

Yugoslav Economy Is Unlike Russia's

By PHYLLIS PROPERT

(Last in a series of two articles based on an interview with Carroll D. Champlin, professor emeritus, who talked with Marshal Tito, dictator of Yugoslavia, last summer.)

Although Yugoslavia has collective farms and factories operated on the communistic plan, they are not the same as those of Russia; Marshall Tito, head of the Yugoslav government, told Carroll D. Champlin, professor emeritus, last summer.

The dictator said his aim was securing more freedom for his people and a higher standard of living for all.

Champlin quoted the dictator as saying that his country has no concentration camps nor forced labor camps. However, Champlin added, this does not mean Tito has not purged and exiled some of his critics.

Champlin was among 41 Americans who interviewed Tito at his summer home on Brioni Island. The Americans were members of the good will seminar which toured Europe for 54 days to obtain ideas about other countries.

During the tour Champlin and his wife visited England, France, Germany, Yugoslavia, Italy, and Switzerland. They were in East Berlin a few weeks after the food riots.

Talked to 100 Men

The group had been scheduled to hear 64 lecturers provided by the seminar's contact men in the different countries. But by the time the trip was over, the group had talked with over 100 prominent figures in the different countries.

Among the prominent men Champlin talked with were Clement Attlee, former British prime minister for the Labor Party; Selwyn Lloyd, of the British foreign office, representing Eden and Churchill of the Conservative Party; several men and women of the British Parliament; Rene Pleven, minister of defense in the French cabinet; Andre Fontaine, and Mark Boegner, French authorities on politics and social welfare; and James Conant, former president of Harvard and the present high commissioner of Western Germany.

Champlin Taught for 27

Champlin taught at Penn State for 27 years. He came to the University in the summer of 1924 after receiving his B.A. and M.A. degrees from Haverford College in 1914 and 1915. He has taught philosophy, history of education, and graduate courses in 11 schools. He retired from the University in July, 1953, as professor emeritus.

This summer, Champlin will teach for ten weeks at San Jose State College followed by a semester of instruction for the second time at the University of Puerto Rico.

Champlin Visited 36 Countries

Champlin took his first European trip in 1934. Since then he has traveled in 36 countries during his seven European tours. He made four trips to Latin America and visited Canada five times.

Although the Queen Mary brought the professor and Mrs. Champlin back to the United States only six months ago, the couple will be leaving their home again on March 20.

They are taking a 60-day trip through the Middle East, North Africa, and Southern Europe, visiting 16 countries, only two of which Champlin has visited before. They will spend Holy Week in the Holy Land.

BULLETIN
Nominations Extended
Lack of nominations for Women's Recreation Association spring elections caused the WRA Executive Board last night to extend the nominations deadline to 5 p.m. Friday.

Scrolls State Requirements For Tapping

Scrolls, senior women's hat society, has set its tapping date for approximately the third week in May. Gwen Griffith, president, has announced.

Eligibility for Scrolls is based on one major activity, in which a student has been active for at least three years and has obtained a substantial position, and two minor activities. Tappes must have a 1.5 All-University average, and sixth or seventh semester standing.

Miss Griffith has requested that women students complete activity record cards in the Dean of Women's office, 105 Old Main.

Scrolls will sponsor jointly with Womens Student Government Association the marriage conferences March 9, 10, and 11. The conferences are scheduled to follow forum talks on these dates.

Letters of inquiry about establishing a national chapter of Scrolls will be sent this week to all colleges and universities in Pennsylvania, Miss Griffith said, and to 45 schools throughout the country which are comparable to the University in size and academic standards.

Active members of Scrolls and Mary Jane Wyland, Scrolls advisor, will be formally initiated April 26. The group constitution and ritual have been completed, Miss Griffith said.

Nominations Open For Leonides; 8 Named Monday

First nominations for Leonides officers were made Monday night by members of the council. Nominated for president was Joyce Shusman. Betty Buchanan and Loa Packard were nominated for vice president.

Recording secretary nominations were Sara Jane Henry, Ruth Oram, and Joanne Eddy. Constance Taylor and Peggy Trevorow were suggested for corresponding secretary.

Further nominations will be made at the next Leonides meeting. Elections will be held April 1. New officers will take office May 3.

Leonides also discussed the National Independent Student Association conference to be held at Cornell April 12 to 15.

Members of Leonides council and alternates who wish to attend the conference may contact Ethel Wilson, 364 McElwain.

Leonides voted to recommend to All-University Cabinet that the Graduate School have a seat on cabinet.

Self-Nominations End

Today is the last time women interested in running for offices in the Women's Student Government Association and the Women's Recreation Association may nominate themselves.

Self-nomination forms are available in the Dean of Women's office, 105 Old Main.

Nominees for both organizations will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow, Margaret Faris, WSGA elections chairman, and Kathleen Queensberry, WRA elections chairman, have announced. Nominees for WSGA positions will meet in 101 Willard and WRA nominees will meet in 104 Willard.

A screening board will interview WSGA nominees from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday in the WSGA room in White Hall. The board will check the qualifications of nominees and eliminate nominees if there are too many for any position, Miss Faris said.

Miss Queensberry said WRA had not yet decided if it would have a screening board. She said the number of nominees would determine whether one is used.

Whitney Will Speak To PSCA Assembly

The Rev. John R. Whitney, curate of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, will speak to the Penn State Christian Association Assembly at 7 tonight in 304 Old Main.

His topic will be "Sin, Sex, and Sacrament." Following the talk will be a discussion of the Christian's understanding of sex.

Primary elections will be March 16 and final elections will be March 18. Voting will be conducted in the women's dormitories.

Nominees for both organizations must have a 1.5 All-University average and may not have a major judicial record.

The following WSGA members will be elected: president, vice president, senior senator, junior senator, sophomore senator, treasurer, and town senator. The runners-up for president and vice president will be secretary and a junior senator, respectively.

places where literature and maps are available to those who like to plan their trips before going to New York.

We found the booklet invaluable in digging out charming holes in the wall—little restaurants and places ordinarily overlooked in doing the town. It is also a handy timesaver. By prearranging stops close to one another you can eliminate time lost in wandering around trying to decide where to go.

Places are selected for reasonable prices, cleanliness, attractiveness, and quality of food, entertainment, and drink. Although Duncan Hines and cafe society would undoubtedly brand them as plebeian, we heartily recommend them for penurious collegiates.

The booklet is published by Young's Research Service, P.O. Box 72, Gracie Station, N.Y. 28. Price is $1.

MISS BETTY ZELLER

Okay Joe?

Until today, coeds have always occupied our little "space of honor" above. However, if you've ever noticed the surprisingly high numbers of attractive girls on the secretarial staff of the University, you'll know why they too will be included in our OK Joe's. In fact, let's not overlook some of the grad assistants. Check the Misses Margulies and Emdin of the German and Eng. Lit. departments respectively.

Nineteen year old Betty, who comes from Camp Hill, works for the Arts and Science department, dines in the CR and isn't going steady. (Printer, place the last few words in capitals).

Quickies—After judging the 60 odd entries in the Pittsburgh Press contest, it can only be said (against sage advice) that a goodly number of sure-fire contest material wasn't even entered. Think not? Buzz 4454 and I'll be more explicit. Again against good advice, photos shouldn't even be used as a basis for judging. Have you any idea what a few spotlights and first class retouching can do for a girl. Come on up and I will show you some of our confidential before and after pictures.

Our deadline for this new contest coming up is March 8th—about 7 openings left. (If you contest officials would only give the girls enough of a notice to have a portrait taken much trouble could be avoided—but you'll do it every time—5 days notice. A sure fire way to discourage more than you encourage.)

Penny wise and pound foolish? Just received a limited selection of the world famous Lippi frames (waited 4 years to find them). Truly for the discriminating few.

Party of the week—ATO.

Sincerely,
b.c.
