

Prexy Advocates Ivy League Rules

President Milton S. Eisenhower said yesterday in an article in the New York Times he wished all universities in the country would subscribe to the Ivy League agreement covering football practices.

"The Pennsylvania State University does not belong to a conference," President Eisenhower said. "We abide by the principles and rules of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"I do believe that the Ivy agreement represents a significant advance over the practices of other conferences as I know them, and therefore the presidents, governing boards, and faculties of Ivy League schools deserve the thanks of the entire American educational community."

The Ivy agreement provides for rigid scholastic requirements for athletic eligibility, strict limit and supervision of financial aid to athletes, prohibition of spring practice, curtailment of the playing season's length, and barring of post-season bowl and all-star games for secondary school players and coaches, and endorsement of commercial products.

Besides President Eisenhower, 12 college presidents took part in the article, the first in a series of three articles in the Times discussing football, Cloide E. Brehm, president of the University of Tennessee and a graduate of the University, also took part in the discussion.

Committee Gets Housing Report At WD Council

A committee report recommending an increase in housing for upperclassmen in the West Dorm area was referred back to the committee for more study by West Dorm Council last night.

The report, presented by Stanley Juras, co-chairman of the committee, also recommended that sophomore and junior candidates for housing in the area have an average higher than the All-University median for men. No change was recommended for senior men in the area. Present requirements are a 2.0 and a 1.5 for sophomore and junior applications, respectively.

The report also stipulated that Hamilton and McKee Halls be subdivided into smaller living units by barriers, and a "core" system be established, by which upperclassmen of previous acquaintance could live together, with a proportional number of freshmen assigned to these units.

Carl Hiester stated in a discussion which followed the reading of the report that nothing could be done about changing the entrance requirement in West Dorm housing until a different way could be devised to house freshmen.

With only one dissenting vote from Juras, the report was sent back to the committee for further study and clarification.

Robert Gellman, entertainment committee chairman, said a record dance will be held in West Dorm lounge from 8 to 10 p.m. on Friday, and the dance will be open to all students.

A cake walk, featuring music by the Melody Men will be held from 9 to 12 p.m. on Saturday. Admission will be by presentation of West Dorm Social Club Card.

Room Selection For Women Begins Tonight

Room selection for the fall semester will begin tonight for fourth through seventh semester women who have not made previous definite arrangements, according to Mrs. Cordelia L. Hibbs, assistant to the dean of women in charge of housing.

This does not include women who will be student teaching or living in the home management house for eight weeks during the fall semester, Mrs. Hibbs said. Roommates must be together to select a room, and the lowest of the two selection numbers will be given priority.

Selection of rooms for fifth, sixth, and seventh semester women will be held from 6:30 to 7 tonight in the Dean of Women's office, 105 Old Main.

Fourth semester women with numbers from 1 through 180 will choose rooms from 7 to 7:30 p.m. and from 181 through 350 from 7:30 to 8 p.m. All fourth semester women holding numbers higher than 350 will be notified later when they may select rooms, Mrs. Hibbs said.

Second and third semester women will also select rooms later. Women choosing to live with a student in a lower semester must select a room with that student.

Scott Elected President Of Psychology Club

Thomas Scott, fourth semester psychology major, has been elected president of the Psychology Club.

Other officers are Marlene Sipe, vice president; Elaine Rothstein, secretary; and Mary Stahl, treasurer.

Speaker Set For Ag Hill Honor Day

Stanley Andrews, executive director of the National Project in Agricultural Communication, will be the main speaker at Ag Hill Achievement Day at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks. His topic will be "World Agriculture—A Changing Pattern."

During the program 52 students will receive over $5000 in cash as well as trophies and awards. Mr. Andrews, a senior in the College of Agriculture, selected on the basis of activities by a faculty committee, will be honored, as will the winners of the Paul R. Guldin Agriculture Speaking Contest.

The NPAC, of which Andrews is the head, is sponsored by the land-grant colleges of the United States and financed by the Kellogg Foundation. Purpose of the project is to help administrators and information workers of land-grant institutions to determine the best media for reaching the farm population.

Andrews will outline the role of American agriculture in the present day world and point out the work of the NPAC. His long experience in agriculture both national and international prompted his choice as executive director of the project.

Paul H. Margolf, adviser to the Agriculture student council, and Edgar Fehnel, Coaly Society president, will emcee the program. Ned Clark, seventh semester poultry husbandry major, is in charge of the program.

Fulbright Forms Deadline Set

Candidates for Fulbright grants for university lecturing and advanced research abroad should apply by April 15.

Application forms and further information may be obtained from the conference board of Associated Research Councils of the committee on international exchange of persons, Washington, D.C., according to Robert E. Galbraith, Fulbright adviser at the University.

Candidates must be citizens of the United States. Applicants for lectureships must have at least one year of college teaching and those for research work must have a doctoral degree or recognized standing in their profession.

Hurst Wins Fellowship

Paul M. Hurst Jr., advanced graduate student in psychology, has been awarded the National Science Foundation Fellowship for the calendar year beginning June 1, 1954.

5 O'Clock Group Gives Play Today

"Courtship and an Early Death," a one-act play by William Coleman, will be presented by the Five O'Clock Theater group of the Dramatics department at 5 p.m. today in the Little Theater, basement of Old Main.

Coleman, a graduate of the University, is the author of "Pillars in the Night," a full-length play presented last semester by Players. Directing the free, script-in-hand production is Jeannie Risler.

Lepley Will Address Psych Club Tonight

William M. Lepley, professor of psychology, will address the Psychology Club at 7 tonight in 204 Burrowes. His topic will be "A Synonym Vocabulary Test."

University Alumna Featured In Current Broadway Musical

By ANN LEH

Some of the campus high brows who regularly peruse the drama section of the Sunday New York Times, and some of the lower brows who may notice it while searching for the News in Review section in preparation for current events quizzes, may have seen a caricature of the cast of the latest Broadway hit, "The Girl in Pink Tights" on the front page of the drama section last week.

If anyone took the time to survey the sketch closely, he may have noticed, down in the lower right hand corner, a picture of Brenda Lewis, the singing comedienne of the show.

University Alumnae

What he and most other Penn Staters probably did not know, however, is that Miss Lewis, the second female lead of the show, is one of our own alumnae.

Miss Lewis was graduated from the University in 1946. And, although this is her first appearance on the musical comedy stage, if critics have anything to say about it, it won't be her last.

Before breaking into this latest field, Miss Lewis made a name for herself as a classic singer on the stage of the New York City Center Opera.

'Oscar' Winner Included

However, Miss Lewis isn't the only Penn State alum who has made a mark in show business. The names of alumni association members reveal not only co-producers and writers of some of the biggest hits in recent years, but even an Academy Award winner.

Perhaps the best known former Penn Stater in the show world is Gene Kelly, who was on campus in 1929 and 1930 and would have been graduated with the Class of 1933. While on campus Gene was active in Thespians and was a member of Phi Kappa. He was a commerce and finance major until the call of the show world proved greater than the call of the books.

In "I Am a Camera"

Many of us may remember the Broadway hit of a few years back, "I Am a Camera." The second male lead of this show was Martin Brooks, known when he was on campus, as Martin Baum.

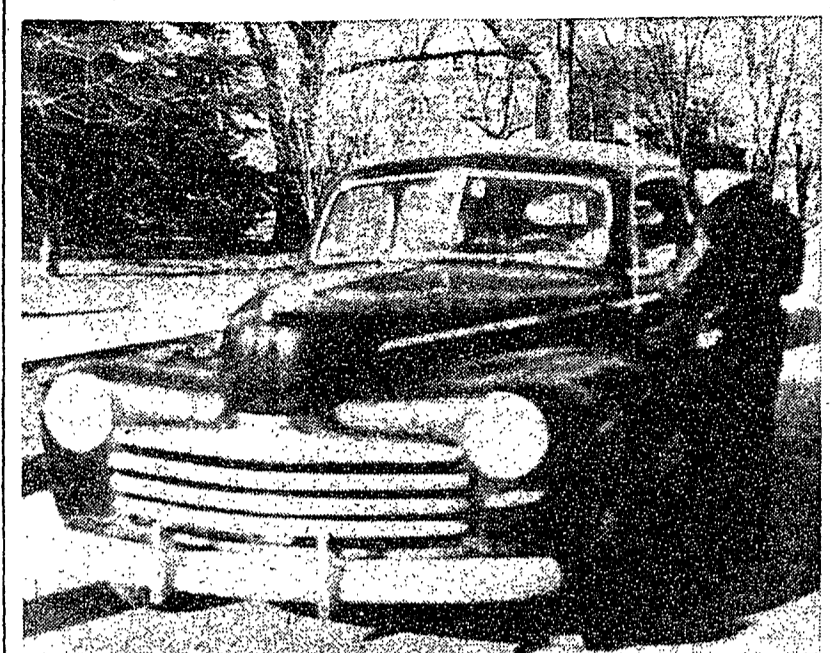

Martin was graduated from the University in 1949, an arts and letters major. While here he was a member of Players and took part in Thespian activities. He is a member of Phi Sigma Delta.

Another of Martin's shows on Broadway was "Burning Bright," a Steinbeck play produced a few years back, in which he was one of only four members in the cast. Another cast member was Barbara Bel Geddes.

Wrote 'Greek' Satire

There are very few Greeks on campus who didn't rebel just a little bit when the movie "Take Care of My Little Girl" appeared. This book was rewritten for the

Purge on Pollock . . .

POLLOCK ROAD student traffic continues to roll along during class hours and the Campus Patrol continues to stop students to present them with tickets for the violation. As the crackdown enters its third week, Patrolman Robert Ihms awards another student another ticket. Violators are fined $1 for first offenses, $4 for second offenses, and appear before Traffic Court and the Dean of Men upon committing a third offense.

University Opens Phonetics Program

By BEV DICKINSON

A phonetics program has been introduced in the Department of Romance Languages to give students an opportunity to get additional practice in developing correct habits in speaking French and Spanish.

The new program, which is compulsory for approximately 100 students in the first semester of Spanish or French, is based on the aural-oral method, whereby students hear material assigned in class before the regular class meeting. Laboratory control sections are available to the students for five additional hours per week, where they practice and develop facility in comprehension and speaking as part of the homework assignments, Simon Belasco, assistant professor of Romance languages, explained.

SDX Tickets Now Available

Tickets for the Sigma Delta Chi Gridiron Banquet, March 30, at the Nittany Lion Inn, will be available until Thursday at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Price is $3.

Invitations have been sent to leaders among the student body, faculty, and administration. Only those invited may attend the banquet.

The banquet program, featuring parodies on outstanding campus figures, is written and produced by undergraduate members of Sigma Delta Chi, men's national professional journalism fraternity.

Work with Records

The students work with records and informant tape recordings during the entire semester. Conducting the control sections in the program are Belasco, who is in charge of the program; Herbert G. Weinberg, instructor of Spanish, and Eugenia Hea, Marian Javana, and Ernest Barry, graduate assistants in Romance languages.

An experimental program, headed by Belasco, was introduced in the Spanish and French 1 and 2 classes last semester. It has been expanded to include French and Spanish 3 and 4 this semester on a voluntary basis, Belasco said.

Includes Rhythm, Accent

The voluntary program emphasizes intonation, rhythm, accent, and syllabication, all of which tend to produce good pronunciation in languages, he explained. Andre Yon, graduate assistant in French, and Irving Fine, graduate assistant in Spanish, teach this program and serve as informants for the mid-term and final examinations which students in French and Spanish 1 will be required to take.

The comparison of the grades of students in the phonetics program and those not in it will determine how successful the program has been when students take these examinations, Belasco stated. Tentative plans have already been made to integrate the program in Spanish and French 1, 2, 3, and 4 classes next semester.

Fraternities May Get Chaperon Reports

Fraternity social chairmen may pick up chaperon reports in the Dean of Men's office, O. Edward Pollock, assistant to the dean of men in charge of fraternity affairs, has announced.

The reports may be used by the chairmen to aid in improving chaperon-fraternity relations, Pollock said.

Inkling Meeting

Candidates and editorial staff of Inkling, campus literary magazine, will meet at 8 tonight in 201 Willard.

Appears on Television

But, Penn State's name in the show world wouldn't be complete unless its graduates had broken into television. This feat has been accomplished, through the person of Ed Binns, an arts and letters grad of 1937.

Ed got his start on Broadway, appearing in such hits as "Command Decision" and "Detective Story." Now, however, he has turned to the newest media, and is a regular featured performer on the Robert Montgomery show and other dramatic productions.
