

Does Blue Band Ever Hibernate?

By NANCY SHOWALTER

Did you ever wonder what happens to the Penn State Blue Band after football season is over? It is a confusing matter, since the Blue Band, which is the top musical unit on campus, is actually divided into two organizations, the Penn State Marching Blue Band and the Penn State Concert Blue Band.

Soph Contest Lacks Entries

No entries in the sophomore class queen contest have been submitted so far, officials at the Student Union desk in Old Main said late yesterday afternoon.

The deadline for submitting photographs of contestants is noon, March 12.

Janet McKee, co-chairman of the sophomore class queen committee, said postcards were sent to campus organizations arousing their interest in the contest.

The contest is open to sophomore women sponsored by any campus organization. The minimum size for pictures to be submitted is 2 1/2 by 4 inches.

A panel of judges will select five finalists who will appear at the sophomore class semi-formal spring prom March 20 in Recreation Hall.

Court Fines 3 Students In Violations

The Traffic Court last night charged three persons $5 in fines, and recommended that their cars be sent home.

Two of these three persons had seven violations recorded against them; the other person had five. In these three cases the persons asked that their fines be deferred for payment to the Dean of Men's office.

Six other persons who had three violations or more under extenuating circumstances, were sent to the dean's office on a general recommendation. These persons will probably be placed on probation, James Dunlap, Traffic Court chairman, said.

A probation in this case is a special Traffic Court probation, not to be confused with a probation issued by the dean of men.

Four persons, of the 20 cases recorded by the Collegian reporter, had parking violations recorded because they had let their friends or parents park illegally. Dunlap pointed out that the student who has the car on campus will be held responsible for the car regardless of who is driving it.

In regards to parking on campus, Dunlap pointed out that no student is allowed to park on campus without a permit for one of the parking areas.

A total of 59 violations were recorded by the Traffic Court. The court collected $17 in fines.

Druid Tapping Draws Near For 20 Frosh, Soph Athletes

By PEGGY McCLAIN

When spring approaches, the Druid tapping season also draws near. This semester a maximum of 20 second, third, and fourth semester men may be tapped for Druids, sophomore men's hat society.

Druids was originally founded on the Penn State campus in 1907. With a total of 15 members, the group was begun for the avowed purpose of promoting sportsmanship in athletic contests and promoting also, in all honorable ways, the welfare of the University. It is a national organization and has chapters at the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Washington and Jefferson College, and the University of Delaware.

20 Present Limit
Today the organization selects members from second, third, and fourth semester men who have been outstanding in some field of sports. Maximum membership is 20 and is by invitation only. No man is ineligible for his race, creed, or religion.

Action taken by Druids in past years has centered mainly around athletics and the University athletic policy. In 1947 the men undertook the task of raising money to buy a new lion suit for the campus mascot. Last semester Druids initiated a program in Recreation Hall called "Preview of Sports," which was a series of talks by coaches and student athletes.

Made Policy Attack
Perhaps one of the most remarkable moves made by the group was its attack in 1950 on the University football policy. In March of that year coach Joseph Bedenk had resigned his position, leaving the team without a coach. In opposition to what the group called the administration's lax attempts to replace Bedenk, Druids sent the administration a 450-word letter urging prompt action on selecting a big-time football coach and circulated for 5000 names a petition to "Act Now." In urging this action the group combined efforts with Skull and Bones, senior men's hat society. They pointed out that Penn State was a big school now and therefore should have a big athletic program.

Led to Engle Appointment
On April 22 of that year, 22 days after the letter was sent, the administration announced the appointment of Charles "Rip" Engle as head coach.

Besides striving as a policy to inject sportsmanship and gentlemanliness into University athletics, Druids annually performs less-acclaimed but valuable services to the school. The group keeps the activities files in the Dean of Men's office in practical condition, and is responsible for care of the trophy cases in Rec Hall. In cooperation with other hat societies, Druids took several turns this fall at sponsoring pep rallies — perhaps the most outstanding of which was the bonfire rally at Jordon Fertility Plots before the Penn State-Pitt football game.

Committee Sets Pan American Week Events

Events to be held and the order of their sequence in the Penn State celebration of Pan American Week were decided by the Pan American Week committee yesterday.

John Speer, co-chairman of the committee, called for the sub-committee reports on the results of investigation of suggestions made at the last meeting.

The possibility of a Latin American exhibition to be displayed at the Fred Lewis Pattee Library was confirmed by Rafael Barrera, chairman of the exhibition committee and co-chairman of the Pan American Week committee. The exhibition will open the events starting April 4 and continuing until April 11.

The previous proposal of an informal dance session at the Temporary Union Building was checked and reported by Sherry Kofman, sub-committee chairman on the dance. The dance will be held April 11.

Allan Ofensend, chairman of the committee for the flag-raising ceremony reported flags were available. A formal ceremony will be held the morning of April 12 in front of Old Main to officially open the week. Theofilos Balabanis, chairman of the radio programs, reported that station WMAJ will be willing to broadcast several programs during the week.

Another meeting of the committee will be held Tuesday to discuss further plans.

Farm Bureau Offers Aid

The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is establishing a $150 scholarship for second semester sophomores.

A contract for eight-week work periods at the end of the sophomore and junior years with salary is needed for the scholarship.

Upon the recipient's graduation, neither he nor the Farm Bureau would be obligated to full-time employment.

Since this is the first year that the scholarship would be in effect, a one-year scholarship is offered to a junior on the same terms for this year only.

Riding Club to Meet

A film, "Green Tree Thoroughbred," on the breeding and training of a race horse will be shown to the Riding Club at 7 tonight in 317 Willard.
