

McCoy Expresses Interest In Super Grid Conference

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 — Notre Dame, Penn State and Pittsburgh said today they would be interested in joining a super football conference of major colleges if one could be organized.

The Associated Press learned that such a league, under discussion for several years, is still very much a live project although no definite steps have been taken.

Lions Win —

35, their biggest bulge of the night.

Not to be outdone, the spunky Bullets fought back, scoring ten in succession to narrow the gap to 62-45. However, the Lions were never in danger. Weidenhammer and Jimmy Brewer teamed up to move the margin back up to 72-49.

At this point the Bullets began to gain on Gross' reserve-sprinkled quintet. They moved the count to 72-58 as the final seconds ticked off the clock. When the buzzer rang the Lions held a very comfortable 76-62 lead.

Penn State outscored Gettysburg by ten field goals but took a back seat on the foul line. The Bullets piled up 22 charity points in 35 attempts and the Lions accounted for 16 in 24 tries. Gross' contingent fired a good 42 per cent from the floor and the Bullets hit on 30 per cent.

The win brings the Lions' season total up to 11-5 with three games remaining.

In addition to Notre Dame, Pitt, and Penn State, the super loop would include Army and Navy and probably three other schools.

Edward Moose Krause, athletic director at Notre Dame, said the Irish "would show an interest in STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 24 (AP)—Athletic Director E. B. McCoy said today that Penn State is interested in membership in a new football league or conference but has received no definite invitation.

"At Penn State, we believe a league or conference has advantages which are not open to an independent," McCoy said.

McCoy's statement was released amid new reports that a group of important "independent" colleges may band together to form a league which might be national in scope.

"The grouping is a very attractive one and one to which Penn State most certainly would give serious consideration," McCoy said, adding:

Unfortunately, no invitation has been extended to us and our administration therefore has not been asked to weigh the question."

McCoy said that at Penn State it "is our hope that conference sentiment will develop and that Penn State will be considered as a prospective member."

"It should be pointed out, however," he added, "that Penn State would be interested only if the conference members subscribed to a code of standards such as Penn State now adheres to without benefit of such affiliations."

a conference of that type, but we'd like to have more details as to size and the number of games involved."

He pointed out that Notre Dame regularly plays Navy and Pitt and resumes gridiron relations with Army in 1957.

Tom Hamilton, athletic director at Pittsburgh, called the proposed conference "a very interesting idea. Pitt wouldn't be adverse to joining such a league."

Neither Pitt nor Notre Dame ever has belonged to a conference.

The service academies appear to be the key members. An informed source, highly influential in college athletics, said the conference "probably will go through if Army and Navy can be brought into it." The source asked that his name be withheld.

Col. Earl Blaik, the Army coach, said it had not been discussed at West Point.

At Annapolis, Md., a Naval Academy spokesman said the academy is not interested in joining any football conference. The spokesman, who was not identified, declared that the academy "is a national institution. It would not be appropriate for it to be identified with a particular conference."

Other schools figuring in the original discussions were Penn, Duke and North Carolina. Penn now has chosen the de-emphasized Ivy League which will begin formal operation in 1956. Duke and North Carolina joined the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Oklahoma and Tulane also have been mentioned as possible members but neither expressed interest today.

Frenchman Wins Title

Matmen Face Pitt Saturday

Not since the University of Maryland furnished the opposition in Rec Hall last year had a wrestling team possessed a solid personnel as will the Panthers of Pitt Saturday night when they meet Coach Charlie Speidel's Eastern and National champions.

The dual meet is scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday in Rec Hall.

Pitt, beaten only by Michigan during the current campaign, boasts six unbeaten grapplers, four of whom will likely see action against the Lions. Ron Kurtz, Pitt's undefeated 130-pounder, may not wrestle because of injury. He is sporting a 5-0 log.

George Beresford is a doubtful starter because Coach Rex Peery usually gives the nod to Joe Solomon in the 177-pound class. Beresford has won four straight, while Solomon has a 5-2-1 record. Solomon has wrestled in the 167 and 177-pound classes.

The other Pitt grapplers who will attempt to continue their winning ways are 123-pound Hugh Peery, two-time NCAA champ (9-0); 147-pound Bob Cook (3-0), 157-pound Charley Uram (7-0-2), and 167-pound Ed DeWitt (8-0).

Penn State and Pitt, keen rivals in all sports, have met eleven times in wrestling and the Lions have walked off with every decision. Four of these wins came at the expense of Peery-coached teams, beginning in 1950.

Pitt, which is carrying one of the finest won and lost records in the East this season, has come out on top in eight of their nine scheduled matches so far.

Besides the Michigan defeat, 16-11, only Navy has come close to pinning the Panthers. The Mid-dies, however, dropped the contest by two team points.

Coach Peery's team has also posted wins against Toledo, Michigan State, Lehigh, Yale, Army, Lock Haven, and West Virginia.

NCAA Adds 2 Teams

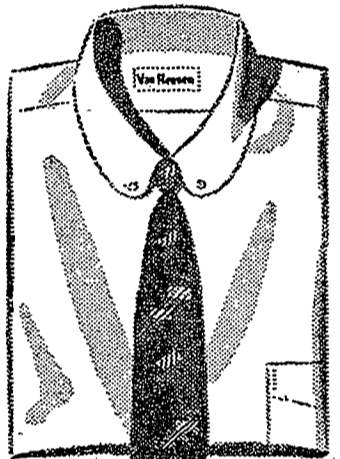

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 24 (AP)—Santa Clara and Loyola of New Orleans today were selected as at-large teams for the National Collegiate basketball championship.

Raschi Expects 20 Wins With Cards This Year

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Vic Raschi, now in a St. Louis Cardinal uniform, said he'll be disappointed with less than 20. I'll be pitching without any leg victories this year.

"For the first time in three years trouble," the righthander said. Raschi, who won 13 games last season, was sold to the Cardinals by the New York Yankees yesterday.

THE LOGIC MAJOR WHO HATED ROLLS

Recently a young mid-westerner enrolled at a university as a Logic major. His father had told him, with some understatement, that he was illogical. He refused to squire a pretty girl to a dance because her name was June Betz and he was against gambling.

He wouldn't eat avocados because they were also called "alligator pears" and he didn't like alligators.

In addition, he was a slob.

Some of the men in his dorm tried to talk to him.

"Look at that shirt," they said. "The material's cheesy. Why don't you hop down and get a Van Heusen Oxfordian... it's soft, fine oxford cloth."

"I'm not attending Oxford. I'm attending Old Siwash," answered our boy.

"But, look, Buster. This oxford cloth is woven tighter so it'll last longer. It's a smart investment. And it only costs $4.50."

"So who needs it? I might get hit by a truck. Then what good would it be?" quoth Buster.

"What about your collar? Flat as a pancake! Don't you want a good-looking button-down with that famous Van Heusen relaxed-roll?" one asked.

"I got nothing against pancakes. I hate rolls."

Note: Our man flunked Logic post haste, and was drafted. The Army has him classified under "Secret Weapons."
