

Phone Number Change Planned

State College telephone numbers, including those at the University, will have two letters and five digits starting Aug. 1, Kenneth A. Bush, assistant manager of the State College Bell Telephone Co. business office, announced yesterday.

The new dialing system is the first step toward securing "customer tolling," which enables the dialer to place long distance calls directly to the number desired without contacting an operator.

Basketball AA Tickets Available

Exchange tickets for tonight's basketball game with Gettysburg will be distributed from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the ticket window of the Athletic Association office in Old Main.

Because of the freshman game prior to the varsity contest, the ticket booth in Recreation Hall will open at 6:15 tonight, Edward M. Czekaj, assistant business manager of athletics, said yesterday. The varsity game will start at 8 p.m.

Tickets for Saturday's double event program will also be distributed starting today. Students may get exchange tickets by presenting AA books at the ticket window of the Athletic Association office. The office will be open from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

Czekaj said the ticket booth in Recreation Hall will open about 5:45 p.m. Saturday. The boxing match with Virginia, originally scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday at Recreation Hall, has been switched to the Virginia campus.

Czekaj requested that students get tickets at the Athletic Association office rather than at Recreation Hall on the night of the event.

He explained that if this is done the Athletic Association will have a better idea of how many students plan to attend each program. This information is needed to determine how many tickets are to be placed on sale to the public.

Engineering Prof Disclaims Fears Of Radioactivity

Have no fears about becoming radioactive when campus winds blow after the University's nuclear reactor is built.

You won't. Reassurance comes from William Breazeale, professor of nuclear engineering, who will be in charge of the reactor.

Fact is, you probably won't even be able to get near the fission factory. There will be an exclusion area around the building. Persons who are admitted will be escorted by safety personnel or will have had instructions in health physics procedures.

Plans call for the reactor to be built within a year on a site east of the Nittany Dormitory area, near Entrance road.

As an additional safety feature, the reactor will be kept in a pool of water deep enough to absorb all neutrons and gamma rays. The water in the pool will not be drained until its radioactivity has been reduced to a safe level.

Lonsdale Comedy 'On Approval' To Be Presented Friday Night

By EDMUND REISS
When "On Approval" opens at 8 p.m. Friday at Center Stage, play-goers will see an hilarious farce-comedy by Frederick Lonsdale.

Tickets for the show, which will run for five weekends, are on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main and at the door of the theater.

Lonsdale was born on Feb. 5, 1881 on the Isle of Jersey, in the English Channel, and although he is not one of England's foremost playwrights, he has succeeded in capturing the imaginations of audiences, not only in the British Isles, but in her possessions, the continent and America as well.

Social Satirist
Lonsdale's usual type of comedy isn't the sophisticated, high comedy that has usually been associated with English humor of the last 50 years. He is a social satirist, but rather than get disgusted at the problems and mistakes of the world, he laughs at them. In this way his works are a study of manners, and rather than preach the ironic bitterness of Jonathan Swift, he comes near the humorous Restoration satirists, such as Congreve and Wycherly.

As a young man, Lonsdale, who was born Fredrick Leonard, and later changed his name, served England as a private in the Army. After leaving military service, he went to sea mainly since this was the life he had known as a boy. Not only did he become an able-bodied seaman but saw something of the world and obtained a knowledge of things he was later able to use in his plays.

1907 Saw First Play
His first play, "The Early Worm," was produced in 1907 and was soon followed by the "King of Cadonia" in 1908. Other plays of importance among the 26 he wrote are "The Balkan Princess," "Maid of the Mountains," "Spring Cleaning," "Aren't We All?," "The Street Singer," "The Fake," "Canaries Seldom Sing," "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne," "Once Is Enough," "But for the Grace of God," and "The Way Things Go."

"On Approval" was first performed in April, 1927, at the Fortune Theatre in London. Having a successful opening, the comedy achieved a lengthy run and has

Prexy Urges Faith In Freedom Talk

The ideological challenge of militant Communism can be countered by "a dynamic faith in God and clear knowledge of what the free system truly stands for," President Milton S. Eisenhower said Monday at the Freedom Foundation ceremonies at Valley Forge.

"We will then be firmly underway on the road to victory in the moral struggle which today envelops the world," Dr. Eisenhower said in a discussion of Soviet-American frictions.

Stressing the importance of faith in God as a basis for today's living, the President said, "The cornerstone of the American way of life is of course our fundamental belief in God. It is on this spiritual rock—on the conviction that all men are children of a Supreme Being—that the free nations of the West have built their democratic institutions."

Dr. Eisenhower presented the foundation's fifth annual awards to the 28 top winners at special ceremonies marking George Washington's birthday at the national headquarters of the foundation, a converted Revolutionary war barn.

Among recipients of the awards were U.S. Sen. Karl Mundt (R-S.D.), former Postmaster James A. Farley, the Boy Scouts of America, News Magazine of the Screen, and the Reader's Digest. Former President Herbert Hoover received $50 and a medal for a speech, "Your Inheritance." Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, took a similar prize for his talk, "What Is the United Nations Good for?"

Nittany Area Students Split On Dress Rule

Students in the Nittany Dormitory area either favor the Sunday dress rule or are completely opposed to all dress regulations, a poll of 14 of the area's 24 dorms revealed at the Nittany Council meeting Monday night.

Richard Steindel, council president, said 203 students said they were completely opposed to the rule, 206 favored the rule on Sunday, 17 favored the weekday dress rule, seven were completely for the rule and two were indifferent.

The dress rule was passed by All-College Cabinet Sept. 24. It provides that men in University dormitories must wear a coat and tie to dinner on Sundays and for coeducational dining. Slacks and a collared shirt were to be worn during the week to evening meals. Little enforcement of the rule in the Nittany-Pollock dining hall has been reported. The West Dorm area has been cooperating with the rule voluntarily.

Members of the council said some students in their dormitories interpreted a story in Friday's Daily Collegian to mean there would be no further enforcement of the dress rule. The story said the dress rule will not be incorporated in the contract for next year as part of requirements set by the Department of Housing for students living in dormitories.
