Palacer.

The acts will be judged by audience applause and judges' decisions. The audience will choose three winners from five finalists selected by the judges.

Cash prizes will be awarded winners. First prize is $25, second, $15 and third, $10.

AIM Stops Independent Finances

A motion to cut off funds for the publication of the Independent Newsletter was passed last night by a 13 to 1 vote by the Association of Independent Men's Board of Governors.

Thomas Kidd, sixth semester education major said, "The Independent is now a feature magazine. It serves no purpose for the Board of Governors. The present format is useless."

Robert Schroner, eighth semester meteorology, said he felt the Independent was "mis-edited and mis-managed."

He, along with Chester Chervinski, was of the opinion that "we cut the editorial policy, but not the paper. A shakeup of the staff would accomplish as much," Schroner said, "but cutting the funds completely would take much more time for the new publication to be printed."

Kidd explained the board had no right to tell the editorial staff of the Independent anything. "We aren't the power behind the press," he said.

The editor of the Independent is chosen by appointment of the previous editor with approval of the Board of Governors.

Although AIM has dropped subsidizing the Independent, Leonides, independent women's organization, is still backing the publication.

AIM could not completely curtail the publication because Leonides is in conjunction with AIM in financial backing of the Independent.

Philip Austin, editor of the publication, said the cause of present condition of the Independent was that "AIM meddled until supervision had grown in order to push the ideas of AIM, and not with the attitude of informing."

Austin continued, "The policy of the Independent has been not to stress news, but rather features." The Daily Collegian cov-

Gulden Ag Contest Dates Announced

The Paul R. Gulden Agricultural Speaking Contest for undergraduate students in the College of Agriculture will be held March 15 and 16, John Erlen, chairman of the contest committee, has announced.

The winner of the contest will receive a prize of $50 and a gold medal, Erlen said. A second prize of $25 and a silver medal will also be awarded.

Entries are being received in 109 Agriculture, Erlen said. The entry deadline is March 1.

Contestants will pick their own topics as long as it deals with agriculture, or rural living, and is original. Two sets of speeches will be given, both on the same topic. The first speech will be five minutes long and the second eight to ten minutes.

A detailed outline of the speech must be presented to the judges before the speech is given. Approximately 20% of the contestants will be selected to give a final speech.

Brunner, Buck are Judges
The judges will be Henry S. Brunner, professor of agriculture education, R. C. Buck, assistant professor of rural sociology, and one member of the speech department faculty to be selected.

Judging will be based on directness and bodily participation in delivery, selection of subject and support, organization of the subject, audibility and understanding, and clearness and correctness.

A preliminary meeting to approve the topics will be held at 7 p.m., March 1, in 103 Agriculture.

The semi-final speech will be delivered at 7 p.m. March 15, in 103 Agriculture. The final speech will be given at 7 p.m., March 16, in 109 Agriculture.

ers AIM well, and by the time the news for the Independent is obtained and appears in the Independent, it is bound to be old. That is why we use features."

"The Independent is not going out of business," Austin said. "All I need is a business manager."

Mark Reports Drop in Total Campus Parking

Parking violations have not decreased in number since a new fine collection system went into effect a week ago yesterday, but the number of cars parked on campus has decreased.

Capt. Philip A. Mark, head of the Campus Patrol, reported one parking area accommodating 200 cars was full on the Monday morning before the system went into effect and had 40 vacancies the Monday after the new system started.

Under the new system, parking violators are required to appear in the Campus Patrol office within 24 hours of getting a ticket. There they may either pay the fine or arrange an appearance before Traffic Court.

Fines are $1 for first offense and $4 for second offenses. Students with three violations are required to appear before the court.

Although there are four main human blood groups, it is estimated that blood-group factors are capable of 132,710,400 different combinations.

The FOOD BUSINESS?

A Representative of

THE

AMERICAN SUGAR REFINING CO.

Will visit Pennsylvania State University on Feb. 23rd to interview seniors interested in joining our Company's Graduate Training Program.

As the nation's largest, most progressive sugar refiner, we are looking for mechanical, chemical and industrial engineering graduates at our 5 refineries and business and liberal arts students for accounting and sales positions at several sales and office locations.

Men selected will be trained in all phases of the sugar business for a period of approximately 9 months. After completing this training program, promotion can be rapid for those who show promise of being able to assume responsibilities of administration and leadership.

If you would like to know more about our Graduate Training Program your Placement Officer will be glad to give you our descriptive literature and arrange for an interview.
