

Independents Named To Panel at Cornell

Seven discussion leaders and six delegates to the 13th annual National Independent Students Association convention, April 12 to 15 at Cornell University, were named yesterday by Robert Solomon, NISA committee chairman.

The Association of Independent Men and Leonides, independent women's association, will lead discussion groups at the convention for schools with over 5000 enrollment. St. Lawrence University will lead talks for schools of less than 5000 students.

Solomon said approximately 40 schools will send delegates to the convention.

Discussion Leaders

He listed the discussion leaders as follows:

1. Should NISA affiliate with the National Student Association?—Thomas Kidd, sixth semester education major.
 2. How can NISA best serve local independent organizations?—H. Arthur Simm, sixth semester journalism major.
 3. What are the responsibilities of independent students in the college community?—Solomon.
 4. What are the responsibilities of independent organizations to their members?—Joyce Shushman, Judicial chairman.
 5. What is the responsibility of the independent organization to unaffiliated independents?—Ethel Wilson, eighth semester home economics major.
- (In some schools, independents do not automatically become members of an independent organization. They affiliate with such an organization only if they want to join.)
6. What should be the relationship of local independent organizations to other groups on campus?—Betty Buchanan, sixth semester education major.
 7. What is the role of the independent student in protecting academic freedom?—William R. Johnson, second semester chemical engineering major.

Other Delegates

Other delegates named were Helen Spagnola, Vonnice Leith, James Anderson, Duane Holm, Stanley Juras, and Chester Chervinski.

Julie Maybury, second semester business major, was chosen to represent Penn State as a candidate in the NISA Sweetheart contest.

Thirty Apply For Positions As Counselors

Approximately 30 applications for resident counselor positions in men's dormitories have been received to date, according to James W. Dean, assistant to the dean of men in charge of independent affairs.

The deadline for submitting applications is April 15, Dean said. Applications are being accepted from seventh and eighth semester students and graduate students. Students from other schools who plan to enter graduate work at the University in the fall may also apply, Dean added.

Graduate students must submit proof of acceptance by the graduate school.

Counselors will receive remission of room and board fees. They will be housed in single rooms, Dean said. He added that there would be no exception from tuition or general fees.

Each applicant will be interviewed by Dean. Final selections will be made by Dean of Men Frank J. Simes after he and Dean screen the applicants.

to be held in conjunction with the convention. Miss Maybury was chosen from recommendations made to a screening board.

Her picture will be sent to Cornell to be judged with entrants from the other schools. She will also attend the conclave. Judges for the contest will be members of the Cornell faculty.

Solomon was appointed NISA committee chairman at last week's meeting of the AIM Board of Governors. He was appointed by Richard Rigling, former chairman, who resigned. Rigling said he resigned because he would be unable to attend the convention.

AIM Pins Available

Association of Independent Men's pins are now available at the Athletic Store, according to Joe Somers, AIM president.

Frosh May Sign For Talent Show

Freshmen with ability to sing, dance, or perform in other acts may register this week at the Student Union desk in Old Main for Freshman Talent Show auditions, Robert Gellman, freshman talent show chairman, has announced.

Deadline for entering is April 3. Those signing will be contacted at a later date for the auditions which will be held in the Temporary Union Building. Eight finalists will be chosen from those competing by three faculty members of the University who will judge the acts.

The talent show will be held at 8 p.m. April 30. First prize will be $25, and second prize will be $15.
