

Schott to Tell Of Prexy Talks

Thomas Schott, president of the Interfraternity Council, will discuss his talk yesterday with President Milton S. Eisenhower on the University's new social policy with IFC representatives at 7:30 tonight in 119 Electrical Engineering.

Schott said yesterday no decisions were reached on any possible changes in the social code, approved by the Senate Mar. 4. He said he intends to talk with President Eisenhower again before final action on the code is taken by the Senate April 1.

Kenworthy at Talk

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, was present during the conference between Schott and President Eisenhower. He termed the talks "satisfactory" and "helpful." Kenworthy said the "philosophy" of the code was discussed.

Kenworthy said no specific requests were made by Schott about possible changes in the code. Any specific changes Schott wants to make must be made to the Senate committee on student affairs, he explained.

The discussion with President Eisenhower resulted from a meeting of fraternity presidents last Wednesday night. The presidents had expressed objection to sections of the policy which required chaperons during times women are in fraternities, and to time limits placed on entertaining women in the houses.

Morse to Give SDX Banquet Rebuttal Talk

Adrian O. Morse, University provost, will be the rebuttal speaker at the 21st annual Sigma Delta Chi Gridiron banquet March 30, in the Nittany Lion Inn. The banquet, sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity, regularly "lampoons" in skits and episodes administration officials, professors, and student leaders.

It is patterned after the annual Washington Press Writers' Gridiron banquet which satirizes famous Washington officials from the President on down.

Morse will speak in answer to the "lampooning."

In the past such figures as President Milton S. Eisenhower; Pearl O. Weston, dean of women; Philip A. Mark, head of the campus patrol; and Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, have been featured in the skits.

WSGA Shows Influence On Campus-Wide Scale

By BAYLEE FRIEDMAN

What affects women students invariably affects the men.

From this reasoning we see that the Women's Student Government Association, of which every Penn State coed is a member, has far-reaching influence in the scope of campus affairs.

The organization is divided into a Senate, House of Representatives, Freshman Council, and judiciary body. Senate, whose members are elected by popular vote, represents the highest governing group of WSGA. Its members direct, initiate, and control business which concerns women students individually and collectively.

Any woman with a 1.5 All-University average, who does not have a major judicial record, may nominate herself for a position on Senate. Other women's organizations—Panhellenic Council, Women's Recreation Association, and Leonides, independent women's organization—have ex-officio seats on Senate.

Upperclass women's dormitory unit presidents may express ideas of resident students through the House of Representatives. The vice president of WSGA presides over the house and acts as general chairman of the annual May Day affair. Suggestions and criticism from the dormitory units are usually aired in the house and in Freshman Council, the frosh counterpart.

Judicial interprets and enforces regulations formulated by Senate. Through this body, women students, appointed by the WSGA president, handle student discipline problems affecting their sister coeds. The Freshman Regulations Board, comprised of sophomore women handles discipline problems affecting freshmen.

Richard Davis of Lehigh presided at the sessions Thursday through Saturday at the University. Approximately 120 delegates from 18 colleges and universities, including six out-of-state institutions, attended.

Selected as outstanding floor speakers were Blair Crownover and Charles Gerlinger, Princeton; John McNiff, Fordham; and Kathleen Haney, Mount Mercy. They were awarded sterling silver key-stone keys inscribed "Parliamentary Speaker."

Mary Zemick of Mount Mercy was named Gavel Girl of the convention. Selection by delegates was based on personality, speaking ability, and charm.
