

FMA to Study Dean Reports on Dress Rule Action on Meat

Fraternity Marketing Association will hold its annual members' meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Beta Sigma Rho and is expected to take action on adding meats to its list of items supplied to fraternities.

Other business, in addition to officers' reports, will be naming five new members to the board of trustees, including one alumni and three student members and a trustee-at-large. FMA officers for the coming year will then be elected by the board at its next meeting.

In a letter sent out last week, Robert K. Murray, president of the organization, said all member fraternities are expected to send at least their FMA representative. He invited the chapter presidents and advisers to attend. Murray said representatives should come ready to vote on the meat buying plan and whether their house will participate. The plan will be considered if discounts of from 5 to 10 per cent can be obtained, he said.

It has been pointed out by Murray that the 27 member fraternities do up to $600 worth of meat business each month and at this rate FMA could be assured of handling about $13,000 worth of meat monthly. Not only would fraternities benefit, Murray explained, but the organization would be able to clear enough on a 2 per cent service charge to hire a secretary.

If the service is approved by the members, Murray said he hopes FMA can start functioning in meats by April 1. He said bids have already been received from several suppliers and all will be given an equal chance to secure the contract.

Murray pointed out that the only difference in the meat plan, as compared to the plans for services now supplied by FMA, is that bills will be paid twice a month rather than monthly.

FMA has handled canned goods for some time now and recently added furniture to its line of supplies. In a contract secured from O. W. Houts, Inc. of State College, fraternities have been granted a 27 per cent discount.

Dress rules passed by All-University Cabinet early last fall are not being enforced by any organized group but have been basically well received, James W. Dean, assistant to the dean of men in charge of independent affairs, said yesterday.

The dress rules as passed by All-University Cabinet state that men in both the east and west dormitory areas shall wear slacks and collared shirts for all evening meals and coats and ties for Sunday dinners and coeducational dining.

The dress rules originated at the second annual student encampment last September at Mount Alto.

Dean reported the rule concerning coats and ties for Sunday dinner has been better supported than the rule concerning dress for evening meals. The majority of men in both dormitory areas follow this ruling although there are still a few individuals who show up for Sunday dinner wearing dungarees and T-shirts as seen in the photos above. These photos were taken outside the Hamilton dining hall at noon Sunday. Cooperation with this phase of the dress ruling has been slightly better in the West Dorms than the East Dorms, Dean reported.

Students' comments concerning the Sunday dress rule range from the feeling there was nothing to dress up for on Sunday to the feeling that, since many students would be coming directly from church to the dining hall, every one should be required to wear coats and ties.

Counselors in the West Dorm area report the ruling concerning slacks and collared shirts for evening meals is being followed to a considerable extent but there is more opposition to this rule than the Sunday dress rule.

Most opposition to this phase of the ruling has centered in the Nittany-Dormitory area where only a small percentage of the students follow the rule. Students in this area reported they believe it is not necessary to dress for evening meals and they do not have time to get to their dormitories, change clothes, and get to the dining hall on time.

Four Students Will Present Music Recital

Four students will present selected works of Bach, Beethoven, and other famous composers in a recital at 4 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium.

James Madenfort, sixth semester music education major, will sing a tenor solo of Handel's "Samson" and Schumann's "Die Lotosblume." A soprano vocal number will be presented by Barbara Parros, sixth semester arts and letters major, who will sing "Trauen Liebe und Leben, Opus 42," also by Schumann.

Included in the program will be Beethoven's "Sonata in A Flat Major, Opus 110, No. 31," presented on the piano by Roy Clark, sixth semester arts and letters major.

The final selections will be "Toccata and Fugue, D Minor" (Bach) and "Carillon" (Sowerby), as played on the organ by Ruth Stuft, eighth semester music education major.

The program is open to the public.

Concert Band To Perform At High School

The Penn State Concert Blue Band, under the direction of James W. Dunlop, associate professor of music education, will present a concert at 1 p.m. Tuesday in the State College High School auditorium.

The program will include selections from the Blue Band concert to be given at 3 p.m. March 21 in Schwab Auditorium.

"The National Anthem" will open the concert Tuesday, followed by the "Italian and Algiers Overture." The band will also play a portion of "The Marine March," and selections from "Suite of Old American Dances," and "Porgy and Bess."

Included in the program will be hill-billy music from "Americana," the official "West Point March," and "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Featured soloists in the concert will be Donald Lambert, president of the Blue Band, who will present a baritone horn solo of "Beautiful Colorado."

Queen Entries Total Eighteen

Seven more entries in the sophomore class queen contest were received yesterday to bring the total to 18, officials at the Student Union desk, Old Main, announced.

The deadline for the contest is 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Any sophomore woman, sponsored by a campus organization is eligible for the contest. Photographs of contestants should be submitted at the Student Union desk, Old Main.

Judges will select five finalists. A queen will be chosen from the finalists at the sophomore semi-formal spring prom March 20 in Recreation Hall.

Congratulations and a carton of Old Golds to Nancy Lee Meyers, for excellent work as feature editor for the Daily Collegian and as historian of scrolls.

The big feature about Old Golds, is a Treat instead of a Treatment—to give you smoking relaxation and enjoyment. No outlandish claims—just the friendly companionship of fine tobaccos in King Size or Regular.

Zemick Named 1954 Gavel Girl At Convention

Mary Zemick, second semester nursing major, Mt. Mercy, was selected 1954 Gavel Girl of the 19th annual Pennsylvania State Debaters' Congress last night at a banquet in the Hotel State College.

She was chosen from four candidates, nominated by various topic committees, after a five minute speech on "Women in public life: what can be said for it?" Selection by the convention body was based on personality, speaking ability, and charm.

Other candidates were Ellen Ross, second semester journalism major, the University; Phyllis Kutalakis, fourth semester English major, Slippery Rock State Teachers College; and Kathleen Haney, fourth semester English major, Mount Mercy.

Following the banquet, attended by more than 100 delegates from 20 colleges and universities, an assembly session was held. Reports by the committee on foreign trade were debated by the general assembly. The assembly will consider the problem of presidential selection at tomorrow's assembly.
